BLEASE TRAILS JAMES BYRNES IN SENATE RACE

Senator James Couzens Has Slight Lead in Michigan Vote.

ATTORNEY GENERAL AHEAD OF GROSBECK

MORRILL HAS EDGE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Colorado Presents Shaw Slight Advantage Over Hodges.

(Associated Press.)

A shower of ballots that peppered into the boxes in eight State primaries yesterday obscured the results last night and only an occasional glimpse could be caught of a candidate.

In South Carolina, first former Representative James F. Byrnes and then Senator Cole L. Blease came into view and for several hours the heap of ballots that settled about the two veered with each new return. As the hours passed, Byrnes gained a lead of several thousand voters, but sufficient precincts still were missing to change the result. Nomination is equivalent to election.

Scattering returns in Michigan gave Senator James Couzens a small lead over former Gov. Chase S. Osborn in their race for the Republican senatorial nomination after the latter had led the incumbent in first reports.

Ransdell Trailing Long.

Reports from a handful of precincts in Louisiana showed Senator Joseph E. Ransdell slightly behind Gov. Huey P. Long for the Democratic senatorial nomination, equivalent to election.

The South Carolina run-off for the governorship saw first Olin D. Johnston and then Ibra C. Blackwood leading and the margin separating them was always narrow.

Early returns from the Michigan race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination placed Attorney General Wilber M. Brucker ahead of former Gov. Alex J. Grosbeck and Judge Edward Jeffries. Representative Grant M. Hudson also climbed ahead of his five opponents in his race for renomination from the Sixth District. Prohibition had been an issue with Hudson running as a dry.

Morrill Ahead in New Hampshire.

In New Hampshire, first returns placed Arthur P. Morrill, of Concord, ahead of former Gov. John W. Winant and Dr. Hugh K. Moore, of Berlin, in their scramble for the Republican designation at the head of the State ticket.

In other States, Vermont, Colorado, Arizona and Washington, the din of tabulating machines made the result inaudible.

Wets Seek to Halt Woodcock Speech

Boston Group Asks That Monday's Primary Eve Talk Be Restrained.

Boston, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Attorney General William D. Mitchell was today asked to restrain Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock from speaking here September 15, the day before the primary election, by the Crusaders, an organization pledged to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

A telegram to Mr. Mitchell read: "Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock scheduled to speak in Boston on September 15, day before primary. His subject highly controversial. Feeling running high among Republican voters. Wet and dry question playing important part. Our organization, numbering thousands of Republican voters, resent interference by Federal authorities. In the interests of Republican harmony we respectfully request that Commissioner Woodcock be restrained from taking sides. His attempt to dictate to the voters of this State at the eleventh hour is deliberate and contrary to the hands of policy of President Hoover in all primaries. Immediate action requested."

REVOLT CHIEFS PUBLICLY SHOT IN BUENOS AIRES

IRIGOYEN ARRESTED, PLACED ON WARSHIP

Majority of Deputies Are Also Taken Into Custody.

BUSINESS RESUMED AS REBELION HALTS

Guards Patrol Streets and Strict Censorship Is Maintained.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The provisional government tonight struck heavily at the cause of riots and shooting which last night terrorized the heart of the capital and as an example publicly executed two alleged ringleaders of the disorder in the Plaza de Mayo.

Nothing officially was said about the execution, but it was rumored that Chief of Police Tellechea, of San Martin, a suburb, had also faced the firing squad and that other adherents of the deposed President Irigoyen would be shot before long.

Martial Law in Effect.

Strict martial law was put into effect, with soldiers in war equipment everywhere and particularly around government buildings, while foreign press correspondents were warned, under penalty of summary expulsion, not to send any messages out of the country without approval of the government's censor. This applies alike to cable, wireless, telephone and telegraph transmission.

It is understood that a number of Irigoyenistas are under arrest, including six deputies. Fifteen alleged enemies of the revolution were seized last night and condemned to be shot, but it is not known whether the sentence has been carried out.

Irigoyen Under Arrest.

Among those under arrest is the former president, Hipolito Irigoyen, who has been ill in the infantry barracks at La Plata since he was ousted Saturday. After he resigned the government informed him that he was free, but he was arrested after the outbreak. His personal physician, Dr. Meade, also is held.

The newspaper La Nacion said tonight that the former president would be brought to Buenos Aires as soon as

Mrs. Willebrandt's Aid Sought By Campbell in Brewery Fight

Stormy Interview Held With Lowman Over Special Order.

Pressure for Alcohol Permits Nettles Koenig.

Third of a series of articles by the former prohibition administrator of the Eastern New York district.

By MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL.

Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition, had insisted that in a presidential year a little beer wouldn't hurt the "parched throats" of the New York voters and had told me to take my inspectors out of the breweries.

I had protested vigorously, in this interview in his office on August 10, 1928, and had won his agreement that my men should stay in the breweries until September 1. Apparently, however, this was not soon enough for those higher in authority.

For the following Monday I got my orders to take the men out of the breweries. It was dated August 11, approved by Lowman, and written by Alf Oftedal, acting commissioner of prohibition.

Letter From Oftedal.

Prohibition Administrator,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Major Campbell:

It is understood that approximately thirty of the Prohibition Agents operating under your direction are now being used to guard certain cereal beverage plants having permits, but against which no charges are pending.

It is believed that this method of employing your men greatly handicaps direct enforcement work because it cuts down the number of agents available for employment on more important assignments, including the suppression of current 'hard liquor' violations. We are receiving many complaints about large-scale violations of the national prohibition act in some large cities, including Albany and Long Island. There is only a very small group of agents now operating in that area. The supposition is therefore, made that the men whose time is now being employed constantly watching and guarding these permittees, some of all of whom may be acting in good faith, can much better be used in that territory for the present.

You are therefore directed to withdraw the agents now performing guard duty at the cereal beverage plants against which no charges are pending.

Very truly yours,

Alf Oftedal

WHITNEY SEES CURE FOR ILLS OF TRADE

SECURITY VALUES CITED

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The present business depression "can be cured only by the courageous activity of our people," said Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in an address today before the Merchants' Association of New York City.

Taking as his topic, "Trade Depressions and Stock Panics," Mr. Whitney asserted that the decline in security values last fall was not a cause of the business slump but that, on the contrary, "the general realization of the downward trend in trade conditions" initiated the break in stocks.

"If the stock market did not cause the trade depression," he added, "it is clear that the stock market can not cure it. Many people still seem to believe that rising security prices will forecast the end of the present period

House Seige Ends When Volunteer Enters and Uses Fists on Gunman

Jealous Suitor's Threat to Slay Nurse and Self Forces Officers to Refrain From Using Gas Bombs.

FIRE RESCUE SQUAD, DOZEN MEN HELD OFF TWO HOURS

Patrolman Baker Epans 30-Foot Alleyway on Ironing Board and Makes Seizure, Ending Attack in Locked Room Begun on Woman's Return From Hospital.

After holding the fire rescue squad and a dozen policemen at bay for nearly two hours, a man who threatened to kill his sweetheart upon the approach of officers, was captured at 60 F street northwest last night by Policeman Earl Baker, of the Second Precinct, who crawled across an ironing board extended from a neighboring window and subdued the man with a blow to the jaw.

The man gave his name as O. D. Carson, of 60 F street northwest, a rooming house where Miss Annie D. Jennings lived. Allegedly drunk, Carson is said to have locked himself and the girl in the room when he was told that she had been going with another man. When police appeared upon the scene in answer to a neighbor's call, Carson came out on the stairs with a gun in one hand, and the girl in the other. He threatened to kill both the woman and himself if police interferred.

In the face of his threats officers were afraid to hurl tear bombs or to make any effort at entering the house. After more than an hour of watchful waiting Inspector William S. Shelby, Capt. O. T. Davis of the Second Precinct, Lieut. J. P. Wittstatt and Detective Sergt. James Springman reinforced the half dozen policemen surrounding the premises. From a nearby window Sergt. Springman reported that the man was seated in a bedroom, beating the girl about the face with his gun.

After waiting for more than an hour Policeman Baker volunteered for the hazardous job of entering the room from a window across the alley. With the aid of an ironing board he crawled across the narrow air passage. Just as he stepped into the room Carson turned upon him with his gun, but a well-directed blow laid the man on the floor. He was quickly disarmed and taken to the Second Precinct, where charges of assault were expected to be filed against him. The girl was removed to a hospital.

Miss Jennings, a nurse at Sibley Hospital, was driven to her home at 60 F street last night by an unidentified man who agreed to wait until she changed her uniform. He is said to have entered the house when he heard the girl scream, but on the stairway he encountered Carson, who ordered him from the building with a gun. In response to the girl's frantic gestures, he called a policeman, who in turn summoned half a dozen more from the Second Precinct. Faced with the man's threat to shoot the nurse if they entered the house the policemen stood helpless in the street.

The fire rescue squad arrived on the scene, but proved equally helpless. Plans to throw tear gas bombs in the room were abandoned when Carson gave every indication of making his threat good. Several hundred people gathered in the street and traffic was blocked for more than an hour.

Dry League Attacked By Ruth McCormick

Leaders, She Says, in Opposing Referendum, Outrage Her Views of Sanctity of Constitution and Attack Rights.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—While disclaiming any part in the movement to place the prohibition referendum before Illinois voters next November, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate, in a campaign address today declared that no citizen "has any right to oppose this poll."

The nominee said even the liquor problem was less important than "another issue which has been raised in Illinois the last few days," the right of people to petition the Government.

"It seems strange," she said, "that here in Illinois in the year 1930 we should be called upon to debate the question of the right of our citizens to petition.

"Several thousand citizens have signed this petition for a referendum," she continued, proceeding under "their constitutional rights and under their rights specifically provided by the laws of this State," and as a result "certain leaders of the Antisaloon League of Illinois have taken the field and their first attack is upon this legal and constitutional proposal. The league," she said, "would have me oppose this legal petition now and ignore it later," but she said "I will listen to no counsel which outrages every conviction I have ever held on the subject of majority rule, of popular government and of the sanctity of the Constitution."

Mrs. McCormick reaffirmed her statement in a speech before the Republican State convention that "if a majority in Illinois expressed a desire on November 4 for a repeal of the eighteenth amendment" she would accept the result. At the same time she reiterated her conviction that she was personally a dry and said "no intoxicating liquor is kept or served in my home."

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Abe Lincoln Wisler announced today he had withdrawn from the Illinois race for United States senator, reducing the field to five candidates in the November 5 election.

Wisler entered as an independent wet after losing in the Republican primary.

Companion Rescues Diver Trapped 26 Hours in Water

Capt. Nick Danese, Held by Tremendous Pressure of Broken Lock at New Orleans Pumping Station, Reappears Still Chewing Wad of Gum.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Capt. Nick Danese, a marine diver, was rescued alive shortly before 1 p. m. today after being trapped in 22 feet of water since 11 a. m. yesterday, when he was caught under a city pumping station on Lake Pontchartrain while repairing a leak.

"Thank God for all the people who helped save me," gasped Capt. Danese as he was brought up on the verge of exhaustion.

More than 100 men had labored for 26 hours in keeping a steady flow of oxygen going to him through a hose to his diver's helmet and in driving sheet piling around him to release the pressure of water flowing in from Lake Pontchartrain through a break in a lock.

The diver was swept into a watery trap when the lock gave way as he was repairing a leak. He was washed under a bulkhead and was prevented from coming out by the water pressure and strong current.

When he came to the surface Capt. Danese was still chewing the gum he had in his mouth when he went down yesterday morning, wearing only a diver's helmet and regular clothes.

"I never gave up hope," he said. "I knew they were doing everything possible to save me and that I would be out before long. I don't feel bad at all."

"If they'll let him, he'll be back to work tomorrow," said Joseph, his son.

Capt. Danese was rescued by his 65-year-old diving companion, Fritz John, who spent hours below water working to release him.

"I first attached tow lines to two of the pilings near Capt. Danese," said Mr. John, "and had them pulled clear one at a time. I sawed the piling that lay across Capt. Danese and when that was pulled up, I came as quickly as possible to the surface after I had shaken hands with him, and they pulled him up with a rope. I have never missed saving any one I went after in the water."

Book by Mrs. Doran Gives 83 Ginless Punch Recipes

Smedley Butler, Who Makes Tea Base of His Legal Cocktail, and Mrs. Hoover Among Contributors to Handy Symposium.

After a great deal of research Roxana B. Doran, wife of Dr. James M. Doran, has found 83 ways of making punch without using gin.

She lists the recipes in a new book, "Prohibition Punches," published by the same firm that put out "Mother, What Shall I Do Now?" described as a handbook for busy parents.

The "legal cocktails" listed in the book range all the way from the favorite of Mrs. Herbert Hoover to the favorite of that dry devil dog, Maj. Gen. Smedley Darlington Butler.

"Now," writes Mrs. Doran, "the First Lady herself likes her punches made with plain spring water (neither mineral nor charged). She prefers this sweetened to taste and, added to it, any of the various citrus fruits, principally oranges, lemons, grapefruit and berries of all sorts in season. Sometimes she mixes tangerines and kumquats with her fruit punch, giving it an unusual and delicious flavor."

Gen. Butler's idea of a good, bracing fruit punch is obtained from the following recipe, which he contributed to Mrs. Doran:

"Make tea as a base, using three (3) tablespoons of tea to each quart of water.

"Add the following to each quart of tea (stir well): One cup of sugar; 4 ounces lemon juice (squeezed); 2 ounces lime juice, and 2 ounces 'Five Fruits' juice.

"Add ice and serve cold. Other fruits, such as pineapple or strawberries, may be added to suit the taste."

The names given some of the punches are quite intriguing. There

Calvin Coolidge Says:

A distinct cleavage exists between the United States and the League of Nations on national defense.

Under the league plan each member has responsibilities for defense of other members. By that arrangement it would seem that as each country is entitled to help from all the others every one would feel that there was no need for large armaments. Curiously, it is not working that way. Each nation, instead of relying on the help of others, magnifies its obligations to help others and claims it needs large armaments. Instead of increased security each anticipates increased peril. When the United States was expected to join the league our Government was proposing a standing army of about 500,000. This theory arms for security.

The theory of the United States is for each nation to defend itself, cultivate friendly relations with others and reduce armaments so that they are not considered a menace anywhere. This theory disarms for security.

This difference in theory has made the United States a leader in limitation of armaments while it has prevented the league from meeting the obligation under the Versailles treaty to disarm. The league founded in terms of peace constantly thinks in terms of war.

Indictment Charges Theft of Instruments

Charged with stealing enough musical instruments to equip an orchestra, Philip G. May was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on two grand larceny counts.

May, described as a former bell hop at the Arlington Hotel, is alleged to have stolen the instruments from the hotel roof. The indictments charge theft of a saxophone and a clarinet and an instrument case belonging to Harry R. Connelly, and a snare drum, three brass cymbals and other property belonging to Albert Senior.

in business. That may be so, but before security prices rise there must be confidence that business has turned the corner.

"Our natural resources are as great today as they were last year. Our great business organizations are in strong financial condition, and our industrial plants are at the highest state of efficient development. Credit is abundant. With the exception of the difficulties that have arisen as a result of the drastic deflation of commodity prices, the business horizon is clear.

"What is needed, therefore, is courageous and intelligent effort and confidence in the future of our country. We all know that the present period can not long endure; yet, individually, many of us are hesitant and wish to wait until others have had the courage to take the initiative. I am confident, if the great organizations of business men throughout the country will put their shoulders to the wheel that the period of hesitation will be measurably shortened and the reestablishment of prosperity in the United States will become an accomplished fact."

Overproduction, Mr. Whitney asserted, was the basic cause of the depression and the breaking point was reached last summer when the consumption could no longer keep pace with the enormous output of goods. The most dramatic result of the unsettled equilibrium was the stock market panic.

Liquidation Periods Cited.

"The liquidation of the security market was rapid," he continued. "The liquidation in commodities and throughout business necessarily required a longer period. The completion of this slower process furnishes the basis for a new equilibrium between production and consumption, and the possibility of a return to general business prosperity."

Stressing the importance of the trend of commodity prices in the trade depression, Mr. Whitney asid that the reaction in business would have been lessened had prices of staples declined more steadily between 1925 and 1929 than they actually did.

"Great efforts were made to maintain prices by various artificial expedients," he asserted. "Unconsciously business drifted into an era characterized to a large extent by manipulated price levels."

Hits Artificial Tinkering.

Referring to attempts to "tinker artificially with prices," Mr. Whitney mentioned experiments of the American and Canadian governments with wheat, of Brazil with coffee, Great Britain with rubber and Cuba with sugar.

"It was the artificial price structure created by such methods, and not clearly revealed in the indices of commodity prices," he continued, "which has been responsible for the unexpected weakness of commodity prices during recent months. Business is thus today paying the price for unsound attempts to maintain price levels in the face of increasing production costs. This trying experience shows that the law of supply and demand can not be disregarded."

In answer to countless suggestions that the functions of stock exchanges should be regulated, Mr. Whitney said that he believed such regulation "would simply make prices on the exchange a false reflection of the state of business."

The speed with which the market will respond to busines sconditions wil depend upon the rapidity with which accurate statistics on those conditions are made available to the public, Mr. Whitney declared.

IMMIGRATION BAN TO AID EMPLOYMENT

ANNOUNCED BY HOOVER

In a further effort to relieve the unemployment situation, the Hoover administration has adopted a policy for restricting immigration from Europe and Canada by means of a more drastic application of the section of the immigration law which provides for the exclusion of persons likely to become public charges.

The procedure, which consists of the denial by American consuls of visas sought by emigrants, has been use dsuccessfully by the State Department in the last eighteen months to tsem the tide of Mexican loborers into the United States. State Department figures show that Mexicans are now coming at the rate of about 6,000 a year, as compared with an average of 56,000 annuallyill for the five years, 1924-1929.

The policy was announced at the White House yesterday when President Hoover made public a report, prepared at his request by Acting Secretary of State Cotton. It will have no effect on immigrants who have relatives in the Cnited States or those financiallyl able to support themselves, but is designed to tighten up on the entrance of persons ordinarilyll admitted on the theory they are capable and likely to obtain work in this country. The plan has been frequentlyl urged upon the President by labor leaders and has the sanction of immigration officials. Its effectiveness with relation to Mexico was used as a Government argument against the Harris bill to restrict Mexican immigration, agitated at the last session of Congress.

The debates in the Senate disclosed that Government officials believed that Mexican labor could be virtually excluded without making an exception of that country with relation to the rest of Latin-America by application of the quota law. In view of the present unemployment in the United States, it is the opinion here that exclusion of Canadian and European labor can be obtained by the same method.

As the result of conferences with Mexican immigration officials and the application of this section of the law, Mexican labor immigration to the United States has practically ceased as the department's July figures indicate, showing that only 3,140 Mexicans entered the United States in the first six months of this year.

Consul Monett B. Davis is now in Canada as the result of conversations on the subject between the two governments, and is instructing American consular officers on the subject. Two conferences of American consular officers will be held in Europe shortly with the view to this strict application of the immigration laws there. One conference will be held in London and the other in some place on the Continent still to be determined. Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr, who is now in Europe, will attend both conferences.

Congressional committees were urged by the President at the last session to work out a plan to cut the quotas in half as an emergency for one year, but no action was taken and the conferences, looking to a drastic application of the "public charge" provision of the existing law were inaugurated.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 9 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—William Green, president of the American Federatoin of Labor, announced this afternoon that in conformity with representations of the organization, the Federal Government is planning to stop all immigration of laborers and artisans during the period of depression.

No new legislation will be required, he said, the flow of immigrants being checked by refusal to issue visas to all who may be coming here in search of work.

"If," he said, "the applicant says that he or she has a job to go to here, he or she will be automatically excluded under the contract labor law. If he or she has no job to come to, visas can be refused on the ground that he or she is liable to become a public charge."

Rum Padlock Sought For Building by U. S.

The Government, through United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt, moved yesterday to padlock for one year the two-story brick structure at 645 Second street northeast. The petition filed in District Supreme Court alleges many violations of the prohibition law and sets out that the building is a nuisance under the meaning of the act.

Antonio Di Guiseppe, alias Anthony Francis Joseph; Canita Di Guiseppe, alias Canita Joseph, and Angelo Bernard Joseph, alias August Joseph, are named defendants in the action. All are said to be tenants of the place while Antonio Di Guiseppe and Canita Di Guiseppe are alleged owners of the premises.

Jesuit Brother's Funeral Is Held

James McCloskey Buried in College Cemetery at Georgetown.

Brother James McCloskey, S. J., the oldest member of the order in the Eastern province of the United States, who died Sunday, was buried yesterday in the Georgetown College Cemetery after a requiem mass in Dahlgren Chapel.

Brother McCloskey was born in Ireland in 1843 and came to this country in 1849. He joined the order in 1865 and was one of the pioneer members of the order who, with the Rev. Henry Shandell, S. J., and the Rev. James Becker, S. J., opened the Jesuit College at Woodstock, Md.

He was transferred to Georgetown University in 1886 and served as infirmarian, caring for ill students, until 1923, when he was incapacitated because of old age.

The Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of the university, was celebrant at the requiem mass. The Rev. John A. Dixon, S. J., led the office of the dead.

In addition to members of the university faculty, others present were the Rev. Robert Lloyd, S. J., headmaster of the Georgetown Preparatory School at Garrett Park, Md.; the Rev. John Fleming, S. J., of the Holy Trinity Church, and Brother John O'Connell, of Gonzaga College.

COSTE THANKS POLICE ESCORT

OCEAN FLIERS LEAVE HERE FOR NEW YORK

Coste, Bellonte May Come Back to Washington on Good-Will Tour.

BEAR DAHLIAS FOR HERO

Cherishing the hope that their continent-girdling good-will tour will bring them back once again to Washington, scene of a tumultuous two-day ovation unexcelled in their log of epoch-making flights, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte soared away yesterday morning for New York in the Question Mark.

Apparently not in the least exhausted from their round of activities, which began from the moment they landed at Bolling Field Sunday afternoon, the French airmen arrived early at the same field for an expected speedy departure for New York to hear the latest news concerning their tricountry swing.

Cold Motor Delays Start.

A petulant motor, cold from enforced idleness, necessitated considerable attention until a contact was made, felicitations exchanged between the fliers and an array of Army, Navy and Marine officers, and a start at 10:17 o'clock.

As the red sesquiplane zoomed aloft an escort of Army planes took off in formation trailed later by the fast French pursuit plane piloted by the fliers' fellow countryman, Marcel Doret, the stunt pilot who set the throngs on edge with his daring last week at the Chicago air races. With him rode Rene Racover, manager of Coste and Bellonte, who while here formally announced the early good will tour throughout the United States and into parts of Canada and Mexico. While the itinerary is yet to be completed, he said, Washington may be included.

Wreath for Former Flier.

Coste carried with him a wreath of dahlias to drop over the Newark Municipal Airport in memory of a prominent American ace and former Washingtonian, Maj. John O. Donaldson, who crashed Sunday in Philadelphia while flying at a race meet under auspices of the American Legion.

Motoring from the French Embassy, where they were the guests of Jules Henry, French charge d'affaires, Coste and Bellonte went directly to the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, where they were presented to officers there and were allowed to view several of the Navy's most famous planes, including the little biplane in which Lieut. Apollo Soucek recently established both landplane and seaplane altitude records.

Their visit completed, they continued around the field to the Army region, where the usual field detail was augmented by a crowd of early morning civilian well-wishers.

Woman Acts to Prevent Divorce From Indian

Charging that certain persons in Osage County, Okla., have kept her husband, John Kenny, under the influence of liquor and have terrorized him by threats in an effort to coerce him into obtaining a divorce from her, and thereby gain control of his property, Necie Kenny, of Guthrie, Okla., yesterday filed suit for injunction in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

The suit is directed against the Mercnants Bank & Trust Co., of Washington; F. A. Reilly, of 340 D street northwest, Washington, and Kenny, whose address is given as Guthrie, Okla. Kenny is described as a full-blooded Osage Indian, whose funds are restricted by the Government. He is said to be worth approximately $40,000.

Eight Will Compete For Gas Scholarship

Examinations will be held today in the offices of the Washington Gas Light Co. for a scholarship in gas engineering offered by the company at Johns Hopkins University.

The scholarship is worth $1,800 for four years. Eight Washington youths are competing for it. The holder of the scholarship is eligible for reappointment from year to year if he conforms in character, industry and ability.

Thief Grabs $10 and Runs.

James E. Turner, of 207 R street northwest, manager of a gas station at Fourteenth and D streets northwest, told police yesterday that while making change for two colored men, one of them grabbed a $10 bill from his hand and ran away.

GIRL WHO SHOT MAN HELD ON RUM COUNT

THREE CASES IGNORED

Barbara Walker, 25-year-old dancing instructor, who is being held in the House of Detention in connection with the shooting of Russell Prince Sunday night in an apartment on S street near Sixteenth street, was one of the seventeen persons indicted yesterday on charges of violation of the national prohibition act.

According to the grand jury report made yesterday to Justice Frederick L. Siddons, the number is the largest in the history of the District. Automatically the indictments bring the charges under the scope of the Jones five and ten act.

Sewer Construction Contracts Awarded

Four contracts for construction of sewers were awarded yesterday by District Commissioners to low bidders as follows:

Stormwater sewere in Kalmia street northwest between West Beach drive and Sixteenth street and in Myrtle street between Kalmia and Sixteenth, for $41,181.25, and Twenty-second street service sewer between Bunker Hill road and Eastern avenue northeast, for $3,866.24 to the Peter D'Adamo Construction Co.; stormwater sewer, Chevy Chase parkway between Northampton and Patterson streets to W. A. Pate, jr., for $3,827.88; and replacement sewers in vicinity of Sixth and K streets northeast, to the M. Cain Co., Inc., for $9,922.82.

American Oil Paintings To Be Shown in City

The twelfth biennial exhibition of contemporary American oil paintings will be held at the Corcoran Gallery of Art from November 30, 1930, to January 11, 1931. The prospectus of the exhibit has been compiled and is being sent to American artists throughout the country.

In the eleven exhibitions previously held, 296 paintings were sold, representing $500,000 worth of paintings turned over to American artists.

Friends Post Bond In Keliher's Death

Report That Ball Player Was Abducted Is Shattered by Police.

William Shea and William McKeever who, with Earl J. Garrison, are wanted in Virginia for investigation in connection with the death of Maurice "Mickey" Keliher, were released yesterday under $1,000 bond by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court.

Judge Schuldt set September 16 as the date for the hearing on the fugitive warrant designed to remove the men to Alexandria for an inquiry into the auto crash which resulted in Keliher's death. Garrison is in Gallinger Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain.

All thoughts that Keliher had been abducted by the men, which were occasioned by a report that an acquaintance had seen Keliher forced into the automobile, were dissipated yesterday when Detective Sergeants John F. Flaherty and James Collins closed their investigation. Several witnesses corroborated statements of the men that all were friends and that there had been no altercation before they started for Colonial Beach on the trip which ended in the fatal accident.

MOVIES STAY OPEN, SAY HOUSE OWNERS

NEW DEADLOCK IS SEEN

Despite a new and apparently impregnable deadlock with musicians, and the continued threat of a sympathy strike on the part of projection machine operators, Washington motion picture theaters will continue to operate after September 15, according to a statement issued yesterday by A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Theater Owners Association.

Contracts with the musicians, extended until next Monday pending settlement of the dispute over renewal of blanket agreements, will upon expiration leave local theaters entirely dependent upon "canned" music. And if the operators carry out their promise of a sympathy strike, the theaters will admittedly be "up against it," to quote Mr. Brylawski.

Operators' Walkout Doubted.

A statement issued yesterday by the owners, however, declared that motion picture houses would not be darkened, even in the event of an operators' strike. Mr. Brylawski was confident that the operators, who recently signed contracts calling for pay increases, would not go through with their threatened walkout.

"If they do, however," he said, "we still have a few cards to play. I can definitely promise the public that motion picture theaters in Washington will continue to operate."

In his statement issued yesterday Mr. Brylawski explained that the end of negotiations was no surprise to the owners' association, "as the musicians' demands were well known to us in Washington, and we knew that unless they would be greatly modified no progress could be made."

Statement of Brylawski.

His statement follows:

"Our position in this controversy remains the same. We have no quarrel with the Municians Union. We have no differences on the pay scale, high as it is; we do not want different conditions, working hours, or changed perquisities, but we do object to the Musicians Union arbitrarily setting the size of our orchestras, and dictating the number of musicians we must employ in order to get any. Yet our offer for orchestras were needed and musicians in all of the downtown and larger uptown houses was rejected contemptuously. With them it is evidently 'whole hog or none.' The Musicians Union, and not the managers are taking 'living music' out of the theaters.

"No where else in their wage scale do they attempt to force a specific number of men, or to force compulsory employment on their clients. Hotels, dance halls, restaurants, &c., hire as many men as they require whenever they want them. Why, therefore, penalize the theaters. And yet music today is but a small part of a modern theater program. The silent picture that required music to fill the void has gone to join the horse car and the kerosene lamp. Sound pictures are the modern entertainment, dialogue, drama, human interest, comedy, hold the screens—the public will have nothing else. Songs, dances and revues and msuical interludes living or 'canned' are rapidly passing.

"The theater owners regret the present impasse—we do not feel at fault. We have not been stubborn, nor are we vindictive. The three-year contract that went out of existence September 1 cost the theaters of Washington hundreds of thousands of dollars for unwanted and unneeded music, but it was a contract and we kept up our part of it, but we are not going to stick our head in the same noose again. The theaters of Washington will meet any demand that the public make of them and the Motion Picture Theater Owners of the District of Columbia will keep its members' theaters open no matter what happens."

Two Theft Indictments Faced by Capital Man

Wilbur S. Peters, Negro, was charged with grand larceny in two indictments returned yesterday by the District grand jury. One charges theft of two diamond rings from the jewelry store of Jacob Gordon at 1730 Fourteenth street northwest, while the other charges theft of two suits of clothes belonging to Robert Nelson, of 927 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

In the case involving the diamond rings Peters is alleged to have entered the jewelry store with the request that he be shown some engagement rings. While the rings were on the counter, he is alleged to have asked to be shown a watch. Then, while the proprietor went to get the watch, Peters is said to have snatched up the rings and fled. One ring was valued at $45 and the other at $25.

395 Days Given Man For Drunken Driving

Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court yesterday sentenced Arthur J. Smith, of a Bass place northeast address, to serve 395 days in jail on a driving-while-drunk charge.

Smith's automobile is alleged to have collided Monday night at Fifth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast with a car operated by Carl H. Howard, Marine Corps private. When first arraigned Smith pleaded not guilty, but during the course of the hearing changed his plea. Five persons, occupants of Howard's automobile, are alleged to have been seriously injured in the crash.

"Dollar Court" Settles Minor Des Moines Cases

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Petty money disputes are settled quickly and cheaply in the municipal "conciliation court" directed by Judge H. H. Sawyer here. Cases involving less than $100 are settled before a "conciliator" for a fee of $1. There are no lawyers, no cross-examinations and lenthy court records, and petty cases no longer clutter dockets of higher courts.

The disputants "lay their cards on the table" while the conciliator explains legal points and suggests a settlement. The parties either reach an agreement between themselves or go to a higher court.

Grand Jury Ignores Three Gaming Charges

Three gaming charges were ignored by the District grand jury yesterday. Defendants exonerated are Abram Goldberg and Michael Anthony Parella on charges of setting up a gaming table and John J. King on a charge of violating the policy law.

Goldberg was arrested October 28, 1929, when the roving vice squad then under command of Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman, now of the Sixth Precinct, visited his apartment on New York avenue northwest near Thirteenth street. King also was apprehended last year, the date of his arrest being August 5.

GRAND JURY PASSES TRUE BILL IN KILLING

FORGERY LAID TO MAN

One indictment charging second-degree murder and four charging manslaughter were returned by the District grand jury yesterday.

The murder indictment was returned against Harry Brown, colored. It charges that Brown killed James Taylor, another colored man, with a knife several weeks ago.

John H. Mosely, Negro, is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of a white man, Joseph Lester Goddard, last August 12. Mosely is alleged to have felled Goddard with his fists, causing the man's head to strike the pavement. The altercation is alleged to have occurred in front of a house on I street northwest near Fourth street.

James Briscoe, Negro, was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Martha Jackson, colored, last August 2 when his automobile is alleged to have struck the woman, causing fatal injuries. The machine is said to have struck the woman on One-half street northwest between N and O streets.

Jesse Watts, colored, was charged with manslaughter as a result of the death of Marie King, colored. Watts, the indictment charges, kicked the woman off a porch in Browns court southeast, causing her head to strike the pavement and inflicting fatal injuries. The woman died June 6, it was injured May 31, according to the indictment.

Frank Isaac, Negro, was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death August 10 of Peter Young. Isaac is alleged to have killed the man with a knife in a house on Defrees street northwest near First street.

Charges of forging and uttering are contained in an indictment returned yesterday by the District grand jury against Irvin A. Jones, said to reside at Joplin, Mo.

Jones is alleged to have forged the name of Miss Eunice L. Hoffman, a clerk in the office of Senator Roscoe C. Patterson, of Missouri, on a check which he is said to have cashed at the Union Trust Co. The man is said to have gone to the senator's office, with the statement that he was here on vacation and had run out of money, although he had $800 on deposit in Joplin. Miss Hoffman is said to have accommodated him by indorsing his check and sending him to the Union Trust Co., where she maintained an account. Jones, after cashing that check, is said to have gone to another paying teller and cashed a check on Miss Hoffman's account for $30.

Martinsville Furniture Company Loser in Suit

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 9.—McDonald Bros., efficiency experts, of Massachusettas, won a verdict of $8,750.01 in the United States District Court here today in their $12,000 suit against the American Furniture Co., of Martinsville, for services rendered. The jury was instructed by the court to bring a verdict for this amount.

The suit resulted from cancellation by the furniture company of its contract with the efficiency engineers, the grounds set forth being that terms had not been met. It was charged that the experts failed to bring about expected economies and that the new system was generally unsatisfactory and stirred discontent among its employes, and that the turnovers in the factory resulted in adverse conditions. The year contract was canceled after five months.

Unemployed Man Fails In Attempt at Suicide

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 9.—Out of employment and despondent over being unable to find work, John Young, 25 years old, near Urbana, attempted to take his life with a shotgun yesterday.

After taking several drinks of whisky he adjusted his head over the muzzle of a double-barrel shotgun and pulled one of the triggers. The discharge produced a severe scalp wound and shattered the ceiling. His face was badly burned with powder. He was taken to Montevue Hospital, where physicians said a move of a fraction of an inch prevented the side of his head from being shot away.

Bedford Laundry Blaze Causes $3,000 Damage

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., Sept. 9.—A fire which caused an estimated damage of about $3,000 occurred in the Bedford Laundry & Dry Cleaning plant, owned and operated by Charles H. Garrette, at noon yesterday.

Damage to machinery and supplies is estimated at $2,000, clothing damaged, $500; damage to the building, which is owned by the estate of Walter Schenk, several hundred dollars. The loss is said to be coverd by insurance. The fire was caused, it is thought, by defective wiring in the dry room.

DROWNING VICTIM TAKEN FROM RIVER

INQUEST SET FOR TODAY

The body of a man believed to be Wylie Gill, 49 years old, who was reported to have jumped from a boat into the Potomac River near Key Bridge Sunday morning, was recovered by Harbor Precinct police early yesterday morning.

The drowning was first reported by the man's boating companions, Robert C. Marcey, 31 years old, of Cherrydale, Va., and Howard Conrad, 50 years old, of Chevy Chase, Md. Both men were ordered held by Seventh Precinct Lieut. J. J. Burke, acting captain, when the body was not at first found.

Both men at first told conflicting stories of the drowning, according to Burke, neither agreeing on the place where it occurred along the river.

William Gill, a brother of Wylie Gill, who gave his address as 917 Mills Building, failed to identify the body that was found yesterday, but said that his identification could not be counted on, due to the fact that he had not seen his brother for more than twelve years.

His father, Delancey Gill, of 1725 Seventeenth street northwest, also failed to identify him for the same reason. Gill had been accustomed to leave home for several years at a time without returning, and this, the father said, accounted for his inability to identify the body, together with the fact that the body was badly decomposed.

While Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt has called an inquest for 10 o'clock this morning, police have taken fingerprints from the body and will compare them with a set in the possession of the Navy Department. It was found last night that Gill had served in the Navy.

Infantry Plans Winchester Visit

Thirty-fourth Regiment Is Asked to Arrange Band Concert in City.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 9.—The Thirty-fourth Infantry Regiment, United States Army, will be here September 26 and will pass a night in camp at Rouss Spring Park, it was announced today by the chamber of commerce on receipt of a letter from Col. Alfred T. Smith, commanding.

The regiment, it was understood, will pass several days in the Shenandoah Valley, going over and studying the terrain of Federal and Confederate armies during the Civil War and particularly the "valley campaign" of "Stonewall" Jackson, the noted Southern chieftain. The regiment soon leaves Fort Eustis, Va., on its annual early fall march, and it was said the itinerary includes passage through Washington and thence to Gettysburg, Pa., where Civil War battlefields will be studied, after which the soldiers probably will go to Antietam and thence to Winchester on their way back to Fort Eutis.

The chamber of commerce has invited Col. Smith to arrange for a band concert by the regimental band. A baseball game also will be played here.

MAN, STRUCK BY CAR, LOSES LEFT ARM, LEG

2 BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS

Despite two blood transfusions resorted to by Emergency Hospital surgeons, Leonard Furbee, 32 years old, of Alum Bridge, Va., is believed to be dying following the amputation of his left arm and leg after he was run over by a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car yesterday morning.

Mr. Furbee, who is principal of the Alum Bridge High School, was struck by the car at New York avenue and Eleventh street northwest shortly after leaving his hotel at 7 o'clock, with his daughter, Helen Furbee, 10 years old, preparatory to the drive home.

He had been to Forest Glen, Md., to bring his daughter back to Virginia from the home of her uncle, Dr. Arnold Hall, where she had been passing the summer. A start had been made from Washington once, but at Winchester, Va., the father had a sudden attack of what a physician diagnosed as appendicitis, and had advised an immedite operation.

Furbee returned to Washington, where another doctor was consulted. He declared that an operation was not necessary. After staying here in the hotel for the night they were preparing to get an eraly start when the accident occurred.

The girl has returned to the home of her uncle in Forest Glen until the mother comes from Alum Bridge.

Man Thinks Himself Unhurt in Crash; Dies

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 9.—Although he did not realize he had been seriously hurt in an automobile accident Saturday night, Peter Coontz, 33 years old, of West Union, was seized with violent internal pains last evening and died this morning in a Clarksburg hospital.

After he was taken from his wrecked automobile when it went over an embankment near West Union, Coontz went home declaring he had not been hurt. He leaves a widow.

Army Sergeant Held On Intoxication Charge

Special to The Washington Post.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 9.—Sergt. Thomas W. Andrews, of the United States Army recruiting office here, was arrested early today charged with reckless driving, operating an automobile while intoxicated and later in the morning a warrant was issued charging violation of the prohibition law.

The action by the local police came as the result of an automobile accident, according to information received at police headquarters.

Missionary Society's Delegates in Lynchburg

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 9.—The fifty-fifth convention of Virginia Christian Missionary Society convened tonight at Euclid Avenue Christian Church here with delegates present from all parts of the State. Dr. J. T. Hundley, president of Lynchburg College, made the address of welcome and Dr. C. M. Gordon, Norfolk, responded. The convention sermon was delivered by Dr. Richard W. Wallace, of this city.

NEW ORLEANS JUDGE BENT ON FINDING 2

Will Solve Seizure of Two Foes of Long if It Takes All Summer, He Says.

FOUL PLAY FEARS HELD

New Orleans, La., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Plainly irritated by evasive answers of witnesses and failure of others to appear, Judge Wayne G. Borah declared from the bench of the Federal District Court here today that if he found he had jurisdiction he would get to the bottom of the seizure by State officers and the disappearance of Sam Irby and James Terrell if it took him all summer.

He had heard witnesses testify that Irby and Terrell had been seized in a Shreveport hotel early Thursday by armed State officers as the two were planning to file a slander suit against Gov. Huey P. Long and hustled out of town in two automobiles. No one has been found who admitted seeing Terrell since then.

Assistant Attorney General E. R. Schowalter, who has been making the legal fight for the return of the men, said in a statement today that he "feared Terrell had met with foul play." Several witnesses have testified to seeing a man pointed out as Irby both in New Orleans and Jefferson Parish.

In the midst of a hearing today on a writ of habeas corpus, Judge Borah stopped to suggest to Mr. Schowalter that his petition be amended in open court to read that Irby and Terrell "were held and detained without due process of law."

He then adjourned court until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Virginia Barlow Heads Iota Sigma Pi Order

Cincinnati, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Virginia Barlow, University of Illinois, was elected president of Iota Sigma Pi, National Chemical Society, which is meeting here in conjunction with the eightieth annual session of the American Chemical Society.

Other new officers included Dr. Mary Willard, Pennsylvania State College, vice president; Mrs. Helen Norris Moore, University of Cincinnati, secretary; Miss Ida May Shilling, Ames College, treasurer, and Dr. Mary Morse, University of Nebraska, editor.

Reports of Martial Law In Cuba Are Scouted

Havana, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The government today denied that martial law had been declared in portions of Oriente Province as precautions against anticipated political disturbances.

Reports here yesterday said Palma Soriano was under martial law and that extra troops had been quartered in the barracks there. Gen. Alberto Herrera, army chief of staff, explained that a platoon of guards had been sent there because of reports that marauders were terrorizing the community.

Capt. Ammel Flies East For His Hop to Paris

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Capt. Roy Ammel, former Army flier, arrived here today at 5:30 p. m. (Eastern standard time) after a seven and one-half hour trip from Chicago, preparatory to a projected transatlantic hop to Paris.

Third Soucek Would Fly.

Medford, Okla., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The third son of Mr. and Mrs. John Soucek, parents of two widely known Navy fliers, will seek to follow his brothers' footsteps. Ormus Soucek has left his home here to enter the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. His brothers, Lieuts. Apollo Soucek and Zeus Soucek, are well-known pilots, the former holding the world's altitude record.

ORGANIZATION DEMOCRATS LEADING IN MONTGOMERY

Robert G. Hilton, Rockville banker and organization candidate for State senator, trailed his ticket, his opponent, State Senator Eugene Jones, remaining less than 800 votes behind him. Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county organization leader, predicted that Mr. Hilton would have a majority of less than a thousand.

In the other contests the organization led the Progressives in most instances by strong majorities. Miss Lavinia Engle, candidate for member of the House of Delegates on the organization ticket, led her ticket until late yesterday, when Dr. George L. Edmonds, also an organization candidate for House of Delegates, passed her with a tally of 4,477. Miss Engle showed a tally of 4,454.

Judge John S. Newman, organization candidate for reelection as judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit, was practically assured of election with a total of 4,237 votes from Montgomery County.

David J. Lewis, father of the parcel post law, was running far ahead of the rest of the ticket and his nomination was considered certain last night.

The vote as recorded in the nineteen precincts, which had been heard from at 6 o'clock, is as follows, with a total of approximately 8,000 votes cast in the nineteen precincts:

Judge Newman Ahead.

For associate judge, Sixth Judicial Circuit, Judge John S. Newman, of Frederick County, 4,237; W. Clinton McSherry, of Frederick County, 3,094, and Samuel A. Lewis, of Frederick County, 501.

For member of the House of Representatives, David J. Lewis, of Allegany County, 5,699, and Fuller Barnard, jr., of Allegany County, 1,054.

For county commissioner, first commissioner district, Downey M. Williams, organization candidate, 4,542, and Nicholas R. Griffith, Progressive, 3,320; second district, Sherwood Duvall, organization, 4,528, and Arthur L. Watkins, Progressive, 3,283; third district, Clagett Hilton, organization, 4,640, and W. Peerce Hunter, Progressive, 3,241; fourth district, William Frank Ricketts, organization, 4,344, and John Vinson Peter, Progressive, 3,455; fifth district, Lacy Shaw, 5,020, and William H. Thompson, Progressive, 2,949; sixth district, John B. Diamond, organization, 4,522, and Otho C. Trundle, Progressive, 3,205; seventh district, Robert D. Hagner, organization, 4,402, and Eugene H. McLachlen, Progressive, 3,106.

Prescott Has Lead.

For State senator—Robert G. Hilton, organization, 4,503, and Dr. Eugene Jones, Progressive, 3,782.

For members of the House of Delegates—George L. Edmonds, 4,477; Miss Lavinia Engle, 4,454; Odorion W. Robey, 4,314; Marvin Farrington, 4,213; Ralph S. Morrison, 4,161, all organization candidates, and Thomas D. Darby, 3,571; E. Barrett Prettyman, 3,514; Ralph P. Counselman, 3,321; Harry H. Fraley, 3,224; E. Clyde Shade, 3,060, all Progressives.

For clerk of the circuit cort—Preston B. Ray, organization, 4,922, and William H. Warfield, Progressive, 2,995.

For State's attorney—Stedman Prescott, organization, 4,482, and John E. Oxley, Progressive, 3,384.

Maddox Far to Front.

For county treasurer—J. Forest Walker, organization, 4,405, and John T. Culver, Progressive, 3,418.

For sheriff—Richard H. Lansdale, organization, 4,362, and William L. Aud, Progressive, 3,609.

Joseph C. Higgins, Henry J. Hunt 3d and P. Hicks Ray, organization candidates for judges of the orphans' court, led their opponents, William A. Bogley, Genoa King and Frank Wilson, all Progressives, by safe majorities. Charles J. Maddox, organization candidate for surveyor, led both R. Kenneth Waters, Progressive candidate, and Joseph E. Starkey, independent, by a large majority.

For Convention Delegates.

Organization candidates for members of the Democratic State central committee, Berry E. Clark, Ben G. Davis, Lucy M. Offutt, Thomas W. Perry, Ruth E. Shoemaker and Zach M. Waters, were far in advance of their Progressive opponents, Robert W. Allnutt, Bates Etchison, James P. Gott, Enos C. Keyes, Jo V. Morgan and Millard F. Peake.

sufferers had a decided effect in turning the spirit of the Dominican capital from despair to hope.

President Rafael L. Trujillo expanded his already heroic efforts toward sanitation with view to prevent a possible epidemic of tropical diseases. His work toward this end was greatly facilitated by an ample supply of fresh water—the first available since the storm destroyed the city's water plant. Cleaning of bodies and debris from the narrow streets also showed definite results and was a great influence in strengthening the people's morale. The tropical sun also lent its cheering and cleansing influence.

The American Red Cross was assigned the city itself as its particular field of activity. It opened several rationing stations and Director Ernest J. Swift estimated that 10,000 persons now are receiving rations daily. At one time today the crowd at a Red Cross food station became so large and so unmanageable for the civilians that Dominican soldiers were compelled to drive the crowd back to restore order.

Tonight for the first time in a week there were few among the city's homeless who were hungry. Food that had been imported made possible the feeding of the thousands who had not only lost their homes and their loved ones but also their sources of income. The food supply was greatly augmented by trucks bringing provisions from other parts of the Dominican Republic.

Surgical attention for the injured was greatly facilitated today with the opening of the Roosevelt Emergency Tent Hospital, which has 1,000 beds.

Commander L. W. Johnson, of the United States Navy, was placed in charge of all the medical work being done in the city.

Tonight, for the first time since the storm struck, electric lights went on about Columbus Park, where the city's social, official and religious life centers. Water also was flowing through the mains in more sections than last night.

Airplanes continued today to wing their way back and forth between the storm area and Port au Prince, Haiti, and a complete survey was made from the skies of the outlying zone where no estimate of damage yet has been available.

No official count has been made of the total number of dead. The phase of the situation which most impresses the relief workers is the great number of serious injuries which must be treated, many of them calling for the most extreme measures by the already overworked army and civilian physicians and surgeons.

So many vessels arrived today that Capt. John Davis, chief of the port at Port au Prince, was delegated to the task of discharging their cargoes in an organized manner. At the same time bluejackets from the United States ship Grebe was sent ashore to form an armed guard over food wagons passing from the wharves to the general warehouses from which relief is distributed. This latter emergency action was taken following yesterday's attempt by hungry citizens to wrest food from the handlers on the wharves.

Relief funds began to arrive today and the banks turned over considerable money for the government work. One of the unsolicited donations received was $531.50 from passengers and crew of the steamship San Lorenzo, from New York, collected on the ship during her voyage to this port.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—It was said here tonight there were no indications that the new hurricane in the Caribbean, reported to be south of Haiti, would come this way.

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The liner Coamo, bearing the scars of her terrific struggle against annihilation in the hurricane that swept the Caribbean last week and spread disaster over the Island of Santo Domingo, arrived today from San Juan. She brought 253 passengers, 5 of whom were aboard the ship during the storm.

Capt. Thomas G. Evans, who has been with the line since 1894, said the storm was the worst he ever experienced. Covers were torn from lifeboats; skylights were ripped loose over the public rooms, and ports of the superstructure were shattered.

"We prayed," said Miss Frances Hart, of Paterson, N. J. "We found places on the lounges and remained there. Every time the ship went over we thought we were done for. It did not look as if we would ever come out of it alive."

The ship was surveyed at San Juan and her hull and engines found to be in perfect condition. A survey of the damage of the cabins and public rooms will be made today.

BOTH PARTIES FEEL HAPPY OVER MAINE

Fess Jubilant at Results; Shouse Declares He Is Also Satisfied.

PAST POLLS COMPARED

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Maine so-called barometric election brought the usual statements from Republican and Democratic headquarters yesterday but the consensus in political circles was that the less said about it from now on the better it would be for both sides.

The Democrats lost, so, of course, they can't go around bragging about the result and on the other hand, aside from the victory which was everywhere conceded to them, there was nothing heartening in the result for the Republicans.

As a matter of fact, their majority in the gubernatorial race would apparently not go over 16,000 as compared with a margin of 20,000 in 1926, 37,000 in 1924 and more than 28,000 in 1922.

The Republican senatorial candidate, Representative Wallace White, with his 30,000 margin, ran somewhat better than the normal Republican majority but he fell far short of the 48,000 majority which Senator Gould received over the Democratic candidate, Fulton J. Redman, in 1926.

Lesson From Election.

If any lesson at all was to be learned from the Maine election it was apathy of voters from which the Republicans might take some comfort as showing that the electorate is not so much wrought up. It did not seem that the total vote cast would total more than 150,000 while in 1926, there were 181,000 votes cast, in 1924, a president year, 253,907 and in 1922, 179,000.

President Hoover carried the State in 1928 by 98,754 and Coolidge carried it four years earlier by 96,476, but neither of these figures can be made applicable to an off-eyar election.

Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, in his jubilant statement said that the outcome was a "stinging rebuke to the Democrats in their efforts to make a campaign issue out of the distress of the people in a world-wide economic depression."

"The Democratic theory to the contrary, the American electorate is an intelligent one. It knows that the President is no more responsible for a world-wide depression than he is for the drought and the electorate of Maine has registered its intelligence on this proposition."

Some Figures Overlooked.

Overlooking the shortened margin by which Gov. William Tudor Gardiner was reelected, the senator took only into account White's good senatorial run and described the whole as the greatest Republican victory in Maine "in 24 years with a single exception," presumably Gould's victory in 1926.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic headquarters, said that a Republican victory in Maine was like a Democratic victory in the South and that if the Republicans were satisfied he certainly was.

The truth is believed to be that the Republicans must feel a little disappointed at the result because they went to great pains for a greater victory.

They sent a galaxy of speakers into the State headed by Mr. Fess himself. On the other hand the Democrats did not turn a hand.

Ringing Victory Sought.

The Republicans naturally wanted a ringing victory for its psychological effect. Political observers have attached no importance at all to Maine's so-called barometric characteristics in an off-year campaign.

And in this particular campaign Maine is generally recognized to be in pretty much of a class by itself. Neither the depression nor the drought has stricken it. Off the beaten paths, up there in the woods by itself, it has been getting along fairly well.

Thus Mr. White's unusual margin over his Democratic opponent is explained by his personal popularity and, conversely, Gardiner's considerably lesser victory reflects his comparative unpopularity. It had been understood that the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Edward C. Morgan, jr., was giving him some trouble over purely State issues, in which water power figured prominently.

Perhaps much more popular interest is concerned with how Senator Cole Blease, of South Carolina, and Gov. Huey Long, of Louisiana green pajamas fame, fared yesterday.

History of Maine Vote.

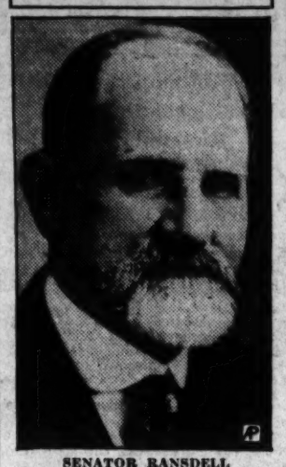
Mr. Shouse pointed out that only once since the Civil War have the Democrats carried Maine, in 1912, and only twice in 70 years have they elected governors, in 1910 and 1914, in the latter year of which there were Republican and Progressive tickets in the field just as in the presidential campaign of 1912.

It might be significant, though, that Mr. Shouse took occasion to point out that he had never claimed the Democrats would capture control of the House, "but the reports that have come into headquarters would fully justify such prediction, as well as the certainty of large Senate gains."

In so far as he was concerned, he said he stood on his prediction that "we shall have a net gain of at least 40 House seats and at least five Senate seats."

This would not presage a presidential victory in 1932 such as control of the House would.

MAY LOSE SEAT



SENATOR RANSDELL

BYRNES IS LEADING BLEASE IN RUN-OFF

RANSDELL FALLS BEHIND

State's 1,422 precincts gave former Representative James F. Byrnes 109,075 votes to 103,416 for Senator Cole L. Blease in the run-off primary for the Democratic nomination to the United States Senate.

In 1,294 precincts in the gubernatorial race, Ira C. Blackwood, Spartanburg solicitor, had 106,328 votes to 105,620 for Olin D. Johnston.

Long Appears Winner.

New Orleans, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—On the face of approximately one-third of the total precincts in Louisiana, Gov. Huey P. Long apparently has won the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate over the incumbent, Senator Joseph E. Ransdell.

Couzens Ahead for Senate.

Detroit, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Senator James Couzens took an early lead which increased as additional precincts were reported tonight in his race with Chase S. Osborn, former governor, for the Republican nomination to succeed himself in the Senate.

When 388 of the State's 3,317 precincts had been tabulated, Couzens was 8,000 votes ahead of his opponent, representing a steadily growing gain from earlier tabulations, in the first of which Osborn was ahead. In these precincts Couzens' total was 39,833, while Osborn had polled 31,721.

While Couzens' lead was growing, the man who first put him into the Senate by gubernatorial appointment, Alex J. Groesbeck, was trailing in his own race to return to the governor's chair. In 422 precincts Wilber M. Brucker, attorney general, had 55,433 votes and Groesbeck 32,864.

Jeffries Far Behind.

The third candidate, Judge Edward Jeffries, was trailing with 5,628.

The reports in both races were from out-State precincts, late closing of polls in Detroit holding back returns here.

In the Sixth Congressional District, scene of a strong fight on Representative Grant M. Hudson because of his advocacy of the prohibition laws, Hudson took an early lead, with 2,838 votes in 20 of the 690 precincts, while his principal opponent, Seymour H. Person, backed by "wets," had 2,016. In this race, however, industrial centers and a portion of Detroit, where Person's greatest strength was claimed to lie, had not been heard from.

The principal issue in the senatorial contest was the "party irregularity" of Senator Couzens, while purely local issues were involved in the gubernatorial race.

Shaw Has Early Lead.

Denver, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—For the Republican nomination for United States Senator, 57 precincts out of 1,582 in Colorado give William V. Hodges 3,105, George H. Shaw 3,900.

Bowles Trails in Detroit.

Winant Leads in New Hampshire.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Former Gov. John G. Winant was leading for Republican gubernatorial nomination, when returns from 96 of 294 towns and city wards in today's primaries were tabulated.

The vote was:

John G. Winant, Concord, 6,145.

Dr. Hugh K. Moore, Berlin, 1,409.

In the Democratic gubernatorial contest Frederick E. Small, former mayor of Rochester, had 957 votes against 741 for Albert W. Noone, of Peterboro.

Noone, also running for the Democratic United States senatorial nomination, was trailing Amos N. Blandin, of Bath, in 45 voting districts. The vote was Blandin, 456; Noone, 442.

Delaware G.O.P. Names Hastings and Houston

Dover, Del., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The Republicans of Delaware in State convention today nominated Senator Daniel O. Hastings for the short and long terms for United States senator and renominated for a fourth term in Congress Representative Robert G. Houston.

The convention adopted a platform which included a plank for the observance and enforcement of laws and the indorsement of President Hoover for creating the Law Enforcement Investigation Commission.

Six Killed, 10 Injured In Greek Harbor Fire

Athens, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The latest official information says that six persons were killed and ten injured in the Piraeus Harbor fire which destroyed fifteen sailing vessels and one 1,000-ton steamer last night.

The fire started in an explosion aboard one of the sailing ships filled with oil. Flaming fragments flew to the other boats.

U. S. AWAITS MOVES OF ARGENTINA, PERU

PROPERTY IS PROTECTED

The Hoover administration will await developments before extending formal recognition to the military junta governments set up in Peru and Argentina.

Ambassador Dearing was hurried back to his post in Lima following the overthrow of the Legula government, but not with the idea of extending formal recognition immediately. He will remain at his post and deal informally for the present with officials of the new government.

In Argentina Ambassador Bliss will follow a similar course while the political situation resulting from the overthrow of President Irigoyen crystallizes.

High officials of the American Government have refrained from discussion of the revolutionary upheavals in either of the South American republics, although watching developments in Argentina and Peru and in other troubled countries with the keenest interest.

U. S. Interference Avoided.

The policy of the Hoover administration seems to be to avoid interference of any kind so long as American and other foreign interests are adequately protected.

Months may pass before Ambassadors Dearing and Bliss present letters of credence to the new governments in Lima and Buenos Aires. Meanwhile the governments in power will be dealt with on a de facto basis.

LEADERS IN UPRISING ARE PUBLICLY SHOT

Senator's Brother Seized.

Antonio Molinari, a brother of a former senator, was arrested tonight. He was charged with being a prominent member of the "Klan Radical," or Irigoyenist faction, held responsible by the government for last night's disturbances.

Advices from La Plata tonight said that Gen. Giordano, who was named military chief of Buenos Aires Province, had asked Gen. Uributu to send in a civilian interventor to govern the district.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Advices received tonight said that former President Hipolito Irigoyen of the Argentine Republic, was removed from barracks at La Plata, where he has been a prisoner, to the Argentine warship Belgrano. It was understood also that other Irigoyenist leaders, including a majority of the deputies for the former president's party, were taken on board with him.

Taken Aboard Under Guard.

The aged former president and his companions were taken to the warship under heavy guard.

Buenos Aires was quiet tonight after the gunfire of last evening, with most shops and business houses open, but heavy guards were posted and a rigorous censorship was in effect.

Because of disorders centering around the Buenos Aires postoffice last night, no mail was received here from the Argentine capital today.

Former Foreign Minister Oyanharte also fled the country and is expected in Montevideo tomorrow.

Auto Hits Parked Car, Hurting Three

Two women and a man were injured yesterday afternoon when a car operated, police charge, by Robert A. Smith, 2420 Fourth street northeast, struck a machine parked on Canal road near Thirty-seventh street northwest. Charles F. Taylor, of 4228 Chutten street southeast, owner of the parked car, was tinkering with the engine when Smith's machine collided with it. Taylor was hurled to the ground and later treated at Georgetown Hospital for bruises about the chest and lacerations of the scalp and right arm.

Mrs. Minnie Taylor, his wife, was bruised about the right leg, and Doris L. Sullivan, 8, received lacerations of the head. All were discharged from the hospital after first aid treatment had been given.

Three More Join Citizens' Group

Burroughs Organization to Name New Officers Next Month.

Three new members were elected, by-laws were adopted and several matters of busines discussed at a meeting of the Burroughs Citizens Association held last night in the John Burroughs School, at Eighteenth and Monroe streets northeast.

The new members were Henry C. Waterman, Edward Gertsch and Mrs. Ayla B. Stickel. The association decided to request two aditional tennis courts for the Burroughs Recreational Park, which now has three. Stop signs at Eighteenth and Monroe streets and at Twentieth and Monroe streets were also urged.

William E. Rabenhorst presided. The annual election of officers will take place at the next meting, scheduled for the second Monday in October.

Students in Croatia Burn Flag of Italy

Zagreb, Croatia, Jugoslavia, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Students, demonstrating today as a protest against the execution of four Slovens by the Italian government at Triest, Saturday, dragged an Italian flag through the mud today and burned it in the hospital square. The populace applauded in streets and from windows.

Fire Attacks Steamer At Hudson River Dock

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Fire raged in a hold of the new motor ship Northern Prince for nearly an hour today as she lay at her dock in the Hudson River, but later was reported under control

No estimate of the damage to cargo was available. The Northern Prince has a displacement of 17,500 tons and is 517 feet long. She was launched by the Furness Line in 1929.

Divers Unable to Get Treasure.

Brest, France, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Italian divers operating off the coast were unable to reach the sunken steamship Egypt today in their quest for treasure. The sea was calm but ocean currents were so strong that divers found the work undersea dangerous. The party returned to Brest on the salvage ship Artiglio.

Two Kidnap Manager; Make Him Unlock Safe

Cleveland, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Two robbers kidnaped Edward Kells, 23, department manager of the Telling-Boelle Vernon Co., forced him to open the company's safe and escaped with $11,588 early today.

Kells told police he was about to go home after visiting a young woman when the robbers halted him and ordered him to drive to the company's headquarters. They forced him to open the safe, blindfolded him and fled after ordering him to give them ten minutes' start.

The robbery was conducted so quietly that it was unnoticed either by the watchman or a crowd which gathered in front of the place after an automobile accident.

CABINET OF PANAMA HAS DRASTIC SHIFT

HELD ASSEMBLY VOID

Panama City, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The Republic of Panama had a newly overhauled cabinet tonight after President Florencio Harmodio Arosemena swore in three new ministers replacing a trio that had resigned. The new members of the cabinet are:

Justice, Dr. Daniel Ballen, formerly chief justice of the supreme court.

Agriculture and public works, Dr. Carlos Ycaza Arosemena.

Finance, Dr. Nicolas Victoria Jis.

Resignations of Minister of Agriculture Luis Felipe Clement and Minister of Public Education Jeptha B. Duncan today clarified the political atmosphere and was believed to have averted a crisis menacing for many hours the life of the administration of President Arosemena.

The climax of the political deadlock came when the cabinet requested Duncan's resignation. Duncan presented his resignation to Enrique Linares, manager of the National Bank, who sent it to the president. The pressure on Duncan grew out of his newspaper campaign against the assembly which, he had charged, was unconstitutional. The education minister said his own strict adherence to the constitution prevented him from resigning without first being asked. Before writing out the paper he consulted Dr. Harmodio Arias, a prominent lawyer, on the constitutionality of his act.

Minister Clement told the Associated Press: "I resigned to help the country emerge from a political crisis. I thought over the matter last night and today reached my decision. My relations with the president today are more friendly than yesterday."

ALEXANDRIA DIVORCE RULES ARE TIGHTENED

mediately, specified that no uncontested divorce cases will be heard by a commissioner. Inasmuch as the number of contested divorce cases are very few, the rule virtually eliminates the work of commissioners, who served as the appointed representatives of the Circuit Court to hear these cases, take testimony wherever desired and make recommendations, which are filed with the court. It has been the custom for the judge on the bench to sign a decree if the findings were not challenged.

Judge McCarthy's second order specified that in all divorce cases filed hereafter in Alexandria he will require the sergeant of the city to make an investigation regarding the residence of the party whose residence there is the basis of jurisdiction and to file a report with the court.

During the sensational "divorce mill" scandal, testimony was given that persons seeking divorces in Alexandria obtained counsel at whose direction the applicants for divorce would pay to a certain rooming house operator a year's rent for the obvious purpose of conforming to the legal residence requirement, although actually residing elsewhere.

In his third court order, Judge McCarthy specified that the testimony given in divorce cases henceforth in Alexandria shall be taken in open court and transcribed by a court reporter approved by the court.

Judge McCarthy declined to comment on his three rulings, except to declare that he had discussed the matter in detail with various members of the Alexandria bar. He likewise declined to name the incident which led to his sweeping order.

Commonwealth's Attorney Albert Bryant, of Alexandria, also would make no comment on the orders, except to say that he had discussed the matter thoroughly with Judge McCarthy.

In Judge McCarthy's jurisdiction, the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit of Virginia, Arlington County for some time has had substantially the same rules, while in Fairfax and Prince William Counties circuit court no rules of this nature prevail.

Grand Jury Gets Census Aid's Case

Preston Hoyt Held After Hearing Before U. S. Commissioner.

Preston S. Hoyt, 30-year-old Census Bureau employe, was ordered held for action of the grand jury to answer a charge of forging the name of a fellow employe on the department's pay roll yesterday, following a hearing before United States Commissioner G. Lyle Hughes.

Little of the Government's case against Hoyt was revealed at the hearing. Mrs. C. B. Goodloe, pay-roll clerk at the department, however, identified Hoyt as the man who had obtained from her the pay of R. A. Winne, also an employe of the bureau. Hoyt specifically is charged with forging Winne's name on the pay roll, an act which is said to have netted him $59.

Hoyt's arrest came after the department was thrown into a furore several days ago when Winne appeared at the pay-roll window and failed to find his pay. Immediately pay of all workers was stopped while the Department of Justice conducted a probe. Agents say that Hoyt stepped from the pay line after receiving his pay, and entered another position when he obtained Winne's pay.

Hoyt denied he had on a white shirt on the day in question and declared that he was wearing a blue shirt on that day. This was the substance of his testimony.

Active Mind Learns Easily to Age of 50

Minneapolis, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—There is no reason why man can not learn as easily at 50 as at 15, Dr. Herbert Sorenson, of the University of Minnesota, has concluded.

He says his experiments show that the mind, like the body, remains efficient only so long as it is exercised. Up to the age of 50, he said, he was unable to find any decline in "learning power" for those actively engaged in study.

Police Negligent, Woman Is Freed

Failed to Stop Seized Beer From Fermenting So Judge Directs Verdict.

Negligence on the part of police yesterday caused a directed verdict in a liquor case.

Ethel Nash, 29 years old, of Four-and-One-Half street southwest near L street, was on trial before a jury in Police Court. It developed that the police had failed to place mercury tablets in the seized home brew to stop fermentation. Assistant United States Attorney Julian I. Richards, the prosecutor, immediately asked that the jury be directed to return a not guilty verdict, and his wishes were followed.

Miss Nash was arrested June 14 at her home and police allege they found 279 bottles of home brew. The defense contended that the brew did not come under the prohibition act when seized, but was allowed to ferment and become intoxicating because of police negligence.

57 Firemen Named For Honor Ranking

Efficiency Wins Pay Raise for 53 Privates and Four Sergeants.

Four sergeants and 53 privates of the Fire Department were placed on the honor roll of the department yesterday when the District Commissioners approved a list of men who are to receive $5 a month extra pay because of unusual efficiency and ability. The list was prepared by officers of the Fire Department and submitted to the Commissioners by George S. Watson, chief of the department. Those who were named are:

Laundry Trucks Robbed of Wash

Police Investigate Series of Thefts Which Are Reported by Drivers.

Laundry valued at more than $35 was reported stolen yesterday from a Palace Laundry truck which the driver, Roger Driver, had parked in the rear of 1825 New Hampshire avenue northwest while delivering other laundry in the neighborhood.

A Dupont Laundry driver, Dudley A. Stinson, of 1370 Kenyon street northwest, also reported to police that three bundles of laundry were taken from his truck while he was parked in front of 1634 Riggs place northwest yesterday morning. The total value of the clothing taken from his truck was given as $80.

It was stated at the Detective Bureau that a series of laundry robberies had been reported and that two headquarters detectives have been assigned to the cases.

Callahan Indicted In Narcotic Case

Man Under Suspended Five-Year Sentence Held in $10,000.

John C. ("Jack") Callahan was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act. Callahan is alleged to have illegally sold heroin to narcotic agents and was taken into custody on July 26 at a house on G street northwest near Fourth street. He was committed to jail in default of $10,000 bond by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Callahan is now under a five-year suspended sentence, following a plea of guilty to a narcotic charge several months ago. He also is under sentence on a liquor charge made against him at the time of his last arrest, agents alleging he had 2 gallons of liquor in his possession when apprehended.

So far no efforts to revoke his parole and carry out the execution of the five-year sentence has been made, and it is probable that no such move will be initiated until after his trial on the indictment returned yesterday.

New Low GAS RATE For HOUSE HEATING

With Automatic Gas Heating

You can throw away your coal shovel—junk your ash can—eliminate all fuel storage of any kind—make a single match your winter's kindling—tend furnace by the calendar, not by the clock—greatly lighten the daily housework—save rugs, paint and upholstery—do away with fluctuating temperatures—live in a warm house, sleep in a cool one—laugh at blizzards—enjoy winter and "let your pup be your furnace man."

BRYANT GAS HEATING

UNDER the new low rates the average customer who uses gas for home heating will pay 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. Those who live in larger than average size homes will get rates running as low as 56 cents.

The new low rate definitely puts Automatic Gas Heating within the means of the average man. And coming as it does at the beginning of another heating season, there is no reason for further depriving yourself and your family of its full benefits.

The first step, if you have not already taken it, is to let our house heating department make, free of charge, a thorough survey of your heating requirements. They will provide you with a reliable estimate of cost—the dependability of which can be attested by hundreds of present users..

You do not necessarily have to scrap your present heating equipment. It can be converted into a gas-burning boiler at a very reasonable figure. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose by calling National 8280, Branch 73 or 76. Find out the facts of automatic gas home heating today!

GERMANY'S FOREIGN POLICY EMPHASIZED

French Forces in Saar and Control of Tanganyika Before League Council.

BRIAND PLAN IS LAUDED

Geneva, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, today gave the League of Nations council two proofs that Germany has a vigorous foreign policy despite the tangled political situation at home.

Dr. Curtius' moves were made during discussion of the Saar district, former German territory, now administered by the League of Nations, and Tanganyika, former German South African colony lost by the World War.

Tanganyika is now administered by Great Britain under a mandate from the League of Nations. Regarding the status of both the Saar and Tanganyika, German public sentiment from time to time has been much agitated. A strong faction has steadfastly hoped that they would be returned to German control.

Assembly Opens Today.

Dr. Curtius announced to the council that he would have something to say later—presumably tomorrow when the league assembly opens—about Great Britain's plan to unite Tanganyika and her adjacent colonies, Uganda and Kenya, under common administrations as regards customs duties and fiscal management.

A speech made here recently by Ludwig Kastly, former German member of the mandates commission, and former German colonial banker, indicated clearly that Germany regards the British proposal as to Tanganyika as direct violation of the terms of the mandate.

A few minutes after the Tanganyika incident the question of a defense force in the Saar district came before the council. This force consists of approximately 200 French and 50 Belgians. The council was considering a proposal for reduction of this defense force.

French Forces in Saar.

Foreign Minister Briand of France suggested that the procedure was as yet not outlined clearly enough to permit the French and German representatives to draft a resolution of agreement.

Dr. Curtius retorted that since the Rhineland was evacuated he believed there was no longer any reason for the French to maintain any force at all in the Saar. The German minister firmly urged that the council should decide immediately to suppress the defense force.

Briand rejoined that his suggestion was not a pretext for maintaining a French force in the Saar, and that the French government sought no such pretext. He said he thought some force necessary to insure freedom of railway service in the district.

The council finished its immediate agenda today and will not meet again for several days until the league assembly shall have developed further business for it to consider.

Italy Believed Satisfied.

Announcement of his plans was taken as indicating that Italy is satisfied with results so far obtained, and as meaning that there is no pressing question on the program that the Italian foreign minister wants to take up with his colleagues here.

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.). — The plans of Aristide Briand, minister of foreign affairs of France, for a United States of Europe "is a possibility in 1940," Dr. Walter Simons, former acting President of Germany and former president of the German supreme court, declared today at a luncheon given in his honor by the board of trade for German-American commerce.

Favors Briand Plan.

A great many obstacles to the plan must first be surmounted, chief among them the "English difficulty and the Russian difficulty," Dr. Simons said, but none of the obstacles are insurmountable.

England, he asserted, is more Asiatic, Australian and African than it is European, and it will not join any "pan-European plan without the consent of its dominions."

The "Russian difficulty," he said, lies in the contradiction between the present Soviet economic system and that of western Europe. Each state in Europe, too, is trying to set up artificial prosperity by tariff walls which probably will have to be eliminated in favor of "more natural" economics based on the products of the country involved.

Dr. Simons, however, indicated that he was in favor of the Briand plan and praised the French minister for bringing his idea "out of the dream stage into a practical possibility."

WILLEBRANDT AID ASKED IN BEER ROW

Brooklyn and Long Island. There is only a very small group of agents now operating in that area. The suggestion is therefore made that the men whose time is now being employed constantly watching and guarding these permittees, some or all of whom may be acting in good faith, can much better be used in that territory for the present.

Didn't Sound Like Lowman.

"You are therefore directed to withdraw the agents now performing guard duty at the cereal beverage plants against which no charges are pending."

This didn't sound much like the tone of Lowman's talk, but I knew what it meant. And I still meant to keep the beer stopped if possible.

After thinking the matter over I called up Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, then Assistant Attorney General, on the telephone, and told her all about what had occurred. When I had finished she told me that Mr. Lowman had just talked to her on the telephone and that the men had been ordered out. She told me she had told him she thought such a step unwise and that Lowman replied that it had already been done and could not be stopped. I told her it had not been done and I was not at all sure that I would do it.

I asked her to intervene, but she insisted that she could not interfere in administrative matters in another department unless a crime had been committed, but so far as possible she would play the game with me to the limit. I insisted that this order would destroy the morale of my men, and she said that the morale of my men must not be destroyed even if I had to tell them a lie.

New Ground for Fight.

In order to gain time and to complete the record, I wrote to Oftedal, asking whether the men should be taken out at once, notwithstanding the agreement that they were to remain until September 1. And the next day I found new ground on which to fight back.

Samuel S. Koenig, chairman of the New York County Republican committee, came in to see me about a patronage matter, and as Lowman had said that the politicians in New York were complaining about the dryness, I decided to tell Koenig the brewery story.

"Sit down a minute," I said as he was leaving.

First, I told him about the troubles that a certain Joseph Steinberg and Matthew Quay Glazer were causing me, backed up by Senator Curtis in Washington, about alcohol permits. I expect to tell more about these gentlemen later.

"Steinberg is one of my boys," Koenig answered, "but if he keeps this up he will make trouble for Curtis, and I'm going to tell him to lay off prohibition."

I could see plainly that Koenig was angry about the matter. Then I asked him who Hill was. Mrs. Willebrandt had mentioned him over the telephone, said that Lowman had told her Hill was pressing him because of the dryness in New York. Koenig answered that William H. Hill was chairman of the Hoover-Curtis Club in New York and that he came from Binghamton and was a great friend of Lowman's. (Hill is now State Republican leader.)

Koenig Hears More.

Again I detained Mr. Koenig as he started to go and told him about what had occurred in Lowman's office in Washington and the Assistant Secretary's remarks about "parched throats" and "tongues hanging out."

Koenig was silent for a minute.

Then he told me that two weeks previously he himself had been approached by one of the breweries and had been offered an exceedingly large campaign contribution if he would get the men out of that brewery.

"I told them they were in the wrong room," said Mr. Koenig, lifting his hands with an expressive gesture.

"I wonder if all the money the breweries are willing to pay will go into the campaign fund," I remarked.

Koenig was getting really angry. He pounded on my desk.

"I'm damned tired of it!" he declared.

It was the same old story, he asserted, and he was beginning to see that he was playing the political game the wrong way, that every time he did a favor at the request of somebody else some one got "a piece of change" for it.

Mr. Koenig started out, but paused at the door.

"$200,000 Would Be Cheap."

"Just for your information," he said, "I want you to know that the breweries could well afford to pay any amount of money to get your men out. Two hundred thousand dollars would be cheap for the job, and that would be a small price to pay if the breweries could open up again."

Then he left.

The next day, Wednesday, Mr. Lowman called me on the telephone from Washington and asked what I meant by disclosing a confidential conversation I had had with him in his office in Washington. He said it was all over New York.

I replied that I could scarcely believe that, as the only one in New York I had told was Koenig, and he wanted to know what Koenig had to do with it.

"You told me that the politicians in New York were complaining," I said, "and in consequence I felt privileged to talk to a politician about it."

"And what's more," I added, "I'm going to exert every effort possible to keep my men in these breweries."

Mr. Lowman informed me that he had heard about what took place in his office from the Republican national committee, so evidently Koenig had lost no time.

"I thank you very much, sir," he said, and hung up.

"Convey My Compliments."

About fifteen minutes later my telephone rang again, and it was Mr. Lowman. He said that the letter I had written asking for information had just been brought to his attention by Mr. Oftedal and that Oftedal was writing me more explicitly. And then he added:

"Convey my compliments to Mr. Koenig."

I could not get a word in edgeways for a few minutes, but I finally succeeded in telling him that I had information that a considerable sum of money was to be passed when the men were taken out of the breweries.

"That puts a different phase on the matter," Mr. Lohman said, and he wanted to know who would get the money. I said I did not know at present, but I was investigating.

"I am trying to protect you," I added.

"I don't need any protection," Mr. Lowman replied.

"I don't want you to be an innocent party to such a deal," I remarked, and then Mr. Lowman said he thought, perhaps, he had better come to New York.

Peremptory Order Received.

Mr. Lowman was very pleasant during the latter part of this telephone talk. He said he hoped I would discover who was to be paid.

Notwithstanding this talk with Mr. Lowman, in which I advised him of the money situation, the following day, Thursday, I received a letter from Mr. Oftedal in which I was peremptorily ordered to take my men out of the breweries at once "for the reasons stated" in the letter of August 11. I replied simply for the purpose of completing the record, and referred to the danger of the passage of money.

Later in the day Mr. Oftedal called again from Washington and said I had better come to Washington so that we could get together, but for me not to let Mr. Lowman know I was coming.

I met Oftedal at the bureau at about 9:15 the following morning and he informed me that after he had talked to me on the phone Mr. Lowman had asked him where I would be the next day and he had had to tell Lowman I would be in Washington. So Mr. Lowman knew I was there.

While we were talking Mr. Lowman called up and told Mr. Oftedal to come with me to his office.

When I entered his office Mr. Lowman shook hands with me. Then Mr. Oftedal gave him my letter in which I conveyed the information to Washington that considerable money might be passed when the men were taken out of the breweries and, after reading it, Mr. Lowman said that was "baby talk."

"Why Don't You Resign?"

Mr. Lowman kept up a string of conversation and then, finally, demanded to know if I intended to obey orders issued to me.

I replied that I would do exactly as I had stated in my letter.

Then Mr. Lowman, turning to Mr. Oftedal, fairly shouted:

"I want charges brought against this man if he does not obey my orders." He repeated this several times.

"You don't seem to like your job in New York," he remarked, turning to me; "why don't you resign?"

"No," I replied, "I'll not resign. Why don't you fire me?"

He made no reply to this, but ranted around the room for some time.

Mr. Oftedal did not enter into the discussion in any way. I felt that he might have at least supported me, but I had to fight it out alone.

There was a lot more talk and Mr. Oftedal and I finally left after I had called Mr. Lowman a "silly old man."

A Phone Call From Lowman.

When we were outside I suggested to Mr. Oftedal that we go to the Department of Justice and he agreed, but told the driver to first go down Pennsylvania avenue so that Mr. Lowman would not suspect where we were going.

We found that Mrs. Willebrandt had gone to Topeka, but Howard Jones and Norman J. Morrison were there. Mr. Oftedal showed Jones and Morrison the correspondence that had taken place and we related what had occurred in Mr. Lowman's office.

While we were talking Mr. Oftedal's office called him and said that Mr. Lowman was trying to get him. I suggested that Oftedal call Mr. Lowman at once, and as though he were in his own office.

Mr. Oftedal went into Mrs. Willebrandt's office to do this, and when he returned he told us that Mr. Lowman had tried to get him to say that there had been no such conversation last Friday as I had reported; that he had never mentioned "hanging tongues and parched throats," and that he had never in any conversation with me or Oftedal suggested that I ease up on enforcement in New York.

In my presence Mr. Oftedal told Jones and Morrison the whole story and admitted in their presence that what I had said about the conversation that had taken place was true.

I then asked Jones to have two Department of Justice agents assigned to investigate and try to find out if any money was passing. Jones wired Mrs. Willebrandt, in Topeka, asking this authority.

Notwithstanding all this fuss I did not, however, take my men out of the breweries until September, and I was never brought up on charges as Mr. Lowman directed.

Plane Crash Kills Seven in Yucatan

Two Women and Child Are Among Victims as Mexican Army Ship Falls.

Mexico City, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Five persons were killed and two fatally injured in a crash of the Sikorsky amphibian Mayab 2 miles from Merida, Yucatan, today. The plane burned after it fell.

Those killed were the pilot, Capt. Jorge Llerenas, of the Mexican army; Salvador Flores Cosio, Cosio's wife, sister-in-law and small daughter. The fatally injured were another pilot, Alonzo Reyes Flores, and Ermilio Cebada.

The meager details which reached here said that the plane suddenly went into a spin 2 miles from the Merida landing field. Flores and Cebada escaped cremation because they were thrown clear. Capt. Llerenas was one of three Mexicans who took the Mayab to Costa Rica last May to return the body of Col. Pablo Sidar, Mexico's air hero killed in an attempt at a nonstop flight to Buenos Aires.

Mrs. M. T. Ramsey Tells How Cuticura Healed Eczema.

"My hand began itching and burning and eczema broke out in little red pimples. It was so severe that I scratched and caused eruptions. I could not put my hand in water or do my regular work, and it just kept spreading. The irritation was so bad that I could not sleep.

"A friend advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. They stopped the burning and itching after the first application, and after using two cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. M. T. Ramsey, Rt. 1, Toccoa, Ga.

Are you getting old before your time?

If so, this good tonic will help you regain your red-blood-cells. You should know how very important this is to your health and happiness.

When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are not yourself—60% is dangerous

TIME is precious when your health is slipping away from you!

Failure to take notice of Nature's distress signals inevitably leads to more serious trouble. That tired feeling, loss of appetite, loss of weight, paleness, pimples, boils, and perhaps nervousness, are but symptoms due to diminishing red-blood-cells.

If your vitality is slipping away from you S.S.S. should be your safeguard. Its successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction.

Take S.S.S. before meals. Millions of people have found this the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." S.S.S. will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Your skin will clear up! Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated!

Health restored

Mrs. Florence Allen, Detroit, Mich., writes: "S.S.S. improved my appetite and restored my lost weight. I think it wonderful. My greatest surprise was that there could be anything which could make me feel and look so much better in so short a time. Work is now a pleasure."

How to recognize a low blood count

Blood is life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

You do know they are vital to health. If the tendency is downward and continues, a much lowered count becomes dangerous and ANEMIA usually results.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S.—the great blood Tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. Your skin clears up, your appetite is restored, your body is strengthened, invigorated—you feel and look like yourself again!

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is responsible for body weakness, loss of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples.

CANADA'S TARIFF PROGRAM.

The Canadian Parliament met in special session this week to "deal with exceptional economic conditions" that have resulted in unemployment. The chief business of the session will be revision of the tariff law in accordance with the views of the Conservative party which gained a substantial majority in the July election. Details of the Conservatives' program have not yet been revealed, but in general they plan to reserve the Canadian market for Canadian producers wherever they find an economic advantage in doing so.

In the United States this move is interpreted by those seeking to discredit the administration as retaliation against the Smoot-Hawley act. But the Conservatives disclaim any such intention. They believe that a protective policy will work to the best interests of Canada. They are aware of the achievements of American industry under a system of protection, and they are complimenting Congress by following its example. There is no more hostility or antagonism in this program than there was in the enactment of the new United States' tariff.

A year and a half of discussion of protection in the United States, followed by enactment of the tariff law, has not persuaded Canada that high tariffs are the road to ruin. Instead of listening to the calamity howlers on this side of the border, Canada is going quietly about the business of adjusting its own tariff. The arguments that converted the Canadian people to protectionism are precisely the same as those enunciated by the Republican party in this country. It is absurd to suppose that the Canadians would be content to watch their neighbors grow prosperous by giving a preference to home industry without trying to apply the same methods. The majority in both Canada and the United States realize that encouragement and protection of domestic enterprise is absolutely essential to give employment to a great nation of workers.

Trade between the United States and Canada is greater than that between any other two nations in this hemisphere. Under the new tariff policies each country will reserve for its own producers those markets which they can best supply. But Canada needs innumerable products that it does not produce, and the United States must draw upon Canada for many commodities that are deficient in the States. This trade is not affected by tariff changes and it will continue to expand. The new industries that Canada plans to foster will no doubt inaugurate an era of prosperity in that country. The United States will rejoice iff Canada's prosperity, as a good neighbor should. Moreover, Canada's progress means a larger commerce with the United States.

EUROPE'S STEEL CARTEL.

The reported collapse of the European steel cartel should occasion no surprise. It was inevitable that this price-fixing scheme should have collapsed as soon as the world faced one of its periodical economic emergencies. Delegates from the four member countries, namely, Germany, France, Belgium and Luxembourg, will meet the latter part of the week in Liege, when an attempt will be made to keep alive the cartel by creation of a series of minor cartels for the release of products within the framework of the major organization itself. But even though this may be accomplished, the revivification will be but temporary. The death knell of the steel cartel was sounded in July, when bar and hoop iron and plates were released from cartel price control, and the final pulse beats are evidenced in the present mass struggle of the membership to unload stock on hand at whatever price the market will bring.

The trouble with the cartel is that it binds all of its participants to the level of the least efficient producer. When business is good the efficient producer does not mind being bound to sell his output at a price that enables the least efficient producer to show a profit. When orders slacken, however, the efficient producer invariably desires to reduce prices in an effort to stimulate purchasing. Then the cartel becomes a great disadvantage.

The European steel cartel is opposed by the British steel industry, among others. When the British mills began to cut prices beneath the cartel level and the more efficient producers were not able to make similar cuts the cartel collapsed.

The present difficulties of the steel cartel should point a lesson to other European industrial groups that are now toying with the cartel idea. If it were possible to combine all the similar industries of Europe into vast trusts, they might control prices. But the nations of Europe will not generally cooperate. All-inclusive cartels can not be created. As a result, the least little storm on the economic sea results in a wreck. Meanwhile, the competing companies or groups have gained a firm foothold in the market.

HELP SANTO DOMINGO!

Santo Domingo's desperate condition arouses the pity of the world. It is a city of dead and injured, with houseless thousands wandering about starving and in rags. The feeding of the disorganized populace is a giant's task, and it is not surprising that famished crowds moved en masse to take food from incoming vessels and were only held back by soldiery. Hundreds of injured persons are infected with gangrene, and the medical forces hastily assembled are doing their utmost to prevent an outbreak of typhus. The smell of burning human flesh hangs over the city and harbor. Large vessels are prevented from reaching the city because the harbor, formed by the Ozama River, is a raging torrent. Airplanes are taking in medical supplies, but it is difficult to get sufficient food into the city. Supplies of clothing and building material must wait.

President Trujillo has been given dictatorial powers by the Dominican Legislature, but he is handicapped by broken communications and lack of money. The government's treasury is empty. The local authorities are dependent upon outside help for supplies of all kinds. Aid has been tendered by several countries, but the total thus far contributed is wholly insufficient to meet the stricken city's needs.

The rescue of Santo Domingo from the dangers that threaten it will be a long and difficult task. It will cost much money. The government of Santo Domingo should be supplied with funds. The people who are able to work are engaged day and night. Quick and generous aid should be extended to the government, which is efficiently organized for rescue work.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY RESULTS.

Monday's primary resulted in a sweeping victory for Montgomery County's regular Democratic organization. The pre-primary campaign was acrimoniously contested, with the independent Democrats hurling insinuations and accusations upon the heads of the organization. The people of Montgomery County now have registered their preference for and their confidence in the regular Democratic organization, and it is to be hoped that the factions will bury their hatchets of war.

No good comes of factional political warfare. A party divided invites an onslaught from the opposition. Montgomery County is traditionally Democratic, but unless the party hangs together the way will be opened for a Republican victory. The county's self-styled independent Democrats should be able to read from the tabulated results of the election the futility of attempting to reform a party from without. Their chief hope lies in affiliating themselves closely with the organization, so that they can shape its policies from within.

Both factions fought a hard fight, but the result is sealed, and the exigencies of politics demand that disappointment and bitterness be submerged, to the end that the Democratic party may enter the autumn campaign with united ranks.

PERGLER, THE COMMUTER.

When an alien becomes an American citizen he is supposed to drop all political activities in his native land and confine his interests and attention to his duties as a citizen. Those who ignore this rule usually come to grief, either here or in the old country. No man can serve two masters or have a double allegiance without incurring severe criticism. The case of Charles Pergler now attracts attention, because of his rapid-fire changes of allegiance. Not so many days ago he was an American citizen and a professor of law in Washington, and now he is a full-fledged member of the Chamber of Deputies of Czechoslovakia.

Presumably when a Czech deputy takes the oath of office he gives allegiance to his country, and doubtless one who is not a citizen is barred from such an office. Therefore it is assumed that Mr. Pergler renounced his American citizenship, as he seems to have done once before when he was appointed Czech minister to Japan. At that time his right to hold office was challenged on the ground that he had expatriated himself, but he insisted that under the old Austrian law an appointment to office made the incumbent a citizen. He was relieved of his diplomatic post by President Masaryk for reasons not connected with the question of citizenship.

How many times will Mr. Pergler become an American citizen and then renounce it in order to indulge in politics abroad? His forswearing of allegiance to all foreign kings, princes, and potentates seems to depend upon some obscure rule of periodicity or system of cycles, like sun spots, panics, hurricanes and earthquakes. Naturally, neither Americans nor Czechs can be expected to keep track of these lightning changes, so it is not surprising to learn that Mr. Pergler's genuine conversion to the allegiance of his fathers is challenged at Prague. He is alleged there to be an American in disguise, while in this country he is apt to be looked upon as an enterprising commuter who becomes an American whenever he is unable to do better in the old country.

HEIRS TO THE BRITISH THRONE.

There is much ado in London about what seems to be a relatively simple question: Who would succeed to the throne following the Prince of Wales and his brother, the Duke of York, should no more prospective heirs be born into the royal family? The problem has been complicated by the birth of a second daughter to the Duke and Duchess of York. King George is reported to have asked his ministers whether it will be necessary for Parliament to amend the law of succession that has been in effect since the reign of William and Mary in 1700.

The controversy grew up soon after the second feminine claimant made her appearance at Glamis Castle a fortnight ago. Had the new arrival been a boy there would have been no such question for Englishmen to argue over. But the so-called act of settlement promulgated by King William III does not say whether the first daughter shall have preference over second or third daughters in succession to the throne. It is pointed out that when a peer dies leaving no son his daughters rank equally, regardless of age. Whether or not this rule should apply to the royal family is the question in dispute.

Since the oldest son is always given preference, and since there is a historical precedent for giving the eldest daughter similar distinction, the Englishmen who bring up this question seem to be indulging in that favorite sport of hairsplitting. But the British are sensitive to all questions relating to the royal succession, and Parliament may be called upon to amend the law so that Princess Elizabeth would precede her baby sister in the line of royal heirs.

The question is academic at this time, because the chances are remote that either of these children will reach the British throne. The Prince of Wales is reported to be seriously considering his own responsibility to marry and rear a family of heirs. In that event the succession would fall upon his children rather than upon those of the Duke of York. In the meantime it is possible that the young princesses might be presented with a brother who would take precedence over both of them, even if their father should become king. Nevertheless, such questions are dear to the heart of the British, and they may be expected to push the matter to a definite conclusion.

Al Capone is organizing a giant cooperative that won't come under jurisdiction of the Farm Board, and there is little hope that it will curb overproduction.

"PASS THE HIPPO, PLEASE"

From the London Times.

An American with vision is suggesting that more use might profitably be made of the hippopotamus. He sees no reason why the Great Lakes and the Mississippi should not house their share of such commodious monsters, and thinks any initial difficulties about temperature could be overcome with a little science on man's part and a little forbearance from the hippopotami. The great advantage claimed is the amount of meat that will be available. There is a lot on a hippopotamus, and housewives who have long ago decided that chickens yield too little meat for the price and that cheese is the best value, will have to revise their views about the butcher's shop.

That part of the hippopotamus which would make crackling if he were roasted like his relative the sucking pig might present some difficulties had not the chewing gum habit fortunately prepared the way and spread through the States a habit of patient mastication. Those who have delighted to jeer at chewers and sneer at the narrow lives that were spent with a single flavor in the mouth must regret their abuse today and recognize that the chewers were the pioneers. America may not be able to spread westward any longer, but there is still the call for the pioneering spirit, and nowhere more than in the field of dietetics.

The time has come to change gears and move into a stronger and more spacious range of foods. Something better suited to be food for record-breaking men than the mediocre sheep or cow can surely be devised with the help of modern science. In every direction of human achievement—be it tree-sitting or remaining in the air in an airplane—the records that have been set up seem to be about as much as human endurance can stand. There does not seem to be very much room for advance, at the present level of human capacity.

If it is really desired that these records shall be broken as repeatedly as possible—and there can be no two opinions about that—more care will have to be given to food. Men are proverbially what they eat, and the present records might in fairness to their holders be classified as the records for men reared on the present meats and vegetables. But there is nothing to suggest that a general movement toward a stronger menu will not yield exceedingly rich rewards in the record field. Nor does any creature suggest brighter hopes in this direction than the hippo. So many animals which might make powerful vicarious contributions to the world's records do not get a chance to do so. They are only eaten during emergencies, by people accustomed to other meat, and thinking, as is the human way, the more fondly of those other meats just because they are not available. But it is plainly no valid test. The besieged citizen who eats a rat or a cat, the explorer who eats hyena or crocodile, do not come with fresh minds to their meals and do not make sufficient allowance for the deadening influence of habit.

It is probable that if a new start were made and children were given a new animal diet from infancy there would be few complaints. At any rate the complaints would be no louder than are already habitually produced and disregarded in the matter of rice pudding and its near relatives. The gain would be one to make all cooks glad, for the truth is that our present meats do not satisfactorily fill the week. All the cunning in the world can not disguise the way the sheep, the cow and the pig troop round and round the stage like a Roman army and double and treble their parts. Putting to one side the great scientific interest and athletic value of new foods in making new and perhaps amazing men, the harassed housewife will hail the hippopotamus as her deliverer from the monotony and deceit that a restricted choice imposes upon her today.

GRIEF'S BURDENS.

The terrible burden of grief is this:
You must hide it wherever you go,
That longing vain for the one you miss
Is something you mustn't show.

"Be brave! Be brave!" is the constant plea
Of stranger, neighbor and friend,
"Come, walk life's pleasenter paths with me
And soon will your sorrows end!"

And they bid you to laugh and they bid you to sing,
As you did in your happier years,
For mirth is so fragile and frail a thing
It is easily marred by tears.

That wherever they chance to go,
They must keep a smile and a merry air,
And never their grief must show.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

FIND a young man who has lived since early childhood with no companions, instructors or confidantes except "old maid" sisters or aunts, and nine times in ten you have a youth without the traits and qualities that distinguish a manly man.

He is an unnatural youth because his training has been unnatural. It is the nature of a boy to live much among his own kind, competing with them, confiding in them, learning from them, and to interfere with his natural way of life is to invite a penalty—as all violation of nature invites a penalty.

This is a truism known to all people capable of thought, yet many parents forget or ignore it and handicap their boys by interfering with nature to gratify their selfish love.

It is the nature of all young things to develop independence when they are able to take care of themselves. Some of them venture abroad reluctantly and must be pushed from the nest by their wiser parents, but all alike are required by nature to fend for themselves when they are strong enough to justify weaning.

They are made dependent on their own wit and strength before they are mature, for experience in self-reliance is necessary to their proper development.

What is true of wild creatures is equally true of boys. A boy cannot develop strength of character without schooling in self-reliance any more than a bird can develop strength of wing while in the nest, and to keep a boy tied to apron strings when he is old enough to believe himself a man is to deny him opportunity to become manly.

Boys have been denied an education because their blind parents, still thinking of them as infants, could not trust them away from home. Countless others have faced life without self-confidence or courage or initiative because they were kept too long on a leading string.

You can't interfere with Nature's scheme without sacrificing some of her benefits. As a boy forbidden to fight in defense of his rights will become a man easily cowed, so a boy denied experience in self-reliance will become a man easily led.

You can't "save" a boy from the world by keeping him too long on a tether. If he can't be trusted out of your sight now, keeping him under guard certainly won't teach him to be trustworthy.

The canary isn't strengthened by experience, and when it is turned out something gets it.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

Dear Sir: To the races at Newport in your own yacht!

With your own private signal flying from the masthead of this palatial all-steel Diesel Yacht, the pleasure of your visit to Newport is assured. It is the smartest craft of the season. A Gyro Stabilizer eliminates the roll, enabling you to view these important international races in comfort.

She's ready for you and your guests to step aboard—with the captain awaiting your commands.

Unfortunately there is only one such craft available. It might be well therefore to wire or telephone for complete plans and photographs.

May I have the pleasure of hearing from you? Very truly yours,

HENRY J. GIELOW, INC.

* * * *

Henry J. Gielow, Inc.

Dear sirs or madams: Your kind letter received, and I can't tell you how glad I was to hear from you. It was great news to learn all about the palatial Diesel yacht, as you were the first person to mention it to me. I always like to hear about yachts, especially when they are all-steel. When a man has an all-steel yacht he has got something and I have always told the folks that if I ever bought a yacht it would have to be that kind.

* * * *

My idea is that when you buy a yacht you want something that will give you good wear and not begin to unravel and get shoddy after a couple of seasons. Not that I am knocking people with wooden yachts. Wood is all right if you like it, I suppose, but the doors and windows swell in damp weather and it is hard to open and close them.

* * * *

What I like particularly about this boat about which you have so kindly written me is the fact it will have my own private signal flying from the masthead. What is the sense of having your own yacht if you don't have your private signal? I have some friends who just put up a pennant with "Excuse My Dust." "Official Guest, Canada" or "Ocean Beach Bids You Welcome" on it, but it doesn't mean anything. If you have a private signal flying, then people who amount to anything can look in the code book and get your right name and business.

* * * *

And another thing—unless you have a private signal you will not get the distinction of being shot at by Coast Guard. The Coast Guard only fires on yachts of prominent people with private signals. I am no fool when it comes to appreciating newspaper publicity, and I can't tell you how much your remark about the private signal impresses me.

* * * *

I want a few more particulars, though, about its being "the smartest craft of the season." Can you guarantee this? I wouldn't want to take it and have my friends arrive with me at the yacht races and find Vincent Astor or some of the Fleischmanns or Du Ponts had something just as smart. You would have to put something in the bill of sale that if any other yacht outsmarted me I could get my money back.

* * * *

I like the idea of the gyro stabilizer. You have got to have something like that on any boat, as anybody is apt to want a few drinks now and then.

* * * *

Well, anyway, I want to thank you again for dropping me a line on the matter, and to urge that you send me photos and floor plans, &c. What I want to know about especially is whether she has an electric icebox and whether an ice pick and shaker goes with her. Also, could you dig me up a yachting hat and a pair of white pants?

Yours very sincerely,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

P. S.—Please send me a photo of the captain who is awaiting my commands, as I would not want to step aboard and discover he has the kind of a face I could not sail with.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Thinks the French Fliers Should Have Landed in Washington, Rather Than in New York.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is one feature in connection with the splendid achievement of Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte which I should like to bring to the attention of the world and his wife.

Charles Lindbergh, unwittingly representing the American people, left this country and landed in the capital city of the French republic. Coste and Bellonte, presumably representing the French people and returning Lindbergh's visit of 1927, left that country and landed—not in the Capital City of the American republic.

"Why?" I ask myself; and can find but two possible reasons. (Perhaps other Post readers can supply additional ones.) These are:

1. Because the commercial powers that be, in and outside of aviation, are apparently determined that New York City shall not lose its supremacy as the chief port of entry of this country. The fact that the Question Mark brought several items consigned to business establishments in that city would seem to have some weight here.

2. Because Lindbergh had taken off from the New York flying field and had landed in Paris. The gallant Frenchmen would therefore prefer merely to duplicate Lindbergh's feat by taking off from Paris and landing in New York.

Whatever the true reasons, it appears to me that the two Frenchmen, bearing as they presumably did the official greetings of their countrymen to the people of the United States, should have landed in Washington.

Protests Against Low Stunt Flying In Arlington County.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to protest against the foolish and dangerous business of low stunt flying over the heads and housetops of residents of Clarendon, Lyon Park, Presnell, Ashton Heights and other nearby Virginia communities. Such flying has already been practiced several times this week by an unknown flier. I myself have dashed out into my backyard, to learn what the terrific noise was all about, and seen the plane flying at varying angles only about 50 or 60 feet above my head. I was so surprised that I unfortunately overlooked the number of the plane. I hope that some Post reader who sees this did so and will report that "bird!"

While I may be perhaps the first to register this particular complaint in such public manner, I certainly am not the only one who is "sore" over this utter disregard for the rights, property and even lives of others. If that crazy nut, whoever he is, wants to kill himself, let him take his plane elsewhere and crash it—say over the Fort Myer parade grounds, or some cornfield.

Suggests That Government Employ Only One Wage-Earner in Each Family.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of the very large number of good and efficient men and women who want a job and are not able to secure one, would it not be just, as well as generous for our Government to employ only the husband or father of a given family, where such husband or father receives a sufficient salary to take care of his family without the financial assistance of his wife or child? Surely, in this, our day of national distress, the Government ought not to permit husband and wife, or child and parent, of the same family to be drawing double salaries in order to live luxuriously when other citizens of our land, who would make just as efficient clerks, are thus forced to suffer for the necessities of life. Sewers in Bad Condition Because of Drought—Health Department Should Flush Them.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is high time that the Health Department should look into the unsanitary condition of the sewers throughout the District. Some weeks ago I saw a Health Department machine which sprinkled some kind of fluid into the sewers, but that fluid has not relieved the terrible odor which permeates most of the sewers.

We have not had sufficient rain this summer to thoroughly flush the sewers; hence they are all in a stagnant, dirty condition, and unless something is done immediately to relieve these unhealthful conditions there is liable to be a spread of disease from it. The water mains at all the corners could be turned on for several hours until the sewers have been thoroughly flushed.

Why Is So Much Expertness Required in Fixing Rates and Fares? Why Not Simplicity?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial, "Proposed New Gas Rates," you say, "The new schedule of rates requires expert analysis." It seems to be just like that with all our public utils. The street railway schedule of car and bus fares and transfers is a needless conglomeration. It does seem strange that the kind of schedules and estimates that experts nowadays prepare are often so complex as to require interpretation by other experts. May be there is a reason. Of course complexity is the soul of the expert business, and my guess is that simplicity is sacrificed in order to obfuscate the cash customer. Anyhow, a little more simplicity even at some sacrifice of exactitute would be welcomed by the public.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mr. Cooper's 80th Birthday Is Celebrated

By JEAN ELIOT.

IN Racine, Wis., Representative Henry Allen Cooper, dean of the House, in point of years and service, has been celebrating his eightieth birthday. Mr. Cooper has a campaign on his hands, but there is so little opposition in a district, which he has had in his pocket for nearly 40 years, that he is able to devote his entire energies to recuperating from a fall, sustained in the early summer, and to pleasant association with his old friends and constituents. At present Representative and Mrs. Cooper have with them at their home in Racine his sister, Mrs. Watts-Johnson, who came from England especially to share in her brother's birthday celebration.

Born the same day, September 8, but twenty years apart, Mr. Cooper and Mrs. Watts-Johnson spend the anniversary together whenever it is possible. Mrs. Watts-Johnson has a home in Denver, as well as one in London, but she spends much of her time abroad. She was a guest of Representative and Mrs. Cooper in Washington in the spring.

Representative Cooper has served in the House since 1893, with but one intermission. After some 25 years of service he was defeated for reelection, but his constituents must have found that they couldn't get along without him, for he was returned two years later and has been coming back ever since. He has long been a member of the foreign affairs committee.

Although they have not gone out very much of late, both Mr. and Mrs. Cooper have made a warm place for themselves in the affections of Washington society. Mrs. Cooper, who was one of the organizers of the Congressional Club, has taken an enthusiastic part in its activities through many years and last season was chairman of its entertainment committee.

Ambassador of Turkey Ends Fishing Trip.

The Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, and Mr. Usaki Bulent, second secretary of the embassy, returned to Washington yesterday morning after a fishing trip on Chesapeake Bay. In the afternoon the ambassador returned to Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., where he has a summer cottage, accompanied by his daughter, Mme. Enver, who had been in town for the day. They expect to remain at Blue Ridge Summit until the last of this month.

Mr. Bulent will go to Blue Ridge Summit the last of this week to be the guest of the ambassador over Sunday.

Mr. Ralph Totten, Minister of the United States to the Union of South Africa, has arrived at Pretoria and on Monday presented his credentials to the Governor General, the Earl of Athlone. Before being named as his country's first Minister to South Africa Mr. Totten was Consul General at Cape Town and later had the rank of minister resident. In a long carreer in the foreign service, he has been on duty in Washington on several occasions and has many friends in the Capital.

Mr. William R. Castle, Assistant Secretary of State, has returned to Washington from Hot Springs, Va., where he spent a brief holiday with Mrs. Castle, who has been at Hot Springs since early summer.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke, who with Mrs. Jahncke and their daughters, is at Biltmore, N. C., for a vacation, is expected to return to Washington the latter part of the week.

The Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Julius Klein are again in their apartment in Wyoming avenue for the autumn, after spending the summer in their cottage in Maine.

Mr. David E. Kaufman, newly appointed United States Minister to Siam, is making his headquarters at the Mayflower during his visit in Washington to take the oath of office at the Department of State. He will sail from San Francisco the early part of October.

Lord and Lady Tomlin Visit at Watch Hill.

Lord and Lady Tomlin, who were in Washington for the American Bar Association meeting and who have been in New York since then, have gone to Watch Hill, R. I., to be guests of the Solicitor General and Mrs. Thomas D. Thacher.

Mrs. Franklin Adams has gone to New York and, with her sister, Mrs. Lander Redman, of California, will sail tomorrow on the S. S. Alfonso XIII for Spain. Later Mrs. Adams (Harriet Chalmers Adams) will go to Addis Ababa to be the guest of the United States Minister to Ethiopia and Mrs. Addison E. Southard while ceremonies attending the coronation of the Emperor of Ethiopia are in progress. She will also visit East Africa, Arabia and Persia before returning to Spain in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hampton Ellis, who have been in England, are now on a motor trip through Ireland.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol are motoring to Washington after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hall Chase at Narragansett Pier. En route home they will be guests of Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons at their country place in Avon, Conn.

Miss Dunlop Returns From Summer Stay.

Miss Katherine Dunlop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Thomas Dunlop, arrived in town yesterday after passing the summer at Great Bear Lake, Minn.

Dr. and Mrs. Carl Voegtlin have returned to Washington from Bermuda, where Mrs. Voegtlin has been since early summer and where Dr. Voegtlin joined her for his vacation.

Maj. William W. Vaughan, who was called to Washington by the serious illness of his father, Dr. George Tully Vaughan, left town yesterday to return to his post at Denver, Colo. Dr. Vaughan, who is in Georgetown Hospital, is now thought to be out of danger. Mrs. W. R. Crute, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vaughan, who came from her home in Camden, N. C., will remain with Mrs. Vaughan for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Price Wright and Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Scott Thropp are planning to entertain guests at the Annapolis Roads Country Club on Friday and Saturday, when the President's Cup race and the Secretary of the Navy's cup race will be held at the mouth of the Severn River near Annapolis. A brilliant gathering is expected at the club, whence guests may have a fine view of the races. Others who will entertain guests are Capt. Gust van Lehnap and Mr. Edward S. Hull.

The Arts Club opens its autumn season of dinners and entertainments with a "book night" tomorrow evening, when Miss Alice Hutchins Drake will review several important books of the year and lead discussion by members. Miss Helen A. Calhoun and Miss Helen Wright will be the hostesses of the evening.

The clubrooms are busy these days with preparations for the "Fair of the Crusts," which is to be held during the three afternoons and evenings of October 16, 17 and 18 in the clubrooms and garden, and is to reproduce as closely as possible the fairs of Montmartre and other artist quarters of Paris. Artists are contributing their wares to be sold and other members not artists are donating articles of value to add to the collection which will be exhibited and placed on sale.

Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston, who has spent many years in foreign countries, is author of the idea and is chairman of the committee in charge.

Gen. Ely Is Host To Polo Group.

Maj. Gen. Hanson Ely, commanding the Second Corps Area, U. S. A., and the Second Corps Area Polo Association, gave a luncheon Monday at the Officers' Club, Governors Island, to members of the British polo team, now in New York. Addresses were made by Gen. Ely and by Viscount Cowdray, chairman of the Hurlingham Club Polo Association. Members of the American polo team were also present.

Troth Announced

Ira Hill.

MISS MARION DARRAH, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Thomas Walter Darrah, whose engagement to Mr. Warren Dwight Brewster, of New York, is announced.

New Yorker Will Marry Jersey Girl

Miss Frelinghuysen to Become Bride of Mr. Bilkey.

Former Senator and Mrs. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen have announced from New York the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emily Frelinghuysen, to Mr. H. Edward Bilkey, of New York, the son of Mrs. Charles Bilkey, of Wisconsin. Remembering her as a little girl in pigtails and pinafores, Washingtonians were greatly interested when Miss Frelinghuysen came into prominence in the primary campaign in New Jersey when her father lost to Mr. Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, the Republican nomination for the Senate; and there will be equal interest in her engagement. During the campaign Miss Frelinghuysen showed herself a spirited and clever politician, although her side went down to defeat.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Frelinghuysen's permanent home is at Far Hills, N. J., they have maintained a winter residence in New York since leaving Washington and Miss Frelinghuysen was presented to society in New York in 1928. She is a member of the Junior League. Graduated from Miss Chapin's School, she went to Vassar, a member of the class which is to graduate in 1931.

Mr. Bilkey, who was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, is vice president and director of the Stuyvesant Insurance Co. of New York. He is a member of the University and Down Town Clubs.

Through her father Miss Frelinghuysen is a descendant of an old Dutch family who were among the first settlers of New Jersey. Mr. Frelinghuysen, who is a director of the boards of a number of insurance companies and a member of numerous widely known clubs in New York and New Jersey, has been prominent in politics for three decades. Mrs. Frelinghuysen was Miss Emily M. Brewster, of Rochester, N. Y. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Williams Is Wed To Mr. Dobrowolski.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellie Williams announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helena Ellie Williams, to Mr. Paul Anthony Dobrowolski, son of Mrs. Anthony Dobrowolski and the late Prof. Dobrowolski, of Cornell University. The wedding took place in the Church of the Nativity at noon on Monday and was followed by a breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Williams, 1307 Longfellow street.

The church was fittingly decorated with autumn flowers. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory satin and a tulle veil held with clusters of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Dobrowolski will spend a short honeymoon in Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Atherton have returned to Washington from Massachusetts.

Miss Loretta V. Barnes, who has been traveling in England, Holland, Germany, Italy and France for the last three months, has returned to Washington.

Miss Betty Kaufman Visiting Her Sister.

Miss Betty Kaufman, of Long Beach, Long Island, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ismar Baruch, at her residence 3708 Brandywine street, Chevy Chase.

Miss Caledonia McCall has returned to Washington from a visit at Northampton, Mass.

Miss Darrah To Be Wed to Mr. Brewster

Betrothal Is Announced by Army Officer and Wife.

Col. Thomas Walter Darrah, U. S. A., and Mrs. Darrah announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Maxwell Darrah, to Mr. Warren Dwight Brewster, of New York. Miss Darrah graduated from Holton-Arms School in Washington and is a member of the Junior League. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. William Maxwell Wood and the late Lieut. Wood, U. S. N.; a great-granddaughter of Surg. Gen. William Maxwell Wood, U. S. N., and of Joseph Rodman West, United States senator and District Commissioner during President Arthur's administration. Her sister is Mrs. Woodlief Thomas. Mr. Brewster is the son of Mrs. Samuel Dwight Brewster and the late Mr. Brewster. He was graduated from St. Paul's School in 1919 and from Princeton in 1923.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Reginald Nicholson and Admiral Nicholson's niece, Mrs. Helen Cook Barbour, are visiting Mrs. Arthur Lee at Gracelands, her country home at Elkins, W. Va.

Mr. L. R. Merrell, Jr., Sojourns in Capital.

Mr. George R. Merrell, jr., newly appointed Secretary of the American Legation in Panama, will return tomorrow to Chautauqua Lake, N. Y., where he has spent part of the summer. Mr. Merrell was formerly secretary at the legation in Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

Mrs. William Hamilton Bayly is at Wardman Park Hotel to remain a fortnight and is accompanied by Mrs. John Y. Pennie, of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Thomas G. Greene, national director of the speaking service of the American Red Cross, has taken an apartment at the Highlands for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Return to District.

Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis have returned to Washington from New York, where they went on Saturday by air, accompanying Mrs. Lewis' sisters, the Misses Mildred and Catherine Huston. The Misses Huston will remain in New York until the last of this week.

Charles van Houten Washburn, schoolboy son of Mrs. Charles Demarest Washburn, has come to the city from his camp on the Eastern Shore to spend the month of September with his mother. He will return to school at Gunston Farm October 1.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Mrs. Roosevelt and their sons, Franklin Roosevelt, jr., and John Roosevelt, will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. George B. St. George today at Tuxedo Park. The Roosevelt boys are to take part in the Tuxedo junior horse show.

On Honeymoon

MRS. PAUL ANTHONY DOBROWOLSKI, who was Miss Helen Eslie Williams until her marriage on Monday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eslie Williams. Mr. Dobrowolski is the son of the late Prof. Anthony Dobrowolski, of Cornell University.

Flood Lights Will Play on Pan-American

Aztec Garden Scene to Be Pretty Tomorrow Evening.

A typical "Belasco setting" is promised for the concert of Latin-American music at the Pan American Union tomorrow night when delegates attending the inter-American conference on agriculture, forestry and animal industry will be guests of honor. Artists have waxed lyrical over the strange blue light which pervades the Aztec Garden, into which, weather permitting, guests will overflow from the esplanade while the concert is in progress, and on this occasion, for the first time, the exterior of the beautiful Pan American Building will be illuminated with flood lights. Through the good offices of a friend, who has the interests of the Pan American Union at heart, a fund has been provided from which the building may be lighted as a happy contribution to the "night life" of Washington.

Moreover, the Victoria Regia, largest of pond lilies, is now in bloom in the pool of the Aztec Garden and will prove an effective bit of decoration. Found only in South America, the giant blossom is a lovely thing and the lily pads often measure 3 or 4 feet across. They are turned up at the edges, saucer fashion, and sometimes travel tales of the regions where these pond lilies grow are illustrated with photographs of children sailing on them as on a ship.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Morrison Jullien, who are in Atlantic City, are staying at the Lexington Hotel.

Mrs. Glidden Arrives For Stay in Capital.

Mrs. de Putron Glidden, of San Francisco, has arrived at Wardman Park Hotel where she will remain until the first of the year. Mrs. Glidden has made an annual visit to Washington for seven years, staying about three months. Her daughter, Mrs. Howard Nyman, makes her home in the Capital.

HEARING SET TODAY ON TAXI SITUATION

Owners and Public Utilities Commission to Iron Out Their Difficulties.

FACTS ARE PREPARED

Taxicab owners and operators will gather with the Public Utilities Commission in the board room in the District Building at 10 o'clock this morning in an effort to iron out some of the difficulties which beset the taxicab operators and the commission.

Called as a public hearing, the gathering is likely to be somewhat different from the usual public hearing inasmuch as the commission has not laid down a definite proposition on which it is to give those interested an opportunity to express themselves.

The meeting has been called by the commission to give the owners and operators an opportunity to hear a few facts developed by the commission in the course of its study of the taxicab situation in the District and to get together among themselves on a future course.

Few Making Money.

Study of financial reports received from taxicab operators has disclosed that there are few, if any, owners making money. Most of the cabs are owned by their drivers. There are approximately 3,000 taxicabs and more than 2,000 owners. Several of these are said to be making less than enough to support themselves and their families and are receiving aid from one or another organized charity.

Whether the taxicab operators are enjoying the "ate war or not, apparently the general public is, for study of the reports filed with the commission shows that the number of 5-cent cabs has been increased and the number of passengers picked up daily also has rapidly increased.

One of the things the commission is concerned about is the varying charges made by the various companies for presumably the same service. There are said to be eight different so-called "city limits" defined by the various companies and charges for trips beyond these limits also are said to vary among the operators.

Depends on Operators.

What the commission will do will depend largely on what the operators do. The commission can do little or nothing at this time because of the lack of sufficiently definite authority in law. Commission officials, however, insist that the meeting called today is not intended to boost taxicab rates.

One of the things which officials and various persons connected with the taxicab business profess to fear is the advent in Washington of unsavory interests and the word "racket" is heard frequently in private discussions.

The Utilities Commission yesterday formally authorized District police to enforce its regulation requiring taxicabs to be prominently marked with an insignia or trade name of the owner.

Buy-in-Washington Move Is Spreading

Legislation to Improve Building Industry Is Up Today.

Legislation for the improvement of the building industries in Washington will be discussed today at a meeting of the legislation committee of the Buy In Washington Council, Inc.

This was decided yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the council at the Willard Hotel. A committee, composed of E. A. Rule, E. F. Murphy, Luther C. Stewart and John Colpoys, will arrange the legislation to be presented at the next session of Congress.

The council also discussed plans for broadcasting "Buy in Washington" talks over Station WMAL. Joshua Evans, president of the District National Bank, joined the council at yesterday's meeting.

Gold Star Mother Ill in France.

Paris, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Grace W. Kingsbury, gold star mother from Smith Center, Kans., today was reported by Army officials as seriously ill at Verdun. Mrs. Kingsbury was seized yesterday with an attack of uremic poisoning. Her condition is causing anxiety. She is attended in a hotel by an Army medical officer and two Army nurses.

Man, Woman Plan Ocean Freight Hop

Lieut. William MacLaren and Mrs. Hart to Make Trip to Paris.

(Associated Press.)

Plans for a round-trip seaplane hop to Paris early in October with stops at Bermuda and the Azores to permit carrying a load of pay freight were described at the State Department yesterday by Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William S. MacLaren, Newark, N. J., pilots.

The fliers requested the department to obtain permission for them to land at the two islands, and at the same time made application for passports to France.

MacLaren, a graduate of the Naval Academy and a former test pilot and instructor at Newark, described the proposed flight as an "attempt to take transatlantic flying out of the stunt class and put it on a sound commercial basis."

Mrs. Hart, who carries an air transport license, said that proposed stops would permit them to carry a minimum load of gasoline, filling the space ordinarily occupied by it with paying freight.

The fliers said that they were having constructed a special seaplane to be known as the Trade Wind, and that if test flights were successful, the take-off would be made about October 9.

Law Conference Ends in New York

John W. Davis Addresses Last Session; Resolution Lauds Kellogg, Briand.

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, today declared stimulation of American thought on international problems was an important result of the conference of the International Law Association. Mr. Davis addressed the closing session of the conference here today.

He told the delegates that "your very meeting here and the daily publication of your proceedings has helped again to remind the American people that they are members of the family of nations and that they have a keen concern in the development of international law."

The conference adopted a resolution, proposed by Austin E. Griffiths, former judge of the superior court of the State of Washington, expressing the admiration of the association for Aristide Briand and Frank B. Kellogg for the work that led to the Briand-Kellogg peace pact.

is, for example, "mock champagne," the favorite drink of Mrs. Imogene Oakley, of Philadelphia. This is concocted of one-third white grape juice and two-thirds White Rock.

"This recipe," says Mrs. Oakley, "has all the good qualities of champagne and none of its bad ones."

Then there is "Portia's Punch," the favorite of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who lately deserted prohibition enforcement to boost aviation.

"To one small bottle of red Concord California pure concentrated grape juice or Concord Loganberry," she advises, "add two bottles of light colored ginger ale, one lemon sliced thin, and a half cup of chopped mint leaves, and serve very cold."

Among others who contribute recipes are Laura Volstead Lomen, daughter of former Representative Volstead; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. Ella B. Boole, and Mrs. John B. Henderson.

The cover of the book shows Mrs. Doran squeezing oranges, a huge cocktail shaker surmounted by the Capitol dome, and a party of four men and two women making dignified "whoopee" drinking punch without a kick in it.

Eight Hurt When Blaze Razes Carpet Factory

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Eight persons were injured, two of them seriously, in a fire which today destroyed the two-story carpet factory and warehouse of the Lamond & Robertson Co.

Three persons, at first unaccounted for and reported trapped in the burning building, were later found to have made their way to safety. There were 85 at work in the building. The fire burned for an hour and a half before it was brought under control, destroying the carpet mill and a residence in the rear.

THERE'S always some favored one with a charm that's all her own.... And everywhere in the modern scene you'll see happy smokers breaking out fresh, fragrant packs of Camels... a natural choice too!

For the mildness of Camels is a charm that's all its own... a natural mildness that's a quality of choicest tobaccos. Don't confuse this fresh, fragrant mildness with the flatness or insipidness of "over-treated" tobacco. There's a delightful natural fragrance to Camels, too, a "bouquet" as distinctive as the fragrance of oriental flowers.

SALARY INCREASES TO RAISE PENSIONS OF POLICE, FIREMEN

Those Retired for Age and Long Service to Profit by New Law.

DISABLED PENSIONERS ARE TO BE EXAMINED

Cases of These Men Will Be Treated Individually, Say Commissioners.

Pensioners of the Police and Fire Departments who have been retired because of age and length of service will be given an increase in pension proportionate to the increase in salaries for active members of the departments provided in the new salary law, the District Commissioners decided yesterday.

Men who have had less than 25 years of service but who were retired because of physical disability, however, will be dealt with individually in the matter of increased pensions, the Commissioners decided.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, and George S. Watson, chief of the Fire Department, were instructed by the Commissioners yesterday to order all pensioners retired for disability before the board of surgeons for a new examination. The purpose of this examination will be to determine the present extent of their disabilities and their present physical condition will determine what shall be done about increasing the amount of their pensions.

Plan Urged on Grant.

While each case will be dealt with individually, the general principle which will be followed will be to increase their pensions proportionately when it is found that the pensioners still are suffering to the same extent from the disability which forced their retirement from active duty, Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, said.

The Commissioners suggested that Lieut. Coll. U. S. Grant 3d, officer in charge of the United States Park Police, take similar steps so that the information about the Park Police will be available and permit of action at the same time.

The question of what should be done about Police and Fire Department pensions has been under consideration ever since the new salary law was enacted by Congress before it adjourned, and there was considerable speculation as to what the Commissioners would do. Some members of Congress insisted that pensions should be paid on the basis of the need of the men on the pension rolls, but this was vigorously objected to by officials of both departments, who contended that the personnel of the department had a right to expect and did consider the pension guarantee as a safeguard to which they were entitled by right, not to be arbitrarily set aside in individual cases.

Capt. Sanford to Retire.

Formal approval was given by the Commissioners yesterday to the application for retirement made by Capt. William E. Sanford, commander of the Fifth Police Precinct. Capt. Sanford is to retire at the end of the month. His successor has not been named. Lieut. James F. Beckett, of the First Precinct, stands at the head of the present list of men eligible for promotion to captain, but the Civil Service Commission is preparing a new eligibility list which may be given District officials before the date of Capt. Sanford's retirement.

Retirement of Private Richard L. Trice, of the White House police force, recommended by the retiring board, also was approved by the Commissioners yesterday. Private Trice is 55 years old and has served more than 26 years. He was retired because he was found physically incapacitated for furthe active duty. His retirement was made effective as of July 16, 1930, and he was awarded a pension of $100 a month. Capt. Sanford was given a pension of $150 a month.

Move Made to Admit Miss Hewitt to Country

(Associated Press.)

Negotiations were started yesterday between the Labor and State Departments in an effort to arrange the admission into the United States of Miss Elsa Hewitt, daughter of George Hewitt, a Labor member of the English Parliament.

Miss Hewitt was detained at Ellis Island last Thursday when she arrived at New York to teach music at a labor preparatory institution at Pawling, N. Y. Immigration officials said she had the wrong kind of a visa to be admitted as a teacher. A decision is expected today.

Drought Rates Urged For 317 More Counties

(Associated Press.)

Drought relief in the form of reduced freight rates for live stock feed in about a third of the counties in the United States was recommended yesterday by Secretary Hyde.

The Agriculture Secretary already had recommended that the reduced rates be extended to 707 counties, and yesterday he added 317 to the list. The recommendation will be forwarded to railroads which indicated their willingness to aid in drought alleviation by reducing rates.

Salesman Asks Bankruptcy.

Clark L. Datnov, a salesman, of 458 Delafield street northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt. He listed liabilities of $3,346 and no assets. Attorney Samuel N. Gusack appears for the petitioner.

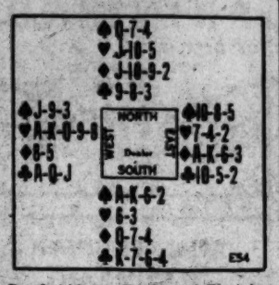
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?

As an example of bold but sound bidding, the following hand is submitted:



South bid one Spade and West two Hearts, which obtained the Auction contract.

In Contract Bridge South should bid the same Spade and West would have played the hand at four Hearts.

It was played at Auction and North won the first trick with the Queen of Spades, and South the next two with the King and Ace. This took out all the East and West Spades. South then attempted to find North with a winning Club, but failed; West won with the Queen and made game by winning five Hearts, two Diamonds and (by finessing again) three Clubs.

Could the adversaries have saved game?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The error was with South. After winning trick 3, he should have led his thirteenth Spade, and would have saved the game as West would discard and East would be unable to over-ruff North's Ten.

The opportunity for saving game was disclosed by the bidding. Many players will not bid originally on Ace-King and two small without a side Ace or King and Queen of the same suit. The further we get in Contract, however, the more important we find bids with light holdings provided the partner will not jump unless he has more than two tricks plus normal support. In this case North would not have opened Spades and game could not have been saved had South not bid Spades originally. Very often a lead-indicating bid is the one thing that keeps Declarer from making his game.

Sister and Niece Get Bulk of Baker Estate

Anna A. Baker, who died several days ago, left the bulk of her estate to her sister, Mary E. Baker, and a niece, Amy E. Moorehouse, according to the will filed yesterday in District Supreme Court. No estimate of the value of the estate was disclosed.

The sister and the niece are to share in the real estate, which includes the house at 812 Twenty-first street northwest, and all the property after certain bequests are carried out by the executor, Charles W. Arth. The niece also is to have $500 and the furniture of the Twenty-first street house, while to Robert M. Libby, a friend, are given three diamond ring

Jane Interprets the MODE

Paris, Sept. 9.

I THINK there is nothing more flattering for a winter hat material than velvet. It's surprising how sturdy it is, too, when one remembers by comparison velvet dresses, which are anything but! But in a hat, whether the velvet be of the very durable plush type or of the delicate chiffon velvet variety, rain drops can be successfully steamed out by so simple a process as holding your hat over the tea kettle spout. And though there is always something regal about velvet, there is more so about it when it is framing the soft feminine face. I, for one, am going to go in for velvet picture hats in a big way before everybody-else-in-the-world-and-her-sister wears them!

• • • •

The new winter hats are more of a development than a drastic change or innovation. They are a true expression of the milliner's art in finest panne velvet, in handkerchief felt, which is sold under the name of liquette; in a new sort of tweed-chenille and broadtail (or breitschwanz) which, in one model, are joined imperceptibly in a smart new bonnet crossing the forehead at the latest irregular angle which must always reveal the hair on one side or the other.

So we are told a great vogue is predicted in hats for panne velour in "tete-de-negre." Then, in that which is new, one notices a new low crown shaped like a shallow inverted bowl fitting the top of the head precisely.

They all say that the hair must show on at least one side of the forehead, in the new small winter hats. The large velvet hat, by the way, is understood to be for autumn wear only, as its shape is necessarily impractical for the large fur collars, which must be worn on winter coats.

• • • •

The new long evening coats for winter, and those big wrappy capes certainly do look as though they took miles of material, don't they? But they really don't—at least not the Dah-ray way! In fact, in this week's leaflet, for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, you will find the carefully illustrated directions for making a long evening coat with wide sleeves from three and a half yards of material—and a delightful and unusual cape from four and a half yards. Don't you think you had better send for this leaflet?

• • • •

The lovely Russian artist sketched the coiffure in the corner, and asked me to tell you that curls and marcel waves are no longer stylish, and that this type of very soft wave and rather longish coiffure is worn in the evening. It is very low and flat, and sometimes a jewel pin serves both to hold it in place and to decorate it. Personally, I would say that the becomingness of this coiffure depended upon the shape of one's head, and that if your head was at all inclined to be flat in the back this coiffure would have to be avoided.

Redfern makes a very gracious dress of an unusual material—heavy red tulle. And then, to add to its gracefulness, a shawl or scarf or cape, whichever you wish to call it, of the same red tulle, weighed down with fringe. And then I sketch it for you, and there it is!

Be sure not to miss the Dare weekly fashion letter, which you will find in The Sunday Washington Post every week.

The Fable of the Goofus Oyster

A Goofus Oyster once there was
Who sat around and stewed
Because he had no family
And hence no family feud.

To remedy this sad defect
He wooed an Oyster girl
Who slept in the adjoining bed;
Of course her name was Pearl.

The Mother of Pearl, the story goes,
Is living with them now,
And has the Oyster a family feud?
I'll say he has—and how!

GLADIOLUS IN LATE SUMMER.

During the late summer and early fall the beds where your gladiolus are growing should be kept free from weeds and must be given plenty of moisture. The ground should be literally soaked at least once each week and sufficient water applied so that it will reach the feeding roots. These roots are underneath the bulbs, so it takes quite a quantity to reach them. Sprinkling is of little or no service; indeed, it is rather injurious, as it helps to form a cake on the soil. When a cake does form, which is apt to occur immediately after a rain or after watering, it should be broken up with a rake, and at all times the soil close to the plant should be kept loose.

Do not be in a hurry to remove your gladiolus bulbs in the fall. It is an advantage to let the large bulbs remain in the ground until the leaves are brown for at least half their length. You see, the bulbs continue to grow as long as the leaves stay green; you must not, however, wait until the entire leaves have turned brown, for in that case they will be so brittle you will have difficulty in handling them when you pull up the bulbs.

When lifting these bulbs use a spading fork rather than a spade. Insert the fork into the ground a few inches from the leaves and force it obliquely under the bulbs; press down the handle and raise the bulbs toward the surface; grasp the leaves with the left hand and pull the bulb from the ground. This same method should be employed for lifting all sizes of bulbs.

After the bulbs are lifted they must be allowed to become free from all excess moisture. This means that for three days they should be exposed to the warm rays of the sun.

When the outer soil which has adhered to the bulbs becomes dry it should be rubbed off. Then they should be put under cover, where they will get enough heat to dry them more thoroughly. They really should be in the sunshine in a shed for at least ten days before you put them away for the winter.

A cellar that is always cool but at the same time frost proof is the place for the storing of gladiolus bulbs.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m., and 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m., and 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Self controls and Fate controls will be strongly opposing forces in your life on this date. You will very narrowly escape very good fortune, or an equally great disappointment—one or the other will cross your path. Do not seek outside counsel! Very materialistic thoughts.

The child born on this September 10 will have a proud and vindictive nature, and an assertive will power. Much of its fate and many events of its life will come about through people, especially friends. It will have a wavering temperament, respective to big ideas and ambitions, but incapable of carrying them out.

The very nicest and most boosting gift which nature has given you is your faith—both personal and providential. The faith in your fellowmen is a blessing to you and to them also, for you are looking for the good in others, and you usually find it. You go on, when others might turn back, because you believe in your own abilities and good judgment, and in the higher laws of justice and right. The pin of your good humor is always ready to prick troubles as big as balloons.

You are a disciplined being in every sense of the word. You have the ability to make yourself do the things you have to do, when they have to be done, whether you like it or not. You are not afraid or ashamed to do work, no matter how menial. Your associates are ready to follow your example. You are clean in your mind, frank in your manner, true in your friendship; in your behavior, honest and reliable.

As a friend you can be leant against, but never sat on. You are not an oak for clinging vines, and you are sensible not to allow others to sap your strength or mentality. Strong, yourself, you admire strength in others. You have old-fashioned ideas about love, home and family.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TREATING LEPROSY BY FEVER.

IN a discussion of treatment of leprosy Dr. Victor Heiser suggested that the physicians in charge of leprosy colonies try the effect of an artificially induced fever. Several have reported that lepers have got better rapidly after attacks of febrile diseases.

The method of treating disease by throwing the patient into a fever is not a new one. A generation ago Dr W. B. Coley proposed to treat sarcoma, a variety of cancer, that way. He had some successes. It was noted that the cases that had the most reaction after the injection of the streptococcus culture were those which got the most benefit from the treatment. About the same time Dr. O. A. King treated melancholia by injections of killed cultures of streptococci. He, too, found that the cases most benefited were those which had the most reaction. A little later a Viennese physician proposed to treat paresis and some other forms of insanity by inoculating them with malaria. He reported good results. Next it was proposed to infect the subjects with rat-bite fever. Various other fever-producing injections were used. There were objections to all of the various methods.

Carpenter and Page have proved that a man can be thrown into a fever by means of short wave lengths. They conducted their experiments with apparatus made for them by the General Electric. The experiments were made with lengths as short as 5 meters (about 5 yards) and from that up. The best results were with wave lengths of 30 meters oscillating 10,000,000 times a second. When currents of this type were passed through the bodies of living animals it was found that their temperatures rose rapidly and a high fever ensued.

The method, having been proved on animals as being safe and efficacious, was next tried on human beings. Its use caused a fever to rise to about 105 in about one hour. There was some headache, some general aching, rapid pulse and rapid breathing, and sometimes nausea. The next step was to try it out in the treatment of suitable diseases in man. This is being done by a group of physicians in a hospital.

The only point worth while now is that the proper use of proper light waves such as can be used in radios is capable of producing a high fever in a man. When this does good and when it is harmful remain to be seen.

SUN'S RAYS IN ATTIC.

S. M. N. writes: What part of the rays are reflected when the sun's ray's strike an outside window? It is an attic window in an adjoining house, and the afternoon sun is reflected on my bed.

REPLY.

Probably all parts of the rays are reflected, but in varying degree. Since the light and heat end of the spectrum passes through glass best, light and heat are least reflected from the windows described. Inversely, the violet end is most reflected. If the reflected light passes through the glass of your window that obstacle stops the violet in the reflected rays.

SIRUPS USED IN CANNING.
(Bureau of Home Economics.)

In canning fruit it is available to prepare in advance the sirup which will be needed. The degree of concentration of the sirup recommended for different fruits varies and is designated as thin, medium and thick.

For thin sirup use one cup of sugar and three cups of water.

For medium sirup use one cup of sugar and two cups of water.

For thick sirup use one cup of sugar and one cup of water.

In each case the sugar and water are heated together and stirred carefully until the sugar is dissolved and the sirup brought to a boil. Fruit juice may be substituted for the water in the sirup with marked improvement in flavor.

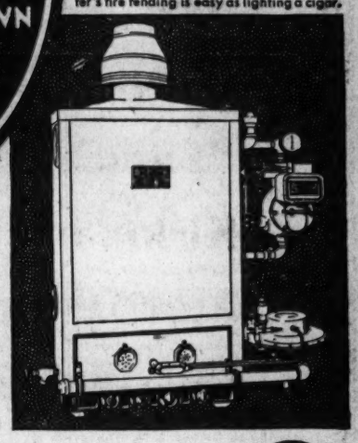
You don't have to stoke a greedy boiler with the Basmor in your basement. The whole winter's fire tending is easy as lighting a cigar.



Built from the ground up for gas firing

The very peak of modern heating comfort is represented by the Basmor gas-fired boiler. It needs absolutely no attention from fall to spring. It is compact and neat as only a real gas boiler can be. It is built for economical gas burning, with fire travel and drafts designed for this fuel. For purchase and installation under the Crane Budget Plan, see a Crane Qualified Contractor-Dealer. You pay nothing until it is in. Then pay monthly.

STOCK LEVEL RISES DESPITE SOFT SPOTS

Utility, Merchandising and Tobacco Shares Move to Higher Peaks.

SEVERAL OILS DECLINE

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Bullish activity in the merchandising and utility shares piloted the stock market to higher levels today, but the prominent industrials were spotty, the rails dull and the oils irregular.

The general trend of prices was upward with the exception of a mid-afternoon interval when selling of the independent steels and the oil shares threatened the day's gains in the stronger groups. But the recovery from this decline was prompt and the last hour was the busiest period, thanks to a brisk covering movement in the public utility stocks and to the maintenance of professional enthusiasm for the chain store equities. Total sales fell somewhat short of 2,000,000 shares.

The weekly Federal Reserve member bank statement seemed to meet with the approval of the bull clan. It showed a gain of $30,000,000 in the so-called commercial loan item and although no particular importance was placed on this advance in more conservative circles, pending the development of a definite upward swing. It was pointed out that member banks have recently been reducing the amount of funds placed in investments, notably bonds. This would suggest an improved demand or at least an expectation of it, by business for money.

Woolworth Gains 2 Points.

The market's eager search for stocks that will be the first to profit by seasonal improvement sent traders to the merchandising issues. Woolworth, whose president has already reported a reversal in sales trend, was a favorite, rallying more than 2 points on a large turnover. There were gains of 1 to 2 in Associated Drygoods, R. H. Macy, Best & Co., Sears Roebuck, Spiegel, May Stern and Safeway Stores. Schulte preferred rose 5.

The tobacco group was active and strong. American Tobacco old shares were bid up 4 points, while Liggett & Myers rallied 3 and the "B" stock of Foods, particularly Canada Dry, National Biscuit, Loose Wiles and General Foods, received some attention.

Selling of the steels may have been based on the expectation that the weekly unofficial production ratios, usually published on Tuesday, would be disappointing, but the report failed to appear and part of the declines were recovered. Bethlehem, which had been more than a point lower, closed unchanged. Michigan and Otis slumped 2 points and Republic was off nearly a point. U. S. Steel, whose August tonnage figures will be announced tomorrow noon, closed a point higher at 172½.

Houston Moves Forward.

Uneasiness over the crude oil curtailment program in Oklahoma, where legal action has been taken to prevent enforcement of the corporation commission's proration order against one company, affected the oils. Standard of New Jersey dipped a point and other members of the Standard group reacted fractionally. Houston, primarily a natural gas issue, advanced a point.

General Electric, Radio, Westinghouse Electric and Eastman Kodak moved quietly, making nominal gains. General Motors lost its aggressiveness and yielded half a point on the day. Auburn Auto slipped back in profit taking, while Pierce Arrow preferred went to a new low on a 5-point break. Diamond Match turned heavy when the market received a denial of rumors that the Kreuger interests were making a one-third holding in the company.

Postal Telegraph Declines.

A dozen or so of the utilities rallied 1 to 3 points. Postal Telegraph preferred was one of the few soft spots in the group, making a new low at 85.

Wheat and corn moved in opposite directions. The former declined one-half cent on hedge selling and a poor export demand, but corn closed unchanged to half a cent higher. Cotton was up 8 to 13 points. Crude rubber equaled yesterday's low.

Call money held at 2½ per cent, although some loans were made in the outside market at 2 per cent, apparently forecasting an official return to that level in a few days. An interval of easy money is anticipated in connection with the Government financing.

BOND TREND STEADY, BUT FEW RAILS SINK

INDUSTRIALS PROVE FIRM

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Bonds were steady to firm on an increased turnover today. Scattered liquidation of some of the prime rails cut small fractions from their quoted prices, but funds thus realized seemed to be finding prompt reinvestment elsewhere, especially in issues offering higher yields.

Argentines firmed. The republic 6s of 1958, series B, gained more than a point on a large turnover, while the October 6s of 1959 rallied 2 points. Advances in the other items were fractional. Buenos Aires bonds were likewise taken at considerably higher levels and the improved tone found reflection in firmer prices for the Brazilian and Chilean government listing. Rio de Janeiros and San Paulos eased.

Stock Optional Rails Sag.

Stock warrant and convertible bonds enjoyed a fairly good market. American International 5½s, Remington Rand 5½s with warrants, Texas Corporation 5s and Warner Bros. Pictures 6s were among the firm spots. Rails carrying stock features sagged, for there was little vitality in the railroad shares on the Stock Exchange. Reading Coal & Iron 6s gained a point.

Small declines in Atchison general 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Illinois Central 6½s, Frisco prior lien 6s, Wabash 4*s, Union Pacific first 4s and Western Maryland 4s, as well as a drop of nearly a point in Frisco 4½s, suggested that buyers were willing to give some of the recently active rails a rest.

On the other hand, Chicago Great Western 4s, the St. Paul General 4s and 5s, Great Northern 7s, Hudson & Manhattan Adjustment 5s, Missouri & Pacific general 4s, Northern Pacific 6s and Northern Central 4½s were active on a rising price scale. Kansas City Southern 5s made a new high.

Utilities Prove Firm.

Utilities and industrials were firm. Armour Real Estate 4½s, Brush Terminal 5s, International Cement 6s, U. S. Rubber 5s, Sinclair Oil 6½s, United Biscuit 6s, Laclede Gas 5½s, Colorado Fuel & Iron 5s, American Ice 6s and Postal Telegraph 5s averaged more than half a point higher. The Postal bond recovered yesterday's decline.

Dealings in listed United States Governments were the smallest in some time and prices held steady.

Announcement was made early this evening that a $10,000,000 issue of St. Louis, San Francisco series "A" 4½s, due 1978, had been taken by a New York syndicate, subject to Interstate Commerce Commission approval, and privately placed with institutions and dealers at 92¾. The offering, part of which will doubtless find its way into the market, was largely responsible for the softness of the listed 4½s.

AUGUST LOADINGS OF FREIGHT CLIMB

GAIN IN SCHULTE SALES

All records for 1930 in loading of revenue freight were broken in August, it was revealed yesterday by the American Railway Association. The total number of carloads shipped during the month as 4,670,368.

The closest approach to this for the year were the months of March with 4,414,626 cars, and May with 4,598,355 cars. It must be taken into consideration that each of these three months had the benefit of a business of five weeks, but allowing for this observers consider the larger shipments a certain sign of improved business.

The freight movements show a falling off from last year. For instance, during August of last year almost a million more carloads ere shipped and the shipments for every month were better than the corresponding months this year.

Freight Loading Figures.

Loading of revenue freight in 1930 compared with the previous year follows:

	1930	1929
4 weeks in January..	3,349,424	3,571,455
4 weeks in February.	3,505,962	3,766,136
5 weeks in March....	4,414,626	4,815,937
4 weeks in April.....	3,619,283	3,989,142
5 weeks in May.....	4,598,555	5,182,402
4 weeks in June.....	3,719,447	4,291,881
4 weeks in July.....	3,585,731	4,160,078
5 weeks in August...	4,670,368	5,600,706
Total	31,433,405	35,377,737

A falling off was reported in the net operating income of Class I railroads of the United States for the first seven months of this year in comparison to the same period of that last year. Statistics compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics show that the net income for this year was $458,943,343 for the first seven months, while during the same period last year it was $686,391,088. The compilation is based on reports from 171 Class I railroads representing a total of 242,679 miles.

The board of directors of the Federal Storage Co., of this city, have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on preferred stock of the company, payable October 15 to stockholders on record at the close of business September 30. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by President E. K. Morris.

Two New Banks Planned.

The Comptroller of Currency of the United States Treasury Department announced yesterday that applications for organization have been received by two banks, one in Jacksonville, Fla., and one in Cleveland, Ohio. Charters have been issued to three banks and voluntary liquidations have been received by four in various parts of the country.

Gross sales of $2,100,164 for August in the Schulte United Stores, including branch stores in Washington, were announced yesterday. This was an increase of $386,651 over the sales of August, 1929. For the eight months ended August, 1930, sales aggregated $15,910,520, against $9,243,921 for the corresponding period in 1929, an increase of $6,666,599, or 72 per cent.

Carpel Corporation was the most active stock on the Washingotn Stock Exchange yesterday, closing sales showing that 165 shares had changed hands with the closing quotation at 24½. Capital Traction sold again at 60⅝ for 10 shares.

Directors of the John R. Thompson Co. declared today the usual quarterly dividend of 75 cents per share, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 23.

G. F. Buckland, chairman of the board of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, said that although August figures have not been compiled as yet, gross revenues will be substantially under last year's results. He added the seasonal upturn in business has not been up to normal proportions, but that inventory has been completed to the point where purchasers are returning to the market. The New Haven, he said, is "continuing to prune expenses in line with the current business volume."

Business of the Great Lakes Aircraft Corporation, a subsidiary of Allied Motor Industries, is steadily improving and the Cleveland plant is running full time, B. F. Castle, president, said. About 200 men have been added since August, an additional 200 workers will be added soon and night work probably will go into effect by the end of the month, he added.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. has received an order from the Government for high-pressure and cruising turbines, with accompanying reduction gears, for installation in the battleships Pennsylvania and Arizona, which are being modernized. The cost of the new machinery is approximately $500,000.

Photocolor Corporation is negotiating with a large motion picture producer for production of natural color film. It is said the preliminary negotiations involve photographing 26 short subjects of approximately 1,000 feet each.

MISS MYSTERIOUS

By LARRY LAWRENCE

Mac enters, finds that Morgan is not dead, takes his fingerprints, searches the room and discovers the antique brooches stolen from Babe's room. He takes her to her hotel. She realizes that she is in love but can't decide whether it is Pete or Mac she loves the more. The next day Mac tells her he is hunting down a murderer. A personal enemy warns her that it is a dangerous job, but asks her to continue working with him. She agrees.

CHAPTER XI.

"This man would kill me on sight," Mac went on. "He would probably kill any one he knew was working with me. It is a lot to ask of a girl, but, well, I think we can beat him." He paused and was in deep thought for a moment. Babe did not make a sound. Then Mac continued, "Now, let's clear up some other matters, so we'll both know where we are. What did you learn from this man last night? Did you find out where he came from?

"Not last night, but I think I know."

"How could you know?"

"When? How? Why?" Mac exploded.

"To answer that I would have to tell you my story. I would have to tell you why I was looking for a job when you found me."

"Shoot," Mac ordered. "I knew you had a story, but I figured it was none of my business. Now it seems like it is. Maybe it is our business—ours together."

Babe started at the beginning. She told him of her strange early life, being shifted from home to home, school to school. She told of the suicide of Forseith as she had read it, his letter to her, the letter that had started her on the quest of her own name, had thrown her almost penniless into the world, alone.

She told Mac that her name was not Thomas, but that it was Thelma Townley. "At least, that is the name I always used until I received that letter. Now, of course, I do not know what my real name is. The girls started calling me Babe, I don't know why, but it has stuck. I like 'Thelma,' but all my school friends call me 'Babe.'"

Mac frowned at this, but did not comment.

"I suppose I have as much right to be called Thomas as Townley, or Townley as Thomas."

The Tale of the Kidnaping.

Then she told of the man who called himself Morgan and his fast proposal, ending her recital of the details with this, "and this is the man I shot last night. The hand of fate seems to be working. But you have not begun to hear all the weird experiences I have had in this last week."

Then she told him of the kidnaping, of Pete's part in it and her telephone call in which she learned that her room had been robbed and the brooches stolen.

Mac whistled a low, short note of surprise from time to time, but did not interrupt. He was taking it all in, setting the facts down in their order and making deductions as she went on. When she had finished Mac took both her hands in his own.

"I said it might be our business. It is. The man I want is Forseith. He had another name when I knew him, but he has probably had many aliases."

It was Babe's turn to be startled. "Undoubtedly it is the same man," Mac insisted. "Now, tell me all that this so-called Morgan said about him." Babe told him all she could remember.

"I had spotted Morgan in Seattle," Mac explained. "I thought he was a henchman of Forseith. He was at one time, but now it is clear that he is trying to give Forseith the double-cross in some deal, and most certainly you are the prize in that deal. If we can make Morgan talk we may get at the bottom of it. Let's go now."

In a moment they were in a taxi and headed for Morgan's apartment.

"How did you happen to arrive at Morgan's last night just in the nick of time?" Babe questioned.

"I was never far behind you from the moment you left the gambling house. I was certain that he was criminal. And he looked like a lady killer to me. I thought he would talk a lot to a woman. We'll soon find out what he knows now. We'll make him talk."

Fail to Find Morgan.

They didn't stop at the desk, but went straight to Morgan's rooms. Mac knocked on the door. There was no answer. He knocked again and waited. Still no answer.

"Go down to the desk and ring his room," Mac ordered. Babe asked for his number, but the girl at the switchboard, between snaps on her gum, blurted out: "That man left this morning. Checked out, and he was paid for a month in advance. He looked kind o' pale when he left."

"Did he leave a forwarding address?" Babe tried to seem uninterested.

"No. He didn't do anything but hand in his key and say, 'I won't be back.'"

"I'm a chump," Mac burst out. "We had a hot one in our hands and dropped him. Let him slip through our fingers, and it's my fault."

"I have a 'unch," Babe offered. "Let's have a bite to eat and then I'll tell you what I have in mind. Do you know, Mac, I haven't had any breakfast? I forgot all about it, thinking of you—ah, I mean, thinking of this whole strange case."

"Thinking of me, were you?" Mac asked as they walked to a restaurant.

"Well, yes. Thinking how unusual our meeting was."

"Yes, it was unusual," Mac said, and did not pursue the subject of personalities any further.

Babe was angry with herself for having made the slip in the first place. She told herself to let her emotions go hang, as she was engaged in much more serious business than meddling with sentiment. But such is the nature of the human, it seems; one can't turn those emotions on and off like a water tap.

In a secluded corner of a German restaurant they started talking again.

"My hunch is that the man I knew as Forseith and the man you knew under another name is the leader of this kidnaping crew that had me."

Babe Tells of Her Fears.

"I have been in terror of seeing one of that crew ever since the night I escaped," Babe continued. "That terror was bad enough, but I have another, and a worse one. I am scared scarlet by the thought that I will be seen by the leader himself and I will not recognize him. I'll have no defense because I won't know him.

"As I think of my life now it seems to me that this man must have been planning some crime against me from babyhood. I have never even seen him since I was old enough to remember anything. It doesn't seem logical that he would give up the pursuit after going to all the trouble he took to get me once, does it?"

"No. It seems more likely that he is following you, waiting for a chance to strike," Mac offered.

"He knows well enough how I look, for I have sent him many pictures," Babe said. "He always asked for pictures at Christmas. I thought that he was fond of his ward, but I guess he was only fond of her money. I do feel that I had some money even if I don't know how it became mine."

Mac nodded, listening closely as Babe reasoned.

"Well, if he is in Milwaukee, or in Wisconsin he is here looking for me. We want to find him as badly as he wants to find me. He does not know that you are searching for him, does he, Mac? Tell me what you've done so far in this search, will you?"

Mac didn't answer for a minute. Then he launched into a brief sketch of his activities. In doing so he seemed to admit that this young woman, sitting there with him, was to be a full partner in the man hunt from then on, a thinking, reasoning partner and not just a hireling to command.

"No, I don't believe he does know that I am after him. You are the only soul I have told. And I haven't told you everything by a whole lot. When I got to Seattle I looked for a man named Frankie. That was the name he used when he killed my—why go into that? Frankie was the name and I had a perfect picture of his face in my mind, when I came back to get him. I couldn't find him.

On the Trail of Morgan.

"I spent days running down clues from the name and days peering into faces in Seattle. Then I saw him. I was sure it was my victim. I saw a man with him. A young man, handsome. They seemed to be in earnest conversation. I tried to follow my man but lost him. I spent several more days in fruitless search, then I spotted the man we now know as Morgan. I followed him for almost a day. I saw him buy a ticket for Chicago. I decided that there was some devilish work afoot in that city that was calling him and probably calling his chief too. I took a chance and came out on the same train.

"I kept hidden from him as much as possible and in Chicago I lost him. I had almost decided to go back to the west coast when I took a train for Milwaukee just on a whim. I thought I would spend a day or two here but one of the first men I saw in this town was Morgan. I followed him again. He went to the gambling house where I took you. He did not know that I had been following him and I decided to talk to him, try to gain his confidence.

"But instead of doing that I overheard him tell a man that he would be back at the gambling house on the following night. I tried to study out the best way to get him to talk freely. It was apparent that he was vain and the way he cast speculative eyes on all the women, I decided that he was a man some woman could easily charm into making any kind of an admission.

"I had just come to this conclusion as I was sitting in the hotel lobby when I saw you come in and sit down. You looked so beautiful and yet so dejected that I made a quick decision I decided that you certainly could charm any man if you set out to try. Well—you know the rest. Now I've talked a lot for me. I don't usually talk much to women. It is a new experience for me—and I don't dislike it."

A Lure for Forseith.

Babe started to thank him. She knew he had attempted a personal compliment. Her heart leaped a little. She like this compliment better than the one in which he had said in such an impersonal and appraising way that she was beautiful. She knew that he had only judged her beauty as a lure for another man, just as he would judge the beauty of a watermelon to a purchaser. But this compliment was meant for her—from him. She liked it and immediately told herself she shouldn't be seeking compliments from him. He might even be married, for all she knew; probably was. She was determined to find out as soon as she could without asking point blank. And just as she made this decision the picture of Pete running to fetch her a bucket of water back there in his play shack came to her. She told herself she was a fickle person, playing with ideas that had no right to lodge in her head. All this rapid, subjective thinking raced through her brain in much less time than it takes to tell, but even the split second that it did take was enough for Mac to notice.

"What are you studying so intently?" he asked.

"Oh, nothing, nothing at all,. But let's get back to my plan, the one I started to tell as we left Morgan's apartment. Let me be bait for Forseith!"

"Yes. It's the only way. At least it seems to me to be the only way to get action."

"Explain yourself."

"Well, we are sure that Forseith is still looking for me, aren't we?"

"Yes. Certainly, he must be."

"Then it seems I have managed by pure luck to escape. He hasn't found me yet. All right, we want to catch him so I'll be the lure. I'll do something to get my picture in the newspapers and Forseith will be bound to see it. It will reveal me and when he comes to gobble me up, why, presto, we feel in the fish."

"Oh, it will work if we have reasoned correctly up to now. The more I think of it the more certain I am that it will bring Forseith leaping at the bait, but I hate to do it because my friends at college will see."

Babe again thought of Pete and wondered what his reaction would be. She was already hit on a plan for getting her picture in all the papers She thought it a good plan for her purposes but shrank from the publicity that she feared might leave a stain on her for years to come. She hesitated now even to tell her plan.

Receiver Plea Hit By Kelly Tire Head

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Sept. 9.—Samuel Woolner, jr., president of Kelly Springfield Tire Co., has authorized the following statement:

"Referring to the suit of one James A. Kelly against Kelly Springfield Tire Co. for the appointment of a receiver, the suit and application for receivership are unfounded and unjustified, although plaintiff claims to be the owner of 100 shares of the common stock of the company. The books of the company show that he is not the registered owner of any of the common stock.

"The Kelly Springfield Tire Co. is in excellent financial condition. The balance sheet of the company as of July 31, 1930, shows current assets of approximately $18,000,000 against current liabilities of approximately $2,100,000, a ratio of more than six to one. The company has no bonds, debentures or long time notes outstanding. Notwithstanding the general business depression, the business of the company for the months of July and August has shown a satisfactory profit.

"Counsel for the company have advised us that the suit is absolutely without merit and unjustified on both the law and facts. It is apparent that the application for a receiver is not made in good faith and will undoubtedly be summarily denied by the court."

Washington, Tuesday, Sept. 9—1 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia—Mostly cloudy, possibly light showers Wednesday afternoon or night; Thursday showers; not much change in temperature; light variable winds becoming gentle easterly.

For Maryland—Mostly cloudy, possibly light showers Wednesday afternoon or night; Thursday showers; not much change in temperature; gentle variable winds, becoming moderate easterly.

For Virginia—Cloudy, probably occasional light showers Wednesday; Thursday showers; little change in temperature; moderate easterly winds.

Pressure is low and falling from Hudson Strait southeastward to northern Newfoundland. Resolution Island, 29.44 inches, and it is relatively low over the Southern States and the western half of the United States. Tonopah, Nev., 29.68 inches; Del Rio, Tex., 29.72 inches, and Titusville, Fla., 29.86 inches. Another disturbance is moving eastward over the western Canadian Provinces. Swift Current, Sask., 29.64 inches. High pressure prevails over the Lake region, the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, the Mackenzie Valley, and northern and central Greenland, Angmagssalik, 30.34 inches; Cochrane, Ont., 30.20 inches, and Akiavik, N. T., 30.14 inches. This pressure distribution has been attended by showers within the last 24 hours in the South Atlantic and Gulf States, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, the southern Plains States, North Dakota, Montana, and the North Pacific States. The rainfall was heavy in southeastern Kansas. The temperature has fallen in portions of the Pacific States, and it has risen in the Rocky Mountain region, South Dakota and Manitoba.

The indications are for showers in Tennessee, the lower Ohio Valley, the South Atlantic States, and probably in the southern portion of the Middle Atlantic States Wednesday and Thursday.

NATS' 5-RUN RALLY IN 12TH BEATS BROWNS, 8 TO 4

Vines, Grant Bow in Net Upsets

Charest Advances to Third Round in Veterans' Event.

By TED VOSBURGH.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—A fighting Irishman, Lyttleton Rogers drew himself up to his full height of 6 feet 7 inches, took a firm grip on his racquet and provided the national tennis singles championship with its daily thrill this afternoon by defeating young Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Calif., 4—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4.

The victory carried the biggest tennis player in the world into the fourth round, where he will encounter Bill Tilden tomorrow. "Big Bill," whose 6 feet 1 inch of altitude will be dwarfed by the giant Davis Cup ace from Ireland, outclassed Ed Feibleman, of New York, the twentieth ranking player of the country, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0, and took advantage of the opportunity to pull off all manner of spectacular shots for the benefit of the gallery of 5,500.

Grant Second Seeded Star Beaten.

Vines was not the only seeded player to bow himself out of the tournament in the third round. Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, holder of the national clay courts singles title and No. 12 on the American seeded list, was upset by Samuel B. Gilpin 2d, of Philadelphia, 6—2, 4—6, 11—9, 3—6, 6—4, after exchanging baseline hot shots for some two hours and a half.

Tilden's foremost protege, Wilbur Coen, of Kansas City, bowed before the varied stroking of Sidney B. Wood, 18-year-old New York sensation, 6—2, 1—6, 6—1, 6—1. Young Wood gave Coen a tennis lesson in the last two sets when he played like a champion in the making. Coen, although the eighth ranking player in the country was not among the twelve Americans seeded and his play today was decidedly streaky.

All three of the leading English contenders—Harold G. N. Lee, John S. Olliff and Frederick Perry, scored in straight sets but some of the foremost Americans had considerable trouble.

Charest to Third Round In Vet Play.

Clifford Sutter, intercollegiate champion from Tulane University, defeated Herbert Bowman, New York veteran, 6—1, 2—6, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3. Johnny Doeg played listlessly to defeat Lieut. R. M. Watt, jr., 6—4, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4. In a hard international

U. S. Poloists 3-1 Choice To Win

No Changes in British Line-Up to Be Made Today.

Americans Also Will Start Four Who Won First Game.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The British polo forces, challenging for the international cup, will pin their few remaining hopes in the second match tomorrow on the same line-up that absorbed a decisive beating at the hands of the American "Big Four" last Saturday at Meadow Brook.

British Not to Revamp Their Line-Up.

According to reports, the British considered recalling Capt. Richard-George, their original choice for No. 1, and revamping the line-up by moving the brilliant Lacey from No. 2 to his former position at back. It was decided, however, that no advantage was to be gained by "changing horses in midstream."

Capt. Tremayne expressed confidence that the challengers, profiting from their setback, would give a much better account of themselves tomorrow.

They will need to do so if they are to prevent the Americans from making it two straight victories and clinching the defense of the cup.

The United States, as anticipated, will make no shift in the line-up, consisting of Eric Pedley, Earle A. S. Hopping, Capt. Tommy Hitchcock and Winston Guest, playing in that order.

Hopping's Play in Opener Assures Him Berth.

The only question about the American line-up prior to the series involved the No. 2 position and Earle Hopping's sensational play Saturday in helping to register a 10-5 victory settled the issue completely. Hopping was the all-round star of the opening game, hitting with tremendous power and making the afternoon extremely unpleasant for the veteran British No. 3, Capt. Roark.

The Americans were 3-to-1 favorites to win the second match, scheduled at 3 p. m. (E.S.T.).

A victory for the British would force the series to the limit of three matches, with deciding play next Saturday.

Bobby Jones in Form; Ready for National

Highlands, N. C., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones has served warning he is right for the American national amateur tourney.

He announced he would play an exhibition round in Washington on September 16 with Leo Diegel, McDonald Smith and George Voigt. The exhibition is a charity benefit for Bobby McWatt, former Washington professional who is now a hopeless cripple.

CHOICES WIN IN P. G. A. PLAY

Sarazen Near Upset Victim in First Match Round.

By BRIAN BELL.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The professional Golfers Association championship, the annual match play battle of the pros, almost lost its host today in the very first round. Gene Sarazen, home pro, was brought to the thirty-sixth hole by Charles Schneider, young Philadelphia pro, before the man who has held this title twice and has won the open championship, was able to shake him off, 1 up.

Stocky Gene went 1 down at the thirty-first hole when the courageous Schneider holed a chip shot when his ball was 30 yards from the green.

Schneider, however, could not stand prosperity and his tee shot at the next hole came to rest in some bushes along a fence. He tried to play a left-handed shot out but did not get very far and after another effort had made only slight progress, he conceded the hole, leaving the match squared.

Birdie 4 Gives Sarazen Match.

Sarazen then sent a long brassie to the thirty-fourth green and dropped an 8-foot putt for a birdie four enough to win the hole, and, as it turned out, the match.

Horton Smith, another favorite, was one down to Billy Burke, Greenwich, with only six holes left to play, but the half-dozen were enough, for the tall Missourian promptly leveled matters and then won two straight holes to become dormie. The margin was two and one.

Leo Diegel, the defending champion, won with little effort from Henry Ciuci, young pro, who is either very good or very bad. He was good in the afternoon, but he was bad in the morning and when he struck his stride, Diegel was too far ahead to be overhauled.

Barnes Bangs 4 Hits As Chisox Win, 10 to 1

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Behind Pat Caraway's five-hit pitching and a massed attack of 19 hits, the White Sox routed Boston, 10 to 1, in the opening game of their series today.

Barnes led the White Sox attack with three singles and a triple. Five hits in the third and fifth innings netted the White Sox seven of their runs.

White Sox Purchase Star Minor Catcher

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The White Sox have purchased Catcher Frank Grube from Buffalo, of the International League, for 1931 delivery. Grube, who is 24 years old, has batted above .350 this season and is rated as the outstanding catcher in the International League.

HOMER GIVES MACKMEN VICTORY

Moore's Clout, 1 On, Beats Tigers, 3 to 1; 26th for Grove.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Jim Moore, a recruit outfielder, late of Dallas, Tex., batted out a home run in the fifth inning of today's game, scoring Bing Miller ahead of him, to provide the margin by which the Athletics defeated Detroit in the series opener, 3 to 1.

Moore's circuit blow enabled Lefty Grove to mark up his twenty-sixth victory of the season. Except for that moment of weakness, Earl Whitehill pitched on even terms with Grove in a hurlers' duel. Whitehill allowed seven hits to eight accumulated by the Tigers off Grove. Whitehill gave three passes to none by Grove, but struck out six batters to four fanned by Grove.

Spectacular catches by McManus, Stone and Funk featured the Tiger defense.

Griffith Denies Rumor Of Ruel Piloting Red Sox

ASSERTING that there was not the slightest foundation for the reports made yesterday to the effect that Catcher Herold "Muddy" Ruel, veteran receiver of the Nats, would leave the local club to succeed Charles "Heinie" Wagner as manager of the Boston Red Sox, next year, President Clark Griffith last night denied that he had ever discussed Ruel's departure from the Washington Team with the Boston Club.

The report also stated that it was because of Ruel's intended change that Catcher William "Pinky" Hargrave had been purchased from the Detroit Tigers from the waiver price of $7,500. This, too, Griffith denied, stating that the acquisition of Hargrave was merely the result of the opportunity to obtain another capable receiver for the Washington catching staff.

"No overture from any sources have been made for Ruel's services," Griffith stated last night, "and inasmuch as I would have to be consulted first in the event of a contemplated change, I don't think there is much foundation for the story."

The Associated Press in Boston also described the management of the Boston Baseball Club as asserting that "there wasn't a thing to it."

Robins Down Cubs; Race Tightens

Phelps Holds Leaders to Five Hits and Beats Them, 3-0.

Dodgers, Cards Virtually Tied 2½ Games Back.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The strong right arm of Ray Phelps, freshman star of the Brooklyn pitching staff, threw the National League more than ever into a four-cornered dog fight today as he pitched the Robins to a 3-to-0 victory over the Cubs in the first game of Chicago's Eastern invasion.

Phelps shut out the National League champions with five hits, scattered through as many different innings, and put the Robins into a virtual tie for second place with the St. Louis Cardinals, who lost a 2-1 decision across the river in New York. Brooklyn is only 1 point behind the Cards, and both teams are only 2½ games behind Chicago.

The Robins scored a run in the first inning on a swinging bunt with two out, and two in the eighth when Babe Herman drove his thirty-first home run into the left-field bleachers with one on base.

Fast Fielding Helps Pitchers.

Through the rest of the game, Phelps and Pat Malone, Cub pitching ace, engaged in a close duel. Malone gave the Robins seven hits and was kept out of trouble most of the time by brilliant fielding behind him. Three times Chicago double plays checked threatening Brooklyn rallies.

The big Chicago right-hander almost pulled out of his first-inning hole, created when Frederick started the game with a triple for the first of his three hits. Gilbert grounded to the infield and Frederick was out at the plate, the batter reaching second on the run-down. Gilbert reached third as Herman grounded out and scored when Wright beat out a hit to Bell.

The game was air tight from that point until the eighth when Frederick opened with a single. Gilbert fanned, but Herman hit a tremendous drive into the left-field bleachers on the fly for the deciding runs.

In four of the nine innings the Chicago lead-off man got on base, and in only two were the Cubs retired in order. But in every pinch Phelps was remarkably steady, and the Robins played tight ball to shut off any runs.

Giants Win Mound Duel From Cardinals, 2 to 1

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—An old-fashioned pitchers' battle today with the veterans, Clarence Mitchell and Burleigh Grimes, as the principals, enabled the Giants to gain a full game on the two leaders of the National League pennant race with a 2-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The triumph placed the fourth-place Giants only three games behind the league-leading Chicago Cubs and a half game behind St. Louis and Brooklyn.

Frisch paved the way for the game's first run when he opened the seventh by beating out a grounder. Bottomley sent him to second with a sacrifice, and Blades sent a single to left to drive in the run.

The St. Louis run looked very big for a moment, but Jackson and Roettger soon changed the aspect of the game. Jackson led off with a single and reached third as Roettger followed with a double. Hogan, pinch hitting for Critz, hit to the infield, but Jackson beat Ge'bert's throw to the plate for the tying run. Roettger scored the winning tally on the next play as Leach sent a high bounder to Frisch and was thrown out at first.

HAYES' SINGLE TIES AND WEST'S DOUBLE CLINCHES THRILLER

FIGHT TO FINISH

Nats Keep Pace With Macks; Browns Tie Game in 9th.

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 9.—The Nationals batted out their tenth verdict over the St. Louis Browns in twenty starts this season when four singles and West's double gave them five runs and an 8-to-4 decision in twelve innings of good baseball here this afternoon. Irving Hadley had allowed the Browns five hits until he weakened and was pounded for three safeties and the tying run in the ninth frame.

Cronin, Hayes, Bluege and Rice singled in the twelfth, with Burke drawing a pass in between, and then came West's double, which completely ruined the afternoon for Manager Killefer of the Browns.

Manush Stars Afield.

Killefer had cause to ponder a bit earlier in the afternoon when "Heinie" Manush romped all over the outfield to snare five long flies and turn that many difficult catches to make him resemble the best outfielder to show here this season.

The local shortstop lost his head at this point, however, and instead of finding themselves with a runner on second and one out the Browns soon realized they had two out and no one on when Rice's good throw to Cronin was relayed to Bluege in time to catch Kress sliding into third.

Hayes and West had three hits apiece, with the last blow of the former putting the Nats in the lead in the twelfth, when his single scored Bluege after two were out.

Blue Gives Browns Good Start.

Collins had retired Hayes and Hadley on infield grounders when Melillo muffed an easy roller from Rice. This boot proved a costly break when West followed with a double off the right field screen, Rice stopping at third. Manush then lined a triple to right and both runners scored.

The Browns tied it in their half when Hadley passed Goslin after fanning Blue and Metzler and then watched Rice kick Kress' single around until the former Nat went over the plate.

Yanks Whip Indians In Wild See-Saw Game

Cleveland, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees increased their third-place margin over the Indians by winning a wild see-saw battle, 8 to 6, today as they opened their Western tour. The Tribesmen used four pitchers, and the Yankees three, with George Pipgras getting credit for the victory and Pete Jablonowski being charged with the defeat.

This array of hurlers yielded 37 hits, of which the Yankees made 16, and eighth walks and hit five batsmen. The Indians had the game well in hand going into the seventh but the wildness of Miller and Jablonowski allowed the Yanks to score three runs on one hit and tie the score. New York won in the eighth on singles by Ruth and Gehrig, Lazzeri's sacrifice fly and Jorgens' single.

AUGUST LOADINGS OF FREIGHT CLIMB

GAIN IN SCHULTE SALES

All records for 1930 in loading of revenue freight were broken in August, it was revealed yesterday by the American Railway Association. The total number of carloads shipped during the month as 4,670,368.

The closest approach to this for the year were the months of March with 4,414,625 cars, and May with 4,598,555 cars. It must be taken into consideration that each of these three months had the benefit of a business of five weeks, but allowing for this observers consider the larger shipments a certain sign of improved business.

The freight movements show a falling off from last year. For instance, during August of last year almost a million more carloads ere shipped and the shipments for every month were better than the corresponding months this year.

Freight Loading Figures.

Loading of revenue freight in 1930 compared with the previous year follows:

	1930	1929
4 weeks in January..	3,349,424	3,571,455
4 weeks in February.	3,505,962	3,766,136

4 weeks in April.....	3,819,293	3,989,142
5 weeks in May.....	4,598,555	5,182,402
4 weeks in June.....	3,719,447	4,291,881
4 weeks in July.....	3,585,731	4,160,078
5 weeks in August...	4,670,368	5,600,706
Total	31,433,405	35,377,737

A falling off was reported in the net operating income of Class I railroads of the United States for the first seven months of this year in comparison to the same period of that last year. Statistics compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics show that the net income for this year was $458,943,343 for the first seven months, while during the same period last year it was $686,391,088. The compilation is based on reports from 171 Class I railroads representing a total of 242,679 miles.

MISS MYSTERIOUS

By LARRY LAWRENCE

Mac enters, finds that Morgan is not dead, takes his fingerprints, searches the room and discovers the antique brooches stolen from Babe's room. He takes her to her hotel. She realizes that she is in love but can't decide whether it is Pete or Mac she loves the more. The next day Mac tells her he is hunting down a murderer, a personal enemy; warns her that it is a dangerous job, but asks her to continue working with him. She agrees.

CHAPTER XI.

"This man would kill me on sight," Mac went on. "He would probably kill any one he knew was working with me. It is a lot to ask of a girl, but, well, I think we can beat him." He paused and was in deep thought for a moment. Babe did not make a sound. Then Mac continued, "Now, let's clear up some other matters, so we'll both know where we are. What did you learn from this man last night? Did you find out where he came from?

"Not last night, but I think I know."

"How could you know?"

"I have met him before."

"When? How? Why?" Mac exploded.

"To answer that I would have to tell you my story. I would have to tell you why I was looking for a job when you found me."

"Shoot," Mac ordered. "I knew you had a story, but I figured it was none of my business. Now it seems like it is. Maybe it is our business—ours together."

Babe started at the beginning. She told him of her strange early life, being shifted from home to home, school to school. She told of the suicide of Forseith as she had read it, his letter to her, the letter that had started her on the quest of her own name, had thrown her almost penniless into the world, alone.

She told Mac that her name was not Thomas, but that it was Thielma Townley. "At least, that is the name I always used until I received that letter. Now, of course, I do not know what my real name is. The girls started calling me Babe, I don't know why, but it has stuck. I like 'Thielma,' but all my school friends call me 'Babe.'"

Mac frowned at this, but did not comment.

The Tale of the Kidnaping.

Then she told of the man who called himself Morgan and his fast proposal, ending her recital of the details with this, "and this is the man I shot last night. The hand of fate seems to be working. But you have not begun to hear all the weird experiences I have had in this last week."

Then she told him of the kidnaping, of Pete's part in it and her telephone call in which she learned that her room had been robbed and the brooches stolen.

Mac whistled a low, short note of surprise from time to time, but did not interrupt. He was taking it all in, setting the facts down in their order and making deductions as she went on. When she had finished Mac took both her hands in his own. "I said it might be our business. It is. The man I want is Forseith. He had another name when I knew him, but he has probably had many aliases."

It was Babe's turn to be startled. "Undoubtedly it is the same man," Mac insisted. "Now, tell me all that this so-called Morgan said about him." Babe told him all she could remember.

"I had spotted Morgan in Seattle," Mac explained. "I thought he was a henchman of Forseith. He was at one time, but now it is clear that he is trying to give Forseith the double-cross in some deal, and most certainly you are the prize in that deal. If we can make Morgan talk we may get at the bottom of it. Let's go now."

In a moment they were in a taxi and headed for Morgan's apartment.

"How did you happen to arrive at Morgan's last night just in the nick of time?" Babe questioned.

"I was never far behind you from the moment you left the gambling house. I was certain that he was a criminal. And he looked like a lady killer to me. I thought he would talk a lot to a woman. We'll soon find out what he knows now. We'll make him talk."

Fail to Find Morgan.

They didn't stop at the desk, but went straight to Morgan's rooms. Mac knocked on the door. There was no answer. He knocked again and waited. Still no answer.

"Go down to the desk and ring his room," Mac ordered. Babe asked for his number, but the girl at the switchboard, between snaps on her gum, blurted out: "That man left this morning. Checked out, and he was paid for a month in advance. He looked kind o' pale when he left."

"Did he leave a forwarding address?" Babe tried to seem uninterested.

"No. He didn't do anything but hand in his key and say, 'I won't be back.'"

"I'm a chump," Mac burst out. "We had a hot one in our hands and dropped him. Let him slip through our fingers, and it's my fault."

"I have a 'unch," Babe offered. "Let's have a bite to eat and then I'll tell you what I have in mind. Do you know, Mac, I haven't had any breakfast? I forgot all about it, thinking of you—ah, I mean, thinking of this whole strange case."

"Thinking of me, were you?" Mac asked as they walked to a restaurant.

"Well, yes. Thinking how unusual our meeting was."

"Yes, it was unusual," Mac said, and did not pursue the subject of personalities any further.

Babe was angry with herself for having made the slip in the first place. She told herself to let her emotions go hang, as she was engaged in much more serious business than meddling with sentiment. But such is the nature of the human, it seems; one can't turn those emotions on and off like a water tap.

In a secluded corner of a German restaurant they started talking again.

"My hunch is that the man I knew as Forseith and the man you knew under another name is the leader of this kidnaping crew that had me."

Babe Tells of Her Fears.

"I have been in terror of seeing one of that crew ever since the night I escaped," Babe continued. "That terror was bad enough, but I have another, and a worse one. I am scared scarlet by the thought that I will be seen by the leader himself and I will not recognize him. I'll have no defense because I won't know him.

"As I think of my life now it seems to me that this man must have been planning some crime against me from babyhood. I have never even seen him since I was old enough to remember anything. It doesn't seem logical that he would give up the pursuit after going to all the trouble he took to get me once, does it?"

"No. It seems more likely that he is following you, waiting for a chance to strike," Mac offered.

"He knows well enough how I look, for I have sent him many pictures," Babe said. "He always asked for pictures at Christmas. I thought that he was fond of his ward, but I guess he was only fond of her money. I do feel that I had some money even if I don't know how it became mine."

Mac nodded, listening closely as Babe reasoned.

"Well, if he is in Milwaukee, or in Wisconsin he is here looking for me. We want to find him as badly as he wants to find me. He does not know that you are searching for him, does he, Mac? Tell me what you've done so far in this search, will you?"

Mac didn't answer for a minute. Then he launched into a brief sketch of his activities. In doing so he seemed to admit that this young woman, sitting there with him, was to be a full partner in the man hunt from then on, a thinking, reasoning partner and not just a hireling to command.

"No, I don't believe he does know that I am after him. You are the only soul I have told. And I haven't told you everything by a whole lot. When I got to Seattle I looked for a man named Frankie. That was the name he used when he killed my—why go into that? Frankie was the name and I had a perfect picture of his face in my mind, when I came back to get him. I couldn't find him.

On the Trail of Morgan.

"I spent days running down clues from the name and days peering into faces in Seattle. Then I saw him. I was sure it was my victim. I saw a man with him. A young man, handsome. They seemed to be in earnest conversation. I tried to follow my man but lost him. I spent several more days in fruitless search, then I spotted the man we now know as Morgan. I followed him for almost a day. I saw him buy a ticket for Chicago. I decided that there was some devilish work afoot in that city that was calling him and probably calling his chief too. I took a chance and came out on the same train.

"I kept hidden from him as much as possible and in Chicago I lost him. I had almost decided to go back to the west coast when I took a train for Milwaukee just on a whim. I thought I would spend a day or two here but one of the first men I saw in this town was Morgan. I followed him again. He went to the gambling house where I took you. He did not know that I had been following him and I decided to talk to him, try to gain his confidence.

"But instead of doing that I overheard him tell a man that he would be back at the gambling house on the following night. I tried to study out the best way to get him to talk freely. It was apparent that he was vain and the way he cast speculative eyes on all the women, I decided that he was a man some woman could easily charm into making any kind of an admission.

"I had just come to this conclusion as I was sitting in the hotel lobby when I saw you come in and sit down. You looked so beautiful and yet so dejected that I made a quick decision. I decided that you certainly could charm any man if you set out to try. Well—you know the rest. Now I've talked a lot for me. I don't usually talk much to women. It is a new experience for me—and I don't dislike it."

A Lure for Forseith.

Babe started to thank him. She knew he had attempted a personal compliment. Her heart leaped a little. She like this compliment better than the one in which he had said in such an impersonal and appraising way that she was beautiful. She knew that he had only judged her beauty as a lure for another man, just as he would judge the beauty of a watermelon to a purchaser. But this compliment was meant for her—from him. She liked it and immediately told herself she shouldn't be seeking compliments from him. He might even be married, for all she knew; probably was. She was determined to find out as soon as she could without asking point blank. And just as she made this decision the picture of Pete running to fetch her a bucket of water back there in his play shack came to her. She told herself she was a fickle person, playing with ideas that had no right to lodge in her head. All this rapid, subjective thinking raced through her brain in much less time than it takes to tell, but even the split second that it did take was enough for Mac to notice.

"What are you studying so intently?" he asked.

"Oh, nothing, nothing at all,. But let's get back to my plan, the one I started to tell as we left Morgan's apartment. Let me be bait for Forseith!"

"Oh, no, oh, no," Mac hastened to refuse.

"Yes. It's the only way. At least it seems to me to be the only way to get action."

"Explain yourself."

"Well, we are sure that Forseith is still looking for me, aren't we?"

"Yes. Certainly, he must be."

"Then it seems I have managed by pure luck to escape. He hasn't found me yet. All right, we want to catch him so I'll be the lure. I'll do something to get my picture in the newspapers and Forseith will be bound to see it. It will reveal me and when he comes to gobble me up, why, presto, we reel in the fish."

"Oh, it will work if we have reasoned correctly up to now. The more I think of it the more certain I am that it will bring Forseith leaping at the bait, but I hate to do it because my friends at college will see."

Babe again thought of Pete and wondered what his reaction would be. She was already hit on a plan for getting her picture in all the papers She thought it a good plan for her purposes but shrank from the publicity that she feared might leave a stain on her for years to come. She hesitated now even to tell her plan.

Receiver Plea Hit By Kelly Tire Head

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Sept. 9.—Samuel Woolner, jr., president of Kelly Springfield Tire Co., has authorized the following statement:

"Referring to the suit of one James A. Kelly against Kelly Springfield Tire Co. for the appointment of a receiver, the suit and application for receivership are unfounded and unjustified, although plaintiff claims to be the owner of 100 shares of the common stock of the company. The books of the company show that he is not the registered owner of any of the common stock.

"The Kelly Springfield Tire Co. is in excellent financial condition. The balance sheet of the company as of July 31, 1930, shows current assets of approximately $18,000,000 against current liabilities of approximately $2,100,000, a ratio of more than six to one. The company has no bonds, debentures or long time notes outstanding. Notwithstanding the general business depression, the business of the company for the months of July and August has shown a satisfactory profit.

"Counsel for the company have advised us that the suit is absolutely without merit and unjustified on both the law and facts. It is apparent that the application for a receiver is not made in good faith and will undoubtedly be summarily denied by the court."

Washington, Tuesday, Sept. 9, 8 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia—Mostly cloudy, possibly light showers Wednesday afternoon or night; Thursday showers; not much change in temperature; light variable winds becoming gentle easterly.

For Maryland—Mostly cloudy, possibly light showers Wednesday afternoon or night; Thursday showers; not much change in temperature; gentle variable winds, becoming moderate easterly.

For Virginia—Cloudy, probably occasional light showers Wednesday; Thursday showers; little change in temperature; moderate easterly winds.

Pressure is low and falling from Hudson Strait southeastward to northern Newfoundland. Resolution Island, 29.44 inches, and is relatively low over the Southern States and the western half of the United States. Tonopah, Nev., 29.68 inches; Del Rio, Tex., 29.72 inches, and Titusville, Fla., 29.86 inches. Another disturbance is moving eastward over the western Canadian Provinces. Swift Current, Sask., 29.64 inches. High pressure prevails over the Lake region, the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, the Mackenzie Valley, and northern and central Greenland. Nemaregalik, 30.34 inches; Cochrane, Ont., 30.20 inches, and Aklavik, B. N. T., 30.14 inches. This pressure distribution has caused showers within the last 24 hours in the South Atlantic and Gulf States, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, the southern Plains States, North Dakota, Montana, and the North Pacific States. The rainfall was heavy in southeastern Kansas. The temperature has fallen in portions of South Atlantic States, and has risen in the Rocky Mountain region, South Dakota and Manitoba.

The indications are for showers in Tennessee, the lower Ohio Valley, the South Atlantic States, and probably in the southern portion of the Middle Atlantic States Wednesday

Vines, Grant Bow in Net Upsets

By TED VOSBURGH.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—A fighting Irishman, Lyttleton Rogers drew himself up to his full height of 6 feet 7 inches, took a firm grip on his racquet and provided the national tennis singles championship with its daily thrill this afternoon by defeating young Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Calif., 4—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4.

The victory carried the biggest tennis player in the world into the fourth round, where he will encounter Bill Tilden tomorrow. "Big Bill," whose 6 feet 1 inch of altitude will be dwarfed by the giant Davis Cup ace from Ireland, outclassed Ed Feibleman, of New York, the twentieth ranking player of the country, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0, and took advantage of the opportunity to pull off all manner of spectacular shots for the benefit of the gallery of 5,500.

Grant Second Seeded

Star Beaten.

Vines was not the only seeded player to bow himself out of the tournament in the third round. Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, holder of the national clay courts singles title and No. 12 on the American seeded list, was upset by Samuel B. Gilpin 2d, of Philadelphia, 6—2, 4—6, 11—9, 3—6, 6—4, after exchanging baseline hot shots for some two hours and a half.

Tilden's foremost protege, Wilbur Coen, of Kansas City, bowed before the varied stroking of Sidney B. Wood, 18-year-old New York sensation, 6—2, 1—6, 6—1, 6—1. Young Wood gave Coen a tennis lesson in the last two sets when he played like a champion in the making. Coen, although the eighth ranking player in the country was not among the twelve Americans seeded and his play today was decidedly streaky.

All three of the leading English contenders—Harold G. N. Lee, John S. Olliff and Frederick Perry, scored in straight sets but some of the foremost Americans had considerable trouble.

Charest to Third Round

In Vet Play.

Clifford Sutter, intercollegiate champion from Tulane University, defeated Herbert Bowman, New York veteran, 6—1, 2—6, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3. Johnny Doeg played listlessly to defeat Lieut. R. M. Watt, jr., 6—4, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4. In a hard international

U. S. Poloists 3-1 Choice To Win

No Changes in British Line-Up to Be Made Today.

Americans Also Will Start Four Who Won First Game.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The British polo forces, challenging for the international cup, will pin their few remaining hopes in the second match tomorrow on the same line-up that absorbed a decisive beating at the hands of the American "Big Four" last Saturday at Meadow Brook.

British Not to Revamp Their Line-Up.

According to reports, the British considered recalling Capt. Richard-George, their original choice for No. 1, and revamping the line-up by moving the brilliant Lacey from No. 2 to his former position at back. It was decided, however, that no advantage was to be gained by "changing horses in midstream."

Capt. Tremayne expressed confidence that the challengers, profiting from their setback, would give a much better account of themselves tomorrow.

They will need to do so if they are to prevent the Americans from making it two straight victories and clinching the defense of the cup.

The United States, as anticipated, will make no shift in the line-up, consisting of Eric Pedley, Earle A. S. Hopping, Capt. Tommy Hitchcock and Winston Guest, playing in that order.

Hopping's Play in Opener Assures Him Berth.

The only question about the American line-up prior to the series involved the No. 2 position and Earle Hopping's sensational play Saturday in helping to register a 10-5 victory settled the issue completely. Hopping was the all-round star of the opening game, hitting with tremendous power and making the afternoon extremely unpleasant for the veteran British No. 3, Capt. Roark.

The Americans were 3-to-1 favorites to win the second match, scheduled at 3 p. m. (E.S.T.).

A victory for the British would force the series to the limit of three matches, with deciding play next Saturday.

Bobby Jones in Form; Ready for National

He announced he would play an exhibition round in Washington on September 16 with Leo Diegel, McDonald Smith and George Voigt. The exhibition is a charity benefit for Bobby McWatt, former Washington professional who is now a hopeless cripple.

CHOICES WIN IN P. G. A. PLAY

By BRIAN BELL.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The professional Golfers Association championship, the annual match play battle of the pros, almost lost its host today in the very first round. Gene Sarazen, home pro, was brought to the thirty-sixth hole by Charles Schneider, young Philadelphia pro, before the man who has held this title twice and has won the open championship, was able to shake him off, 1 up.

Stocky Gene went 1 down at the thirty-first hole when the courageous Schneider holed a chip shot when his ball was 30 yards from the green.

Schneider, however, could not stand prosperity and his tee shot at the next hole came to rest in some bushes along a fence. He tried to play a left-handed shot out but did not get very far and after another effort had made only slight progress, he conceded the hole, leaving the match squared.

Birdie 4 Gives Sarazen Match.

Sarazen then sent a long brassie to the thirty-fourth green and dropped an 8-foot putt for a birdie four enough to win the hole, and, as it turned out, the match.

Horton Smith, another favorite, was one down to Billy Burke, Greenwich, with only six holes left to play, but the half-dozen were enough, for the tall Missourian promptly leveled matters and then won two straight holes to become dormie. The margin was two and one.

Leo Diegel, the defending champion, won with little effort from Henry Ciuci, young pro, who is either very good or very bad. He was good in the afternoon, but he was bad in the morning and when he struck his stride, Diegel was too far ahead to be overhauled.

White Sox Purchase Star Minor Catcher

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The White Sox have purchased Catcher Frank Grube from Buffalo, of the International League, for 1931 delivery. Grube, who is 24 years old, has batted above .350 this season and is rated as the outstanding catcher in the International League.

HOMER GIVES MACKMEN VICTORY

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Jim Moore, a recruit outfielder, late of Dallas, Tex., batted out a home run in the fifth inning of today's game, scoring Bing Miller ahead of him, to provide the margin by which the Athletics defeated Detroit in the series opener, 3 to 1.

Moore's circuit blow enabled Lefty Grove to mark up his twenty-sixth victory of the season. Except for that moment of weakness, Earl Whitehill pitched on even terms with Grove in a hurlers' duel. Whitehill allowed seven hits to eight accumulated by the Tigers off Grove. Whitehill gave three passes to none by Grove, but struck out six batters to four fanned by Grove.

Spectacular catches by McManus, Stone and Funk featured the Tiger defense.

Griffith Denies Rumor Of Ruel Piloting Red Sox

ASSERTING that there was not the slightest foundation for the reports made yesterday to the effect that Catcher Herold "Muddy" Ruel, veteran receiver of the Nats, would leave the local club to succeed Charles "Heinie" Wagner as manager of the Boston Red Sox, next year, President Clark Griffith last night denied that he had ever discussed Ruel's departure from the Washington Team with the Boston Club.

The report also stated that it was because of Ruel's intended change that Catcher William "Pinky" Hargrave had been purchased from the Detroit Tigers from the waiver price of $7,500. This, too, Griffith denied, stating that the acquisition of Hargrave was merely the result of the opportunity to obtain another capable receiver for the Washington catching staff.

"No overture from any sources have been made for Ruel's services," Griffith stated last night, "and inasmuch as I would have to be consulted first in the event of a contemplated change, I don't think there is much foundation for the story."

The Associated Press in Boston also described the management of the Boston Baseball Club as asserting that "there wasn't a thing to it."

Robins Down Cubs; Race Tightens

Dodgers, Cards Virtually Tied 2½ Games Back.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The strong right arm of Ray Phelps, freshman star of the Brooklyn pitching staff, threw the National League more than ever into a four-cornered dog fight today as he pitched the Robins to a 3-to-0 victory over the Cubs in the first game of Chicago's Eastern invasion.

Phelps shut out the National League champions with five hits, scattered through as many different innings, and put the Robins into a virtual tie for second place with the St. Louis Cardinals, who lost a 2-1 decision across the river in New York. Brooklyn is only 1 point behind the Cards, and both teams are only 2½ games behind Chicago.

The Robins scored a run in the first inning on a swinging bunt with two out, and two in the eighth when Babe Herman drove his thirty-first home run into the left-field bleachers with one on base.

Fast Fielding Helps Pitchers.

Through the rest of the game, Phelps and Pat Malone, Cub pitching ace, engaged in a close duel. Malone gave the Robins seven hits and was kept out of trouble most of the time by brilliant fielding behind him. Three times Chicago double plays checked threatening Brooklyn rallies.

The big Chicago right-hander almost pulled out of his first-inning hole, created when Frederick started the game with a triple for the first of his three hits. Gilbert grounded to the infield and Frederick was out at the plate, the batter reaching second on the run-down. Gilbert reached third as Herman grounded out and scored when Wright beat out a hit to Bell.

The game was air tight from that point until the eighth when Frederick opened with a single. Gilbert fanned, but Herman hit a tremendous drive into the left-field bleachers on the fly for the deciding runs.

In four of the nine innings the Chicago lead-off man got on base, and in only two were the Cubs retired in order. But in every pinch Phelps was remarkably steady, and the Robins played tight ball to shut off any runs.

Giants Win Mound Duel From Cardinals, 2 to 1

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—An old-fashioned pitchers' battle today with the veterans, Clarence Mitchell and Burleigh Grimes, as the principals, enabled the Giants to gain a full game on the two leaders of the National League pennant race with a 2-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The triumph placed the fourth-place Giants only three games behind the league-leading Chicago Cubs and a half game behind St. Louis and Brooklyn.

Frisch paved the way for the game's first run when he opened the seventh by beating out a grounder. Bottomley sent him to second with a sacrifice, and Blades sent a single to left to drive in the run.

The St. Louis run looked very big for a moment, but Jackson and Roettger soon changed the aspect of the game. Jackson led off with a single and reached third as Roettger followed with a double. Hogan, pinch hitting for Critz, hit to the infield, but Jackson beat Ge'bert's throw to the plate for the tying run. Roettger scored the winning tally on the next play as Leach sent a high bounder to Frisch and was thrown out at first.

FIGHT TO FINISH

Nats Keep Pace With Macks; Browns Tie Game in 9th.

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 9.—The Nationals batted out their tenth verdict over the St. Louis Browns in twenty starts this season when four singles and West's double gave them five runs and an 8-to-4 decision in twelve innings of good baseball here this afternoon. Irving Hadley had allowed the Browns five hits until he weakened and was pounded for three safeties and the tying run in the ninth frame.

Cronin, Hayes, Bluege and Rice singled in the twelfth, with Burke drawing a pass in between, and then came West's double, which completely ruined the afternoon for Manager Killefer of the Browns.

Manush Stars Afield.

Killefer had cause to ponder a bit earlier in the afternoon when "Heinie" Manush romped all over the outfield to snare five long flies and turn that many difficult catches to make him resemble the best outfielder to show here this season.

The local shortstop lost his head at this point, however, and instead of finding themselves with a runner on second and one out the Browns soon realized they had two out and no one on when Rice's good throw to Cronin was relayed to Bluege in time to catch Kress sliding into third.

Hayes and West had three hits apiece, with the last blow of the former putting the Nats in the lead in the twelfth, when his single scored Bluege after two were out.

Blue Gives Browns Good Start.

Collins had retired Hayes and Hadley on infield grounders when Melillo muffed an easy roller from Rice. This boot proved a costly break when West followed with a double off the right field screen, Rice stopping at third. Manush then lined a triple to right and both runners scored.

The Browns tied it in their half when Hadley passed Goslin after fanning Blue and Metzler and then watched Rice kick Kress' single around until the former Nat went over the plate.

Yanks Whip Indians In Wild See-Saw Game

Cleveland, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees increased their third-place margin over the Indians by winning a wild see-saw battle, 8 to 6, today as they opened their Western tour. The Tribesmen used four pitchers, and the Yankees three, with George Pipgras getting credit for the victory and Pete Jablonowski being charged with the defeat.

This array of hurlers yielded 37 hits, of which the Yankees made 16, and eighth walks and hit five batsmen. The Indians had the game well in hand going into the seventh but the wildness of Miller and Jablonowski allowed the Yanks to score three runs on one hit and tie the score. New York won in the eighth on singles by Ruth and Gehrig, Lazzeri's sacrifice fly and Jorgens' single.

OPENING FEATURE AT MARLBORO TO PARTNERSHIP

Filly Draws Away Near Finish

Stylish Mack, 14 to 1, Upsets Dope in Fourth Race.

Special to The Washington Post.

MARLBORO RACE TRACK, Sept. 9.—W. C. Westmoreland's Partnership, 4-year-old daughter of the Finn—L. A. Foudre, showed a slashing race of one and one-sixteenth miles in 1:50 4-5 to win the fifth number, looked upon as the outstanding event of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association's opening fall card.

Gov Albert C. Ritchie was among the crowd of 5,000 that saw the filly come from behind in the stretch to whip Mrs F. I. Von Derbeek's Five Oaks and E. H. Hoffman's Frances St. L. in the order named.

Scratches cut the original field of seven to five at post time but it helped rather than hindered the race for it enabled every starter to go to racing at once and the contest was truly run.

Bounding Deep and Let Alone fought each other to a standstill the first three quarters where Partnership, who was being snagged back in fourth place, made her bid.

Partnership went up fast on the outside of her field and once straightened out in the home stretch she easily drew away from her field to win as her rider pleased.

A. Adams became the leading winning rider of the meeting when he drove R. Paradise's High Dell home ahead of seven other platers in the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth.

High Dell's victory ran Adams' score to three, as he had previously won with Elusagon and Sometime.

Talis Leads All the Way In Opener.

Former Jockey Mose Simon, of Washington, furnished the winner of the opening event of the meeting, when Talis, 2-year-old chestnut daughter of Polymelian—Talisman, ran five and one-half furlongs in 1:08 4-5 to net their backers $5.00 for the usual investment.

Talis broke on top and led every step of the way home to win driving from Wandering Jim. Hugh Lou led home the other five starters.

Jim Bean, of Washington, made the thousands of residents of the Nation's Capital who were here happy when his Elusagon won the second race in the new track record time of 1:06 3-5, which cut one and two-fifths seconds off the old mark made by Melva Rose on September 13, 1929.

Elusagon had to run a powerful race to win. She broke fast but was immediately cut off by Lester W. and was fifth going to the first turn. However, she found clear sailing on the back stretch, and when the field swung for home she was right on top of Guy Frazier, the contender. In the dash to the wire Elusagon easily bested Guy Frazier with Sylvia Mede third.

Danny Clarke's Sometime made a show of the field in the third, a 6½-furlong sprint, when he won by a half dozen lengths from Remedy with Highland Captain third.

Stylish Mack at $31.70 Wins Fourth.

A. B. Berger, jr., of Pittsburgh, surprised the big crowd when his Stylish Mack ran 6½ furlongs in the fourth to pay his backers $31.70.

Stylish Mack was kept right close to the early pace until the turn for home, where he came fast in the center of the track to win going away from Grace H. The latter set the early pace and tired right at the end. Colonel Seth ran an even race and had no excuses.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE best of second flight of the 3-year-olds will start in the fourth race at Lincoln Fields, Chicago. TANNERY now and then flashes a good race, and it seems with the light impost that the Pritchard colt should win. His defeat of ELLICE, a very fast filly from the Camden Stable, shows what he can do when the breaks favor him. He takes off weight and probably will be the favorite today. He is as much of a standout as there is on the card, and if he loses this race he is almost hopeless.

REVEILLE BOY, a kind of freak horse like JIM DANDY, seems to be the contender, and may be more dangerous than here rated, but it seems that a fast track is not his best chance. CALOME beat TANNERY last out but takes up weight and third is probably the right placing for him.

FIRST RACE—This race is for 2-year-olds. ROYAL ROGUE, second last out, appears best and is selected in this dash. He was second to VOLTGREEN, one of the best Western juveniles, and should improve over that race, for he was only beaten by a head. CHILLY FLIGHT can do better than the last shows, and is regarded the contender. SWIFT AND GRAY may be fast, and is rated third in this field.

SECOND RACE—ELLICE, not always consistent, seems so much the best in the second race that her selection to win is unavoidable. She was fourth to ESKIMO the other day, but was the favorite. She may run her race today, and if so all is in her favor. FIDDLER may be the contender, but STOCK MARKET always has a chance. This is a good field.

THIRD RACE—COUSIN DOLL looks much the best of the 2-year-olds in the third race. CANFLI is rated second, but her last was bad, being out of the field, she may improve. BROWN EYED MARY always has a chance in a field of this kind. COUSIN DOLL is distinctly the class. In the second race back she beat TAN FACE by five lengths.

FIFTH RACE—In the fifth race TYPHOON is expected to come to life. He was last to LADY BROADCAST in his last start, the Lincoln Handicap, but speed generally discourages him. It will be different today, and with 102 pounds up, he should improve. ISLAM has shown signs of improvement and he is expected to take the place money, with a chance for first. The mare ULUNIU is always dangerous, but her recent form is not good. She should not fail for third.

SIXTH RACE—BROWN BRUTUS is selected in the sixth. He was third to LIEUT. RUSSELL, a fast colt, last week, and it is possible the stable will turn him loose today. RETORT is speedy and may fight it out. The other one to watch is OTILLA.

SEVENTH RACE—TARNISH is regarded almost as good as home in the seventh race. She will have LAUGHING LAURA, not much, to beat. VANQUISH may improve. He was second to MACHETE last out. LILLIAN T. has a chance. DACITE can run well occasionally.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS ROSEDALE, $8.74, $4.74, $3.28; NIFTY, $8.74, $6.02; CHARM, $4.66.

MISS ROSEDALE, off quickly, followed NIFTY closely in the early stages and, catching the latter tiring at mid-stretch, took a good lead and won easily. NIFTY showed good speed in pacemaking and weakened in the last furlong, but was good enough to hold others. CHARM stumbled at the start and showed a good effort. PERJURY made up much ground and was going well at the end. FAVORITE II tired in the final run. ESTIN began slowly and closed ground. HYPNOTISM pulled up lame. DIODORO and LEE COOPER quit.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. For maiden 2-year-old fillies. Mostly good for all but Lady Ebony. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:49. Off at 2:54. Winner, E. F. Prichard's b. f. (2), by Paul Weidel—Blemished. Trained by J. J. Greely. Value to winner, $900; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:47 1-5, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEIDELEEN, $113.56, $45.52, $18.72; VERY WELL, $5.30, $4.06; HAPPY HOLIDAY, $18.40

WEIDELEEN raced into contention in the first quarter and, despite going very wide at the stretch, wore down the leaders and scored in a driving finish. VERY WELL had early speed and led by a good margin to the last sixteenth, where she weakened slightly. HAPPY HOLIDAY raced forwardly and held on fairly well. ALL GIRLS raced well up. LIGHT STEP made up much ground. ROSEVOLT was never dangerous.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:21½. Winner, Gallaher and Combs' ch. f. (3), by Bunting—Whirl. Trained by S. S. Combs. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:46 4-5, 1:12.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY FINGERS, $9.38, $3.78, $3.00; WILLA, $3.10, $2.64; PIOUS, $4.06.

LADY FINGERS, showing her usual early speed, soon went to the front and, opening up a long lead after going half the distance, was an easy winner. WILLA broke slowly and was in trouble repeatedly until the stretch was reached, then came fast when clear to outfinish the others. PIOUS made up some ground in the stretch. RUEFUL closed ground. AMERICAN THUNDER tired in the stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily. Won driving. Went to post at 3:49. Off at 3:50½. Winner, H. P. Whitney's b. g. (5), by Chicle—Tanya. Trained by M. Goldblatt. Value to winner, $1,200; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:22 3-5, 0:45 3-5, 1:11.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TANTIVY, $15.22, $5.32, $4.02; CLUB HOUSE, $3.68, $2.58; CAYUGA, $4.00.

TANTIVY was outrun for a half, then moved up fast and, coming with a rush in the final furlong, caught the leaders tiring and won going away. CLUB HOUSE raced forwardly throughout and bested CAYUGA in the final drive. The latter tired after setting the pace. NUSAKAN showed early speed.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,400; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:16½. Winner, J. N. Camden's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HONEY LOCUST, $3.64, $2.70, $2.32; COG AIR, $3.78, $2.[illegible]; CALF ROPER, $3.02.

HONEY LOCUST soon sprinted to the front and, opening up a good advantage, led all the way to win under mild urging. COG AIR saved ground where possible and made a game bid near the end, but did not threaten the winner. CALF ROPER was outrun to the stretch, saved ground and finished well.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:45½. Winner, J. Lowe's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HONEST JOHN, $4.92, $2.98, $2.48; BUTTERED TOAST, $3.70, $2.98; SERAJEVO, $3.66.

HONEST JOHN sprinted to the front rounding the first turn, was then taken in hand and, withstanding the challenge of HILLOCK, drew into a safe lead when the latter tired and showed the way to the finish. BUTTERED TOAST was in close quarters most of the way in the early running, outgamed SERAJEVO in the final drive. The latter was blocked soon after the start, made up much ground to reach a contending position and faltered in the final run. RAY RUDDY and PRIDE made up ground.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:19. Winner, W. G. Yanke's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL MANAGER, $32.94, $15.18, $7.40; GRAND DAD, $13.10, $5.84; GOTHAM, $2.60.

ROYAL MANAGER was never far from the leaders and, moving up fast after going half the distance, came to the outside at the stretch turn to finish fast and win going away. GRAND DAD was always close to the pace and bested GOTHAM. Latter tired in the last furlong after making the pace. MYSTERIOUS dropped back to last place on the back stretch, but made up much ground in the last quarter and was in close quarters in the stretch run.

BANNOCKBURN QUALIFICATION STARTS TODAY

300 Golfers To Play in Tourney

Medal Rounds Listed for Today and Tomorrow.

Majs. Maiden, Noyes Lead Qualifiers for Army Tourney.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE annual fall invitation tournament of the Bannockburn Club will begin this morning and from 9 o'clock until after 3 o'clock this afternoon a steady procession of golfers will compete in the qualifying round. The entry list, augmented by many additional names yesterday, now numbers nearly 300, with half of the field playing an 18-hole round today and the remainder qualifying tomorrow.

Qualification will be under what is known as the Bannockburn system, with players with handicap of 8 and under qualifying in the first and in no other sixteen.

Handicap System To Apply.

Contestants with handicaps of 9, 10 and 11 must qualify in the second sixteen; with 12 and 13 in the third sixteen; with 14 and 15 in the fourth sixteen, and with 16 or over in the fifth sixteen. Players may qualify in a higher sixteen than is called for by their handicap but not in a lower, this arrangement giving all a chance to meet their competitors in match play on an equal basis.

In addition to the long list of names published yesterday, the golf committee last night announced the following pairings and times of play of new entries:

Wednesday, 9:35—L. G. Fray, Manor, and W. T. Smith, Bannockburn. 9:40—George D. Wellington, Los Angeles, and Harry G. Ford, Nice, France. 10:30—Frank Schlosser, Beaver Dam, and Stanley B. Pierson, Beaver Dam. 10:45—R. E. White, Los Angeles, and J. B. Eason, Congressional.

Thursday, 9:05—A. S. Gardiner, jr., Columbia, and Dr. T. J. W. Brown, Bannockburn. 12:15—H. F. Cochran, Columbia, and T. J. Shea, Bannockburn.

More than 60 Army officers yesterday competed on the course of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club in the first round of qualification for eligibility to participate in the Army golf championship tournament which will be played on the course at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., next week. Eighteen holes were played yesterday, to be followed by another round of eighteen holes today, and the six contestants with the lowest gross scores will qualify.

Hartig to Motor Winners To Tourney.

On Friday morning these six fortunate officers will be motored to Fort Leavenworth by Frank Hartig, the club professional, who is not only a World War veteran but has been the recipient of numerous decorations attesting his bravery on the front.

When all the scores had been turned in last evening the field was led by Maj. Naiden, former Army champion, and Maj. Noyes, each with a gross score of 80. Maj. Ransom, Capt. Mennie and Maj. Kilmer followed close behind with 81, while Maj. Baldwin, Maj. Rice and Capt. Clear each had 82 to their credit. In addition to the low gross score, however, there is to be a prize for low net and yesterday Maj. Ransom, with a card of 81—14—67, was at least three strokes ahead of his nearest competotor.

The scores:

Col. Hayne, 94—18—76; Col. Hasson, 101—18—83; Col. Guggenheim, 93—14—79; Col. Milton, 97—18—81; Maj. Naiden, 80—5—75; Maj. Kilmer, 81—8—73; Maj. Barr, 98—8—83; Maj. Mountford, 84—8—76; Col. Glover, 90—15—75; Col. Taylor, 100—20—80; Col. Glass, 84—7—77; Maj. Hughes, 83—8—75; Col. Magee, 91—17—74; Maj. Cunningham, 99—22—77; Col. Waldron, 101—21—80; Col. Seamon, 103—27—76; Col. Parrott, 92—8—84; Maj. Gullion, 94—11—83; Capt. Mennie, 81—8—73; Maj. Sutherland, 82—2—80; Capt. Clear, 82—8—74; Maj. Noyes, 80—4—76; Col. Costes, 93—15—78; Chaplain Vaughan, 93—17—76; Col. Cavenaugh, 106—24—82; Col. Hodges, 112—20—92; Col. Howard, 101—27—74; Maj. Porter, 110—27—83; Col. Quigley, 101—16—85; Capt. Hendley, 96—14—82; Maj. Silleck, 93—15—80; Capt. Foltz, 103—18—85; Maj. Ransom, 81—14—67; Col. Adams, 118—26—92; Capt. Worley, 103—18—85; Capt. Lusombe, 87—7—80; Lieut. Belshe, 87—4—83; Col. Cooper, 90—14—76; Col. Merchant, 118—24—94; Lieut. Young, 92—12—80; Col. Humphrey, 90—14—76; Col. Wildrick, 93—14—79; Gen. Rhodes, 97—18—79; Gen. Murray, 89—14—75; Maj. Baldwin, 82—12—70; Capt. Scholl, 101—21—80; Maj. Robertson, 89—10—79; Col. Fulton, 95—10—85; Maj. Rose, 90—12—78; Maj. Rice, 100—18—82.

Withdrew—Maj. Peterson.

John E. Powell, jr., son of one of the owners of the Washington Hotel, is the new junior champion of the Columbia Country Club. He defeated John P. Holzberg yesterday in the final round, 2 and 1. He was all even at the turn, but on the fifteenth tee was 1 up, holding this advantage, with an additional hole, until he ended the match on the seventeenth green. His name will be inscribed upon the junior trophy donated by A. S. Gardiner, in addition to which he was presented with a gold medal. The results of the matches yesterday were as follows:

Second flight—J. B. Trew, jr., defeated Richard Walsh, 2 and 1; Walter Murphy defeated Austin Powell, 3 and 2. Final round—Murphy defeated Trew, 3 and 2.

Defeated four—Richard Ray defeated bye, Charles Graves defeated C. A. Slater, jr., 2 up. Final round—Graves defeated Ray, 2 and 1.

A. F. Bergman, secretary-treasurer of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association, yesterday held a conference with George P. James, chairman of the golf committee of the Columbia Country Club, at which the details of the Jones-Mackenzie vs. McLeod-Smith exhibition match to be held on the course of the Columbia Club on the afternoon of next Tuesday, September 16, were in large measure arranged. The problems of parking, policing, gallery, ticket selling, &c., were thoroughly discussed and were solved through the appointment of subcommittees with experience in these matters.

All Proceeds to Go To McWatt.

This match, as has already been published, is entirely for the benefit of Bob McWatt, who many years ago was the professional at the old Columbia Golf Club and who during the past two years has been a helpless cripple through injuries received in an automobile accident.

Former Notre Dame Star Joins G. U. Gridiron Staff

John Smith, Captain of 1927 "Irish" Eleven, Signed to Aid Mills; Parlette Looms as Regular End.

Special to The Washington Post.

POINT LOOKOUT, Md., Sept. 9.—John Smith, captain and center of the strong Notre Dame Eleven of 1929, has been signed as assistant coach by Head Coach Tommy Mills, of Georgetown University.

Smith has been here several days and thus has gotten acquainted with the Georgetwon gridmen in training here. He succeeds Tim Moynihan, center of last year's Notre Dame Team, who joined Mills last winter but who failed to appear for the current training without making an explanation. It was reported about ten days ago that Moynihan would return to Notre Dame as assistant to Knute Rockne.

Mills ordered another hard practice for the Hilltoppers today, a continuation of yesterday's offensive drill with stress, being placed on the effectiveness of the ends' work.

No more injuries cropped up to swell the list of casualties reported after yesterday's workout, but Joe Bandzul, stocky lineman, who suffered a badly wrenched knee, was still hobbling around on crutches and his case is so serious that he may not be able to play this season.

Lew Parlette, tall, rangy reserve end from the 1929 squad, underwent his first real practice today, although he has been in camp since last Saturday. He immediately was placed among the group of ends who are most highly regarded as prospective regulars.

Smith is the fifth former Notre Dame football player to be signed by Georgetown since last winter. John Colrick and Tom Murphy, along with Moynihan, of last year's "Irish" Eleven, accompanied Mills when the latter came to Washington to succeed Lou Little. Red Smith, of the 1926 Notre Dame gridmen, coached the Hilltop Baseball Team the past spring.

C. A. L. Grid Champs Practice Tomorrow

The St. Stephens A. C. Eleven, which will compete in defense of its 1929 title in the forthcoming Capital City League race, will practice tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock on No. 7 Field, Seventeenth and B streets northwest.

The following players are requested to report, also any new candidates: Augustine, Cleary, R. Curtin, P. Curtin, Claggett, Daiglish, Devlin, Fitzgerald, Flannigan, Girton, McMahon, Morse, Nealon, Niland, Parrott, T. Pettit, L. Pettit, Shore, Smith, Warring, Walsh, Wallace and Zumbo.

Greenville Wins First Of Series With Macon

Greenville, S. C., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Chief Huey Harmon allowed Macon but two hits this afternoon and Greenville won the first game of the South Atlantic Coast postseason series, 3 to 0.

Harmon had perfect control and kept the Peaches swinging wildly at sharp-breaking curves. Harmon was given brilliant support, especially by Ellis Taylor at third and Nellie Leach at second. These two, with Harmon, had all assists of the game for Greenville.

George Rhinehardt hit two doubles and Leach a triple and single for four of Greenville's five hits. Jim Hudgens got the other.

The game was a pitchers' duel from first to last between Harmon and Earl Mattingly, the Peaches' hurler.

The second game of the series will be played here tomorrow. The teams travel to Macon Thursday for the third and fourth games Friday and Saturday.

BETHESDA PINMEN MEET.

CUE STARS IN MATCH.

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.). — Welker Cochran, former world 18.2 balkline billiard champion, and Allen Hall, Chicago three-cushion star, will play the first block of a special 300-point three-cushion match tomorrow.

Cochran is expected to arrive by airplane tomorrow morning.

CENTENNIALS DRILL.

The Centennial 150-pound Football Team will practice at 7:30 o'clock tonight on the New York Avenue Playgrounds. All regulars are to report.

Warrenton Awaiting Annual Horse Show

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Sept. 9.—With the thirty-first annual Warrenton horse show just about ready for the opening bugle at 9:30 Wednesday morning everything is shipshape for the two days' exhibition. The ring is in excellent condition despite the ravages of the dry summer and the turf is green. The management has dumped loads of sawdust on the far side of each jump to provide springy landings for the jumpers.

Every stall is filled while anxious owners and their employes look carefully to the comfort of the occupants who will for the next two days fight it out in the green oval ring for the coveted blue ribbon and handsome awards that go to the winners.

Warrenton is already filled with horse-show guests, with more coming all the time. Traffic in the narrow streets of this town, built for horse traffic, is a problem. Local officers will be assisted for the next 48 hours by members of the State constabulary.

Huge horse vans, carrying their high-price freight, have been rumbling into Warrenton and put to the show grounds all day. Predictions as to weather for Wednesday is clear and cool. The Warren Green Hotel is turning away guests as every room has been reserved. Numerous social events are planned for the show, including luncheons, dinners and dances.

Unless all signs fail this promises to be the banner year of the thirty-one exhibitions of the association.

GOLF SCENE SET.

Los Angeles, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The sixth annual Los Angeles $10,000 Open Golf Tournament, to be played January 9, 10 and 11, will be staged on the Wilshire Country Club links, President L. D. Owen of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday.

Benefit Fight Program Planned at Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 9.—Alexandria Rotary Club will sponsor a gigantic boxing program for the benefit of the local Day Nursery and Children's Home within the next ten days. Action on this plan was taken at the weekly session of the club today.

Judge William S. Snow, president of the club, appointed Jack Tulloch, a member of the local club, as chairman of the event. It is planned to stage the boxing exhibitions in Armory Hall, on Royal street.

Frankie Mann to Arrange Fight Card.

Frankie Mann, popular Washington boxing promoter, will arrange the athletic card. Mann expects to pit Billy Schwartz, Alexandria fistic idol, in the main event against some District of Columbia favorite. A committee composed of James Armstrong, Julian Chauncey and F. W. Goodnow will aid the chairman in the carrying out of the program.

The St. Mary's Celtic Football Team will hold an important drill, the first of the season, under arc lights at Baggett's Stadium on Wednesday. Director Corbett requests all candidates for the team to be present at 8 o'clock.

Maurice Given, new athletic director for the Alexandria High School, arrived in the Virginia city today and immediately called a practice for the Big Red Team on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. He expects to issue equipment to members of the squad at this time. Given says he hopes to have 50 candidates seeking berths.

New Coach Was Star At Roanoke.

The new high school coach is a big fellow. He stands over 6 feet and weighs around 185 pounds. Given was a football star at Roanoke College in 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927. He played a tackle position. In baseball he captained the college teams. His home is at Roanoke, Va.

The Mechanical Baseball Team, under the leadership of Bill Johnson, won the Potomac Yard League title yesterday, defeating the Inspection Nine in the crucial game, 9-5. Each club had won a contest up until this game was fought.

Mississippi Time Race Is Abandoned

Cape Girardeau, Mo., Sept. 9 (A. P.).—The outboard motorboat Baby Lee II abandoned its attempt to set a new record between New Orleans and St. Louis on the Mississippi River today with a broken crank shaft.

The disaster came 5 miles south of here and after the mishap the boat floated downstream to Thebes, Ill., where it was landed. It was the second accident in 10 miles. Last night a new motor was brought from St. Louis to replace one which gave out and the trip was resumed at 6 a. m.

Fighters End Training for Battle Tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—With only three fighting reputations and the size of the gate at stake, Young Al Singer, lightweight champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, uncrowned king of the welterweights, polished off their preparatory chores today for a ten-round duel Thursday night in the Yankee Stadium.

The confidence of the 135-pound ruler, knockout conquerer of Sammy Mandell, began to have its effect today on the betting populace. Odds on McLarnin, held steady at 2 to 1 since the match was made, slid away to 8 to 5 and 7 to 5. The prospect was that the Dublin dynamiter would enter the ring a slight favorite with much of the "smart money" riding on Singer.

Small Weight Difference Changes Odds.

Singer's stock took a boost when it appeared that McLarnin would have only a few pounds the better of the weight instead of a decisive margin. The Jewish star, a boy of 20 and still growing, indicated today that he will weigh about 136 pounds, while McLarnin may be as low as 141. Jimmy has agreed to scale 142 or less.

Business picked up at the ticket windows today, but the advance sale still was disappointing for a match between two such local favorites as Singer and McLarnin. A last-minute rush to the turnstiles alone will above the gate receipts above $125,000. The bout will be broadcast.

THIRTY thousand welcoming shouts as he steps to bat . . . the idol of them all. Ball one! Ball two! . . . and cr-r-ack! he's done it again. Popularity to be lasting must be deserved.

Maryland U. Gridmen To Scrimmage Marines

Maryland University gridmen will go to Philadelphia Saturday to scrimmage with the United States Marines squad in training there. The workout will be repeated Sunday and Monday.

The arrangement of this heavy work at such an early date in preseason training indicates that Maryland is making serious efforts to reach full strength by the time of the Yale game, scheduled October 4, in New Haven.

Field of 70 Expected In Wardman Net Play

A field of more than 70 contestants is anticipated for the Wardman Park Hotel tennis tournament beginning Saturday afternoon on the courts adjacent the hotel, according to Esteban Vergess, who is in charge of the event.

More than 40 players have already filed entries, said Vergess last night, and about 30 others have signified their intentions of competing. Of the signed group 10 are women, but when play starts approximately 30 of the fair sex will be ready for action, the chairman stated.

Local Marine Third In Camp Perry Shoot

Camp Perry, Ohio, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The first four stages of the national individual rifle match, with 1,659 persons taking part, were completed today with Sergt. E. R. Cook, of Tucson, Ariz., ranking first with a score of 195 out of a possible 200.

Sergt. J. M. Blakeley, of the United States Marines, had the same score but was outranked by Sergt. Cook on the long range. Capt. R. T. Presnell, Washington, Marines, was third, with 194; Sergt. J. R. Tucker, Bellington, Wash., Marines, fourth, 193; Corpl A. W. Dumsha, Baltimore, Marines, and Lieut. C. M. Cox, Clarence, Mo., United States Navy, tied for fifth with 192 each.

Lively Card Planned For Fort Washington

Plans calculated to duplicate last Monday night's rousing program have been formed for the card of six bouts to be held next Monday night at Fort Washington, Md., under auspices of the Front Line Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, according to Goldie Ahearn, F. L. P. matchmaker.

Ahearn has arranged what he hopes will prove the best bout yet seen at the nearby military reservation. He has signed K. O. Phil Raymond, slugging Baltimore southpaw, to meet Sailor McKenna, formerly of the Naval Air Station and now training at the Mohawk Club, for an eight-round feature.

Another eight-rounder will see Sylvan Bass, of Baltimore, opposing a mittman yet to be signed who will replace Harry ("Kid") Grove, of this city. Grove was slated to engage Bass, but was taken ill. Two bouts of six rounds each and two fours will complete the program.

Champion Paddler Shows Here Saturday

Ernie Reidel, of the Pendleton Canoe Club, of New York City, considered by many to be the world's outstanding paddler, will be one of the competitors in the Lipton Cup Regatta, sponsored locally by the Potomac Boat Club, which will be held here on Saturday. The affair is expected to draw all of the leading canoe clubs of the country and will start at 2 o'clock.

In addition to the Potomac Boat Club and Pendleton Canoe Club, the following organizations will compete: Yonkers Canoe Club, Philadelphia Canoe Club, Tuscarora Canoe Club, Bristol Y. M. C. A., and the Old Dominion Club.

Charley Millar, ace of the host club, will be unable to defend his laurels in the one-half-mile straightaway, as the result of a dog bite two weeks ago. He had been looked upon as one of the five Potomac Boat Club representatives, the others being George Shorb, Tommy Hayes, Banjo Harber and Dick Kelso.

FAVORITES TRIUMPH IN P. G. A. GOLF PLAY

margin of victory of the day, with a victory over Dave Hackney, Lowell, Mass., 11 up and 10 to play.

Densmore Shute, Columbus, Ohio; Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia, and Johnny Farrell, New York, won handily, their prowess with wood and iron eliminating Joe Frank, Kenosha, Wis., Gunnard Johnson, St. Paul, and Norman Smith, Yakima, Wash.

Fry Brothers, From Coast, Both Beaten.

The Fry brothers, from California Mark and Earl, were defeated after they had led their opponents at the luncheon recess. Mark Fry was stopped by Al Espinosa, 2 and 1, although Al was four down after eighteen holes. Earl fell before Laule Ayton after the Evanston pro had trailed two holes at the half-way mark. Ayton went out in the afternoon in par 35 and then played the next six holes, three under even fours.

Al Watrous and Eric Seavall fought out a great battle before the Michigan pro nosed the Californian out. They were all even when 30 holes had been played.

Bill Mehlhorn and Harry Cooper not only played great golf but introduced the double stymie to the competition. Cooper finally won, after trailing two holes at the recess. Cooper twice stymied "Wild Bill" on one hole, the thirty-fourth, when the Chicago pro held a lead of only one hole and the Floridian had a putt for a win to square the match. Cooper putted and left Mehlhorn stymied. Mehlhorn then tried to jump the ball, and when Cooper putted the next time, his ball again cut off Mehlhorn from the cup.

Al Watrous, Detroit, defeated Eric Seavall, Culver City, Calif., 3 and 1; Charlie Lacey, Philadelphia, defeated Charley Guest, Pontiac, Mich., 3 and 2; Harold Samson, Burlingame, Calif., defeated Clarence Erdman, Philadelphia, 4 and 3; Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico, defeated Henry Ciuci, Stratford, Conn., 8 and 7; Tommy Armour, Detroit, defeated Dave Hackney, Lowell, Mass., 11 and 10; Bob Shave, Cleveland, defeated Joseph Kenney, Sylvania, Ohio, 1 up; Densmore Shute, Columbus, Ohio, defeated Joe Frank, Kenosha, Wis., 8 and 6; Johnny Farrell, New York, defeated Norman Smith, Yakima, Wash., 7 and 5.

Gene Sarazen, New York, defeated Charles Schneider, Philadelphia, 1 up. Bob Crowley, Haverhill, defeated Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, 4 and 3. Harry Cooper, Chicago, defeated Bill Mehlhorn, Pensacola, Fla., 2 and 1. Al Espinosa, Chicago, defeated Mark Frey, Oakland, Calif., 2 and 1. Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia, defeated Gunnard Johnson, St. Paul, 8 and 7. Jack Collins, Dayton, Ohio, defeated Johnny Golden, Norton, Conn., 5 and 4. Horton Smith, New York, defeated Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn., 2 and 1. Laule Ayton, Evanston, Ill., defeated Earl Fry, Alameda, Calif., 4 and 3.

SECOND ROUND PAIRINGS.

Watrous vs. Lacy, Swanson vs. Diegel, Armour vs. Shave, Shute vs. Farrell, Sarazen vs. Crowley, Cooper vs. Espinosa, Kirkwood vs. Collins, Smith vs. Ayton.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS

608 12th St. N.W.

Over Woolworth's 5c & 10c Store

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

COUNTY MANAGER PLAN IS APPROVED

Arlington Civic Federation Indorses Committee's Recommendation.

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Indorsement of the report of the legislation and legal action committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation recommending the county manager form of government with election of a county board of five members to be elected at large was given by the Clarendon Citizens Association at its meeting held last night in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce.

Preceding the vote, Robert N. Anderson, chairman of the federation committee, gave a comprehensive report of the findings of the committee who were ably aided by a special committee from the chamber of commerce and the Arlington County Bar Association.

Chairman Anderson pointed out that the committee after a study of the question of a change in the form of county government had three plans before it for its consideration—the modified commission form, the county manager form and incorporation into a city of the first class. Early in the study the committee eliminated the incorporation plan because of the great loss of revenue from the State for State highways.

Mr. Anderson said that the voters would have to vote upon whether there shal be a change in the present form of government, which type shall be adopted and whether members of the county board should be elected at large.

Among other members of the committee who strongly advocated adoption of the committee's report are Walter U. Varney, member of the committee of the Bar Association, and Ashton C. Jones, member of the committee from the Chamber of Commerce.

Delegates to the federation were instructed to vote for the adoption of the committee's report and were authorized to use their own judgment as to the time of holding the election. It was pointed out by many members that ample time should be allowed to carry on a campaign of education and not attempt to force the election in November, as mentioned in the committee's report.

During the month of August 276 deeds were recorded in the county clerk's office, according to the monthly report released yesterday. The tax to the State amounted to $707.96.

Other items in the report are wills and administrations, 13, State tax, $62.20; chancery suits, 1,037, of this number 1,023 represent suits which have been filed in the name of the State for delinquent real estate taxes dating back from 1927, State tax, $21; actions at law, 15, State tax, $16; fines collected during the month for violations of the prohibition law, $110, with costs amounting to $265.75; fines collected in other than prohibition cases were $116.25, with costs totaling $147.75.

Delinquent real estate taxes collected during the month going to the State treasurer amounted to $152.14. The amount collected which goes to the county treasurer totaled $1,435.58.

Total funds collected for State purposes was $1,185.55.

John A. Petty was elected president of the Livingstone Heights Civic League at the annual meeting held last night in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, at Rixey Station. Mr. Petty succeeds H. C. Bates. Other officers are James W. Trick, vice president, and Mrs. Claire Trick Willison, secretary-treasurer.

Lieut. Comdr. Percy T. Wright, Dr. E. M. Blackwell, Mrs. A. F. Williams, jr., and Joseph G. Dunn, together with the above-named officers, constitute the board of trustees.

Delegates to the Arlington County Civic Federation elected are John A. Petty, H. C. Bates, Lieut. Comdr. Percy T. Wright, and Wilson Camp. The alternates are W. R. Coppage, Joseph G. Dunn, J. W. Somerville and Arthur F. Williams, jr.

Following the election a general discussion was held on the report of the Arlington County Civic Federation's committee on a change in the form of the local county government.

The meeting concluded with refreshments served by the entertainment committee, of which Mrs. Nan Coppage is chairman.

Fred Driver and S. S. Smith, of the State Dairy and Food Department of the State Health Department, were in Arlington County yesterday assisting Health Inspector Norbert Melnick in making an inspection of all dairies within the county.

Their purpose was to instruct operators of dairies as to the proper method of carrying milk in accordance with State and county health laws. Following the inspection it was stated that milk will be graded and labeled according to grade.

A complete report of the conditions as found as a result of the inspection will be compiled and released within the next few days.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow at 12 o'clock at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse with A. B. Honts presiding.

Claiming that gasoline filling stations are practically banned in "local business" areas as a result of the restrictions placed upon them under the zoning ordinance, Robert H. Forman, zoning administrative officer, stated last night that he will present to the zoning appeal board at its meeting tomorrow night an amendment to the ordinance which he feels will take care of the situation. He states that he hopes the board will study it and approve it prior to its presentation to the county board of supervisors, who will be asked to adopt it.

The Royal Arch Chapter, No. 35, of Cherrydale, will elect officers at its meeting to be held in the Masonic Temple tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Holy Name Society of St. Charles Catholic Church at Clarendon will receive Holy Communion in a body at the 7:15 mass on Sunday.

Monday night there will be a special meeting of the society in the auditorium of St. Charles School when delegates will be elected to attend the annual State convention at Richmond on September 28.

The Woman's Missionary Union of the Clarendon Baptist Church held its meeting at the church yesterday. Preceding the business meeting, luncheon was served by the Grace Boyd Sears Circle.

The program at the business meeting was in charge of the Kate Cox White Circle. The subject discussed was "In Union There Is Strength."

The Arlington Rotary Club meets tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club with A. F. Thelander presiding.

Mrs. Frank Gardner was elected president of the service circle organized at the meeting last night at the home of Mrs. J. C. Yates, attended by seventeen women who were formerly members of the Cherrydale Baptist Church. Other officers are Mrs. J. C. Yates, vice president; Mrs. George T. Davis, secretary, and Mrs. J. E. Ruble, treasurer.

The purpose of the organization is to aid in the movement looking to the creation of a new Baptist church in Cherrydale.

The division followed the meeting the evening of August 20, when more than 36 families called for their letters when it became known of the dispute between the patsor, the Rev. Elmer Lucas, and H. Stewart Potter, superintendent of the Sunday school.

Church services are now being held morning and evening each Sunday in the auditorium of the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall.

City Must Bury Killer of Police

Potter's Field to Get Body of Youth Who Slew Alexandrian.

Potter's field will receive the body of Owen Wroten, 17-year-old colored youth who killed Alexandria Policeman A. Perry Pierce last Sunday morning in a gun duel and died 24 hours later at the Alexandria Hospital from bullet wounds inflicted by the officer, it was announced yesterday.

Capt. W. W. Campbell, of the Alexandria police, received a telegram from W. J. Cutto, police chief of Denmark, S. C., stating that Wroten's people were not able to stand the expense of shipping his body to that place. Alexandria will have to stand the expense of the burial in potter's field.

Funeral services for the dead policeman will be held at his home in Lyon Park this afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in Arlington National Cemetery. Full military honors will be given. Local police will be both active and honorary pallbearers.

GAMBRILL BY 6,509 IN ANNE ARUNDEL

PROUTT NAMED SHERIFF

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 9.—With the Democrats giving him solid support Representative Stephen W. Gambrill rolled up the big majority of 6,509 over Dr. John W. Klemm, of Hyattsville, in yesterday's primary election in Anne Arundel County. The vote was, Gambrill, 7,909; Klemm, 400.

In the contests for Legislature and several local offices, candidates supported by the "organization" faction won sweeping victories over their independent opponents all down the line. The district fights for county commissionership nomination were not even close.

Two Posts Uncontested.

There was no contest in either party for State senator or clerk of the court, and the respective senatorial candidates for the November election will be Ridgely P. Melvin, Democrat, and Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, Republican.

The distinction of leading the field of local candidates went to Philip Miller, Annapolis business man and theater proprietor, who is one of the five successful Democratic candidates for the Legislature.

In the three-cornered fight among the Democrats for State's attorney, A. Theodore Brady, incumbent, of Annapolis, was an easy victor, his vote being some 2,000 greater than the combined polls of his opponents, Marvin I. Anderson, of Millersville and Annapolis, and Robert E. Kindred, of Glenburnie. Likewise, R. Glenn Proutt, Eighth District, easily captured the nomination for sheriff over Stephen M. Smith, First District, and T. Lee Perry, Eighth District.

Republican Vote Slim.

The Democratic contests overshadowed those of the latter party, in fact, manifested little interest in the primary and the poll of votes was scant.

From unofficial incomplete returns it was indicated that the "organization" candidates were defeated. Charles H. Sherman, Independent, Annapolis, appears to have won over William H. Moreland, Second District, "organization," and John Bowie, Fourth District, Independent.

Senator Henry Allen To Undergo Operation

Baltimore, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, who yesterday entered Johns Hopkins Hospital for treatment, will be operated upon tomorrow or next day, it was said at the hospital today.

Senator Allen, who is a patient of Dr. Hugh H. Young, was reported to be in "fine condition" and that the operation was not regarded as serious.

Lynchburg Man Hurt When Auto Hits Tree

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 9.—Frank Silver, Lynchburg plumber, suffered a triple fracture of his right leg, fracture of his nose and other hurts early today near Cumberland when his automobile struck a tree alongside the highway.

Physical Examination Required for Marriage

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 9.—The Harrison County Welfare Board today passed a resolution favoring a law requiring physical examination of applicants for marriage licenses and the refusal of such licenses to the physically and mentally unfit.

FAIRFAX COUNTY'S FAIR OPENS TODAY

BOARD MEETING IS HELD

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The seventeenth annual Fairfax County Fair will open this morning in the fair grounds at Fairfax, under direction of President E. M. Palmer. Secretary Robert D. Graham and Treasurer Lewis D. Oliver. The officers state that the prospects for the agricultural exhibits are much better than was expected because of this summer's drought. The entries that appear to have suffered the most are in the vegetable and grain department. The Fairfax Garden Club will have charge of the flower exhibits.

The fair association has designated today as children's, Boy Scouts and firemen's day. Children under 15 years old and Boy Scouts in uniform will be admitted free. The scouts, under direction of William L. Leitch, will stage a model scout camp during the fair.

The 4-H and Women's Home Demonstration Clubs will not make their customary exhibits of sewing and foodstuffs, but will conduct daily activity booths instead. In the women's booth today the members of the Navy Home Demonstration Club will give a series of demonstrations on the making of quick-breads. In the girls' section the Annandale Club will demonstrate the making of simple cookies and the Lincolnia Club the making of soft drinks this morning. This afternoon the Oakton 4-H Club will make fancy cookies and the Navy Club will demonstrate the use of wheat as a cereal.

The boys' clubs are planning to enter both cows and calves in the dairy department.

Tomorrow will be Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce day, when the county chamber will act as host to the chambers of the surrounding cities and counties. An athletic program will be one of the entertainment features, with a baby show in the afternoon under the county health unit. Horse racing will also be a feature of the day.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors held a special meeting yesterday and decided two important problems. The first was in regard to the improvement of Woodyards Run on Bull Run, below Clifton Station. The members of the board visited the site of the ford, where they met the board of supervisors of Prince William County. The two boards considered whether it would be advisable to erect a bridge at this point, the Occoquan Hydro-Electric Co. paying one-third the cost, or to allow the electric company to build a dry ford. Neither county having the funds at present to build the bridge and the country surrounding the ford being not thickly populated, the later proposal was finally agreed to.

The afternoon session of the Fairfax County board was devoted to the making of a final settlement with the Federal Government in regard to the use of the county-owned land at the entrance of the Mount Vernon estate, which the Government desired for the development of the plaza at the southern terminus of the George Washington Memorial ihghway. The supervisors were reluctant to surrender any county claim to this property, which consists of approximately two acres, used for parking puposes, and the county road right of way to the front gate of Mount Vernon. This question has been before the board several times and the members expressed their willingness to grant the Federal Government the right to use this land for highway and park purposes, but they were unwilling to give the Government an absolute title to any portion of it. When it was found the proposed rest room and concession stand would occupy a small portion of the road right of way it was decided to convey only that portion on which the building would be erected.

The resolution adopted by the supervisors yesterday stated that they would be willing to sell to the Federal Government the 71-hundredths of an acre of land for $2,000 and would grant a perpetual easement for the balance of the county-owned land for use of highway and park development in accordance with the present plans for the plaza.

The two factions of the town council of Falls Church clashed at the first meeting of the new council. The present council has three members representing each faction. This places the mayor, whose vote decides all ties, in the key position.

The first official evidence in the change of policy was realized when a motion by Councilman J. V. Turner was offered. This motion was to dissolve the three ward road boards of the town and to create one central committee, to be known as the board of roads and public work. This board would be composed of the mayor and one member from each ward. Those voting for the resolution were Councilmen Turner, Charles Gage and Frank Birch. The negative votes were cast by Councilmen Julius Parmelee, W. T. Parrott and Milton Roberts, the tie being broken by Mayor Daniels, who voted in the affirmative.

According to the ordinance adopted, the balance remaining in the three ward accounts on August 31, 1930, will be expended in each ward as before under the supervision of the councilmen in each ward. After September 1, all road funds will be budgeted for the town as a whole. The members of the central road committee have been appointed by Mayor Daniels as follows: Councilmen Turner, Gage and Birch.

The action of the mayor and emergency committee on water was approved by the council. They set up a revolving fund of $300 to be placed to the credit of the emergency committee who are to work out the details and charges for supplying water to citizens in Army water tanks. Mayor Daniels reported that he believed the cost of distributing the water would not exceed one cent per gallon and hoped that it would be much lower than this. During the past three days approximately 4,500 gallons of water have been distributed to householders in the town.

Mayor Daniel has announced the standing committees for the year as follows: finance, Gage, chairman, Turner and Birth; shade trees and street lights, Birch chairman, Roberts and Turner; law, order and public property, Roberts, chairman, Birth and Parmelee; water sanitation and public health, Parmelee, chairman, Gage and Birch. Civic betterment, Parrott, chairman, Parmelee and Gage; public utilities, Turner, chairman, Parrott and Roberts.

The council authorized the mayor and town clerk to negotiate a loan from a bank not to exceed $5,000 to meet the town's expenses until the Fall taxes are received. $2,500 of this is to be allocated to the road board.

Samuel H. Styles, clerk of the town school board, made a report concerning the conditions of the town schools. He reported the water supply adequate and practically all fire hazards and dangers eliminated. One new fire extinguisher is still to be installed in the Jefferson school and three in the Madison school. A new motor cycle is to be purchased for the use of the town sergeant.

The Colvin Run School and Community League will meet this evening in the school house and decide whether the league will continue or disband as the school has been discontinued and the pupils will be transported to Forestville.

Mind Blank, Youth Puzzle to Hospital

Authorities of Richmond Voice Doubt Victim Is From Asheville.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Hospital authorities continued today to seek the identification of a youth who for more than a week has lain in a local hospital as a victim of amnesia. The young man, not much over 20 years of age, says his name is John Knowles, but can not recall any further detail of his life.

At the hospital today doubt was expressed that he might be Morgan Moorer, missing from Asheville, N. C., while still another lead toward identification was discarded when authorities learned that a John Knowles, of Eddystone, Pa., had not worked there for many years.

The youth is about 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs about 140 pounds. He was found wandering about the streets here.

ADMIRAL SIMPSON RITES IN ANNAPOLIS

MILITARY HONORS PAID

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 9—With full military honors the body of Rear Admiral Edward Simpson, U. S. N. (retired), was laid to rest today in the Naval Academy here, only a short distance removed from his birthplace 70 years ago. He was born within the Naval Academy reservation when his father, Rear Admiral Edward Simpson, sr., was serving as commandant of midshipmen.

Admiral Simpson died at his home at Ruxton, Baltimore, on Saturday. Funeral services were held at Old St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Baltimore, early this afternoon, the Rev. Dr. Arthur B. Kinsolving, rector, officiating. He was assisted by the Rev. William O. Smith, rector of the Church of Good Shepherd.

Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the academy, was among the honorary pallbearers. Others who served in that capacity are Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones (retired), Capt. William D. Puleston, Thomas H. Armstrong, William Cabell Bruce, Bruce Cotton, D. K. Estes Fisher, jr., John Glenn, jr., Preston Petre, Blanchard Randall, John Redwood and Robert Tucker, all of Baltimore.

The body bearers were eight bluejackets from ships attached to the local station. Services at the grave included the customary rites, a firing squad of enlisted men firing three volleys and a musician sounding "taps."

West Virginia Pupils Enter Health Contest

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 9.—Graded school students throughout West Virginia have entered an "eight-point health contest" at the suggestion of William C. Cook, State superintendent of schools.

The contestants are scored on eyes, nose, throat, teeth, ears, physique, immunization and habits. To become eligible students must have been immunized for tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox.

Minister Accepts Call.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Sept. 9 (Special).—The Rev. Harry P. Ruppenthal, lately of this city, has accepted a call to the pastorate of Blacknall Memorial Southern Presbyterian Church at Durham, N. C., and has entered upon his new duties. He was formerly a member of the Virginia conference of the United Brethren Church.

ORGANIZATION WINS IN PRINCE GEORGES

SLOW COUNT BY G. O. P.

Final unofficial tally of the votes cast Monday in the Democratic primary in Prince Georges County, Md., showed that the organization candidates had captured all of the fourteen nominations on the ballot.

Just how decisive was the organization victory, however, will not be known until after noon tomorrow, when the county election board is to meet at Marlboro to compile the official totals. It is not expected that any important changes from the present figures will be revealed.

In some instances the organization now appears to have scored a definite cleanup, but for most of the offices on the slate the balloting appears to have been fairly close.

Tabulations of returns from the Republican balloting for county commissioners and sheriff will not be completed until today. Samuel G. Coale, of Marlboro, Md., Republican leader of the county, said, however, that it was apparent that W. Curtis Hopkins had won the nomination for sheriff from J. Bernard Beall by a ratio of at least 2 to 1.

Other Winners Certain.

Mr. Coale said also that the figures from the 28 precincts, although still untotaled, nevertheless show conclusively that George N. Bowen, William H. Duvall, William A. Middleton, Charles A. Ryon and Frank Small, jr., have piled up substantial majorities to give them nominations for the board of commissioners, eliminating John M. Bowie, Edward Daniels and George Finger.

Stephen W. Gambrill beat his opponent, John W. Klemm, for Democratic nomination as candidate for Congress from the Fifth Maryland District on a 10-to-1 basis, having collected a total of 4,650 votes against 468 cast for Klemm.

Alan Bowie defeated Clarence M. Roberts for State's attorney, receiving 3,119 votes compared to Roberts' 2,350. James W. Rogers, likewise an organization candidate, is shown to have captured the nomination for sheriff by 2,454 votes as against 1,795 for P. Frank Tippett, his only opponent.

Gambrill Wins Easily.

Mr. Gambrill won easily in each of the 28 precincts constituting the 11 election districts in the county. Mr. Bowie lost 7 precincts to Mr. Roberts and tied for 1, Queen Anne, but surprised himself by capturing a short lead in Spaldings, which he had considered one of his weakest districts. Mr. Rogers lost only 4 precincts of the 28.

Winners in the contest for nomination to the State House of Delegates were, in their order of popularity with the voters, Charles C. Marbury, 4,132; J. Guy Bell, 4,032; William E. Clifton, 3,976; Kent R. Mullikin, 3,853; William H. Anglin, 3,850, and William Franklin Keys, 3,815. These all are organization candidates. Harry T. Jenkins, who lacked the support of the "machine," was low man with 2,413 votes.

Robert E. Brown, high man in the race for nomination for the board of county commissioners, polled 4,131 votes, or just 1 less than Mr. Marbury drew for the House of Delegates nomination. Five nominations were designated for the board of commissioners. In addition to Mr. Brown, the winners were Walter M. Grimes, 4,033; Francis H. Crown, 3,519; Mary W. Browning, 3,508, and Ormond W. Phair, 3,203. The two defeated candidates were William P. Magruder, with 2,381, and Thomas M. Miller, with 2,138.

TRIO WILL BE TRIED IN ASSAULT ON GIRL

VICTIM OF CRASH DYING

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Sixteen indictments were returned by a special grand jury which met in Corporation Court here yesterday, with Judge William P. Woolls presiding. Among the cases were true bills against Thomas Thorpe, John Allison and George Ford, all of this city, charged with criminal assault on Regina Poole, 17, of North St. Asaph street. The case was set for trial on October 9. Two of the principal witnesses in the case, Patrolmen Lipscombe and Pierce, of the local police have been killed in the past week.

The jury failed to return a presentment in connection with a petition by residents of the First Ward asking for relief from the alleged smoke nuisance of the Virginia Public Service Co. More than 45 persons appeared in the interest of the petition, but the jury only heard testimony of three of them. Attorney John W. Brookfield, jr., representing the petitioners, said last night that he intends to present the case to each succeeding grand jury until some action is taken. With the failure of the jury to act today the case is now back in the hands of City Manager Lawrence and the city council.

On the jury were J. R. Eddington, J. C. Ramage, Arthur H. Bryant, C. E. Dare, A. N. Shuman, J. H. Newell, C. T. Nicholson and R. Samuel Luckett.

Mrs. Genevieve Griffith, 33, wife of William J. Griffith, jr., of 1219 Prince street, was reported in a dying condition at the Alexandria hospital last night as the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident which occurred near Middleburg, Va., late Monday night. Mrs. Griffith is suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries.

Also injured in the crash were Clarence W. Griffith, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Griffith, who was at first thought to have a fractured skull but was later found to be suffering only from cuts, bruises and shock, and Edwin Arrington, 27, of the same address, who has a fractured arm. Both were reported doing well at the hospital last night. Mr. Griffith, who was driving, and two other children of the couple, Idella, 15, and Louisa, 10, escaped injury.

According to information received here the auto left the Winchester highway one mile from Middleburg and crashed into a tree. The party was returning from Harrisonburg, where they had been attending the American Legion convention. The auto was totally wrecked. The injured were taken to Middleburg by some colored people and after being given first-aid treatment were brought to the Alexandria Hospital in an ambulance by Dr. Richard H. Holt. Mr. Griffith is employed as a special officer at Potomac yards.

Many applications have been received by Capt. W. W. Campbell, of the local police force, for the three positions made vacant recently by the death of Patrolmen Lipscombe and Pierce, and the dismissal of Patrolman Wilson Darr. Selections are to be made within a short time.

Steps were taken at the regular weekly meeting of the Alexandria Rotary Club yesterday to sponsor a boxing exhibition here for the benefit of the Children's Home and Day Nursery. The bouts will probably be held some time in the next ten days, probably at Armory Hall, it was announced, and will be worked on the same principle as the milk fund fights in New York City. Frankie Mann, Washington promoter, will furnish the program. Judge William S. Snow, president of the club, today appointed Jack Tulloch as chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

The city council was asked to prevent the proposed installation of one-man street cars here in a petition adopted at the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night. Another resolution asks for the opening of Royal street at both ends to join the Mount Vernon boulevard now being constructed. Report of Dan S. Hollenga, of the Chamber of Commerce, who is attending the American Legion convention at Harrisonburg, was read by J. T. Preston, secretary of the chamber. In it Mr. Hollenga quoted a paper as saying that Alexandria got $500,000 worth of publicity out of the proposal to sprinkle the clouds with powder to make it rain.

Funeral services for Virginia Anna DiNicola, 1-year-old daughter of Gilbert and Anna DiNicola, who died at Children's Hospital in Washington Monday, will be held this morning at 10 o'clock from the residence, 170 North Columbus street. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Klansmen Called To Rebuild Ranks

Members in District and Environs to Meet on Friday Night.

Ku Klux Klansmen of the District, Virginia and Maryland, responding to a clarion call to bolster their sagging ranks and revitalize the hooded order in this region, intend to hold a public outdoor meeting and initiation Friday night on the grounds of the Hume High School at Del Ray, Va.

Formal notices sent out Monday night were received by klansmen here yesterday. They bore the order of A. D. Hilton, exalted cyclops of Washington Klan No. 3, sole surviving unit of the half-dozen or more that flourished in the District in the klan's Nation-wide halycon year of 1925-1926.

Old Virginia Estate Sold.

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 9 (Special).—J. S. Heflin, of Woodburn, this county, has purchased the T. F. Mason farm, consisting of 430 acres. This is one of the oldest estates in the county. The price paid was $23,500.

Building Values Up In Charlottesville

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 9.—Under the reassessment of land, buildings and improvements made public today by Commissioner of Revenue J. F. Fowler, Charlottesville has a property value for taxation purposes of $14,700,080, or an increase of $2,200,000 over the old figures.

Although the new taxation rate will not be determined by the city council until the spring of 1931, an increase of $59,840 in taxes would be realized, provided the present rate of $2.72 per $100 should be maintained. This increase, of course, will not go into effect until the fall of 1931.

The new valuation estimates lots as worth $5,177,200, and buildings and improvements as worth $9,522,800. Total worth of property owned by colored residents in the four wards and two districts was set at $931,100. Value of property owned by white people increased approximately $2,050,000 and that owned by colored persons increased about $150,000 under the new assessment.

FAIRFAX TEACHERS WILL MEET TODAY

WORK TO BE OUTLINED

The 1930-31 session of Fairfax County white schools begins this morning with the Teachers' Institute in the auditorium of the Fairfax School. Wilbert T. Woodson, divisional superintendent of schools, will outline methods he expects the county teachers to follow. Instructions and rules for their guidance will also be issued. Enrollment books for the various schools will be distributed to the teachers. There are 35 white schools in the county in which 131 teachers will be employed, exclusive of the rural supervisor and music teacher.

Supt. Woodson stated yesterday that an erroneous report had been circulated to the effect that several of the schools would not be able to open because of the lack of water. There is no basis for such a report, he declared, and said that all schools and classes will open tomorrow morning on schedule, which will be followed throughout the year.
